CRAIG CONFERS WITH BRITISH

Ulster Premier in Conference With Lloyd George and Commons Leader

Claims Nothing Will be Settled Behind Backs of Ulstermen

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, had a long interview with Prime Minister Lloyd George at the latter's official residence soon after his arrival today. Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, also was present.

After Sir James left the prime minister's residence, he was quoted by a representative of the Belfast Telegraph as stating that he had called on Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer, as a result of an invitation received today. Sir James, according to the newspaper representative's version, added:

"I have arranged that if and when Ulster's interests are reached in the Irish conference, all the Ulster representatives will be asked to attend. In the meantime nothing will be settled behind our backs."

It was announced that the week-end party at Chequers Court, Mr. Lloyd George's country home, would consist only of the immediate members of his family, since he was extremely tired after a very busy week.

THE SHOOTING OF LOUIS SINASIS

An inquest into the circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting of Louis Sinasis by Officer William L. Keegan in a Dummer street coffee house Saturday night, Oct. 8, during what was said to be a row among card players, was held by Judge Fisher in the district court building today. Among the witnesses who testified was Dr. Thos. B. Smith, local medical examiner. It will be remembered Officer Keegan shot Sinasis after the latter refused to heed the policeman's commands to drop a revolver he was holding pointed at the officer.

PLACED ON PROBATION

William C. Johnson, recently sentenced to the house of correction for non-support of his wife and two children, after he had declared to Judge Enright his desire to go to jail rather than give money to his wife, was placed on probation in the district court today after he had promised the court and his wife that he would be a different man from now on.

Johnson, on the night of the day he made his outburst to the court here, wrote a letter from the house of correction to Judge Enright apologizing for his act and asking that he reconsider his conviction. The judge as well as Probation Officer Cronin further investigated the case and at a recent appeal of Johnson's wife he was withdrawn from the Cambridge institution. Judge Enright stated today he personally went to the master of the house of correction yesterday to inquire about Johnson's conduct. The court gave the defendant a few sound instructions after which he told him he would be under the protective wing of the probation officer, his sentence being suspended.

STRUCK BY SIGN

Mrs. Albert Stanley, of 133 Coburn street was struck by one of the signs of the Salvation army, which was blown by the wind in front of the Hildreth building this afternoon shortly after 1.30 o'clock and she received a deep cut on the forehead. The injured woman was taken to The Sun building and later the ambulance removed her to St. John's hospital.

GREAT ACTIVITY TODAY AT ELECTION BOARD'S OFFICE AT CITY HALL

Over 100 Candidates File Papers---Tyler A. Stevens One of Three to Take Out Nomination Papers for Councilor at Large

The election commissioners' office was a busy place in the late morning hours today, when 19 of the candidates at the coming primary appeared to file their papers, among them Samuel Scott, candidate for mayor. When the office closed at 12.30, 108 candidates had filed, four for mayor, 36 for councilor at large, 48 for ward councilor and 20 for school committee.

Three new candidates took out papers today, all for councilor at large. Tyler A. Stevens, Park street, who will be remembered as a prominent member of the city government under the old form of charter, being at one time president of the common council, and who has always taken a keen interest in public affairs, was one of the number. Edward F. Purcell, the contractor, residing at 250 Fairmount street, and John J. McAuliffe of 87 Linden street, a young man of prominence in fraternal circles, also entered the contest.

Late yesterday afternoon James J. Roddy, 19 Chestnut square, took out papers for councilor in ward 2, and Dr. Patrick J. Meehan, 282 Appleton street registered for school committee.

Those who have filed papers since the list was published are as follows:

For mayor, Samuel Scott.

Councilor at large—James J. Gallagher, Patrick H. Grady, James J. Flanagan, Albert Bergeron, Michael F. O'Brien, Jr., John J. Townsend, and Stewart C. Guline.

Ward 3—Ward councilor—Louis W. Richard, Louis J. Lord, Donald M. Cameron; ward 4, Fred A. Sadlier; ward 5, Joseph C. Clark; ward 6, Robert J. Laird; ward 7, George T. Hobden, Arthur Genest, Cornelius F. Cronin; ward 8, George Tyrrell.

School committee—Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Howard D. Smith, Matthew D. Doyle and William H. Rigby.

Lots of New Talent

In glancing over the lineup for the municipal primaries it would seem that the advent of the new form of charter not only has reawakened the political aspirations of many of our old-timers but has brought forth a considerable flock of new talent from which selections might be made that would, with the leavening influence of a few of the more experienced candidates, give us a city government calculated to satisfy the public demand for a different sort of administration of the city's affairs; a demand which seemed to find emphasis in the recent overthrow of the commission form of government.

Passing over the mayoralty list for the moment, we find in the councilor groups a number of young men who have already demonstrated some ability in public affairs or have the training and other qualifications necessary for successful tenure of public office. Many of the older candidates rendered capable service in past city governments and may be considered strong candidates for public favor in the present instance. Doubtless a large proportion of the candidates will conduct active outdoor campaigns as the primary date approaches and others will work along other lines. The public is certain to have an opportunity of judging their fitness before the votes are cast.

Only two members of the present school board are candidates at the coming primary, as far as can be learned at the present time. There are plenty of others, though, who are willing to attempt the administration of the school department, and it seems that in this case, also, it will be possible to choose

VOTE AGAINST TUFTS

Bar Association Would Disbar Him as Result of Supreme Court Decision

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The council of the Middlesex Bar association voted today to bring disbarment proceedings against Nathan A. Tufts, who was removed from office as district attorney of Middlesex county by the supreme court recently. The grievance committee which had unanimously recommended action against Tufts was instructed by the council to bring a petition for disbarment and was given full powers in the matter.

NATHAN A. TUFTS

The question of disbarment proceedings was considered by the grievance committee soon after the supreme court found Tufts guilty of using his office for improper purposes. Several meetings were held at which Tufts and his counsel were heard. Later Attorney General J. Weston Allen, who instituted the removal proceedings in the supreme court, was heard.

"JOE" KLEIN HIS OWN POLICEMAN

Joseph L. Klein, who maintains a pool room at 493 Middlesex street, has reported to the police that his place of business was broken into last Thursday night, but as far as he could see, nothing was taken.

Klein stated that he closed his establishment shortly before midnight Thursday, and upon reaching his home in Grand street, he had a premonition that there was something wrong at the pool room and he returned to the place. Upon entering, so he claims, he saw a strange man near one of the tables. He grabbed a chair and chased the intruder, but the latter made his escape through a rear window. The police are investigating.

TOKIO ADVISES U. S. DELEGATES

Official Word of Hara's Death Received in Washington by Jap Embassy

Murderer is Son of Prominent Soldier—Slayer Was Political Fanatic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Takashi Hara, premier of Japan, was stabbed at 7.25 yesterday and died soon afterward, the Japanese embassy here was advised today by the Tokio foreign office, in the first word of the assassination to reach Washington from the Japanese government.

All Japanese social functions attendant on the forthcoming conference, however, have been postponed.

Whether the death of the Japanese premier might affect plans for the armament within the Japanese delegation or otherwise, was a question to which an answer was looked for today.

The embassy communication said Viscount Uchida, foreign minister in the Hara cabinet, had been made acting premier but gave no details as to the assassination.

The message was received in uncoded form, but its filing time indicated that it had experienced considerable delay.

Nations Express Horror

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination yesterday of Takashi Hara, the premier, poured into Tokio today from the capitals of virtually all nations. The attack on M. Hara was made by a demented youth, and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in the political rancor which actuated bitter assaults upon M. Hara and his government in the recent past.

Viscount Uchida, former Japanese minister to the United States and foreign minister in M. Hara's cabinet since 1918, has assumed the post of acting premier, pending a possible reconstruction of the government.

IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Former Treasurer of Automobile Finance and Sales Co. Arraigned

Edward L. Fickett is Charged With Larceny From Lowell Men

Edward L. Fickett of Lincoln, formerly treasurer of the Automobile Finance and Sales company, agents for the Kenworthy motor cars, with headquarters on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, was held for the grand jury by Judge Enright in the district court today, on a charge of larceny. His bail, which was furnished, was set at $5000. The case was heard in the local court last Monday. The trial as a lengthy and complicated one and the court at the time reserved decision until today. The larceny charge had arisen from a loan obtained in this city last February.

Fickett, as treasurer of the company, it is alleged, borrowed $11,753.84 from David W. Dewar, a local business man, on a promissory note, the latter obtaining the money from the Old Lowell National bank. As collateral, a bill of sale for six automobiles was given. During the trial it was shown that three of the cars named on the bill of sale given the local bank were also included among automobiles named in a bill of sale given the Metropolitan Trust company of Boston, when a loan was obtained from that institution shortly after. The judge today stated he had thoroughly investigated the case and felt satisfied a fault had been committed.

ANOTHER BIG REAL ESTATE TRANSFER

Another big real estate transaction took place in this city during the past week, when Adolphe Lamontagne, the Merrimack street furniture dealer, sold his property numbered 645 Merrimack street, to Adolphe Delisle, of the Lowell pharmacy.

The property consists of a four-tenement building with a large store on the street floor, and 3295 square feet of land. The building is assessed for $6600, while the assessment on the land is $11,850, making a total assessment of $18,450.

Usual Decorations Not Displayed This Year by Princeton Shopkeepers

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Princeton and Harvard meet on the gridiron at the Palmer Stadium this afternoon in the first battle of the year between members of the "big three." The game was expected to break the tie that has existed two years between the Crimson and the Orange and Black. More than 50,000 spectators were expected to see the contest.

The Harvard eleven held its final practice in the Stadium yesterday afternoon, shortly after the Tigers had finished their work, and went to Trenton for the night. The men planned to leave immediately after the contest for New York, where a section of seats at a theatre was reserved for them.

The followers of both teams were confident of the outcome, but neither of the coaches, Bob Fisher of Harvard, and Bill Roper of Princeton would make any definite statement as to the result. They merely said their men were in good shape, and that they expected a close, hard fought game.

Princeton was crowded with visitors for the game, but the burst of color that used to be a feature, was in some degree missing. The shopkeepers, who for years decorated their windows for the occasion, for the most part decided not to do so and the vendors who have always been a part of the throng, were noticeably missing.

La Follette Demands Mellon's Retirement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Retirement of Secretary Mellon as "the fiscal head of the government" was demanded in the senate today by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, because of the attitude which the Wisconsin senator said the treasury held toward "the taxation of wealth." Mr. La Follette asserted that Mr. Mellon had "openly and brazenly" declared that the wealthy could not be made to bear its share of the burden of the government.

Forger Escapes Jail By Clever Ruse

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—L. R. Kimmel was sentenced to one to fourteen years in the San Quentin penitentiary on a charge of forgery yesterday. He was taken to the county jail, but an hour later he walked out, smilingly said "Good-bye" to the doorkeeper and disappeared. Several hours later it was discovered that a visitor had no pass. He had given it up to a man who demanded it, thinking he was a jail official, but it was Kimmel, who presented it to the doorkeeper and won his liberty.

The Japanese Cabinet Resigned Today

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The Japanese cabinet resigned after a meeting of the members held this morning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Admiral Baron Kato, one of the Japanese delegates to the armament conference, acting in accord with other members of the Hara cabinet, today cabled his resignation as minister of marine at Tokio. The resignation of the cabinet, it was explained by Japanese here, was wholly a matter of form and without significance.

FRANK O'HARE'S "COLONEL" DEAD

Agent Frank O'Hare, of the board of health, is mourning the loss of a dear friend, the "Colonel" with whom he had been associated in business for a great many years. The "Colonel" was none other than the stately Kentucky horse driven for years by Mr. O'Hare in the health department. The animal was a great pet and was treated in the most kindly manner by Mr. O'Hare on all occasions. The "colonel" was 27 years old, and of late showed symptoms of indigestion, and it was probably an acute attack of this disease from which he died a few days ago despite the efforts of a veterinary doctor to prolong his life.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Fines for Dry Law Infractions Tip the Financial Scales at $500

Fines aggregating $500 were imposed by Judge Enright in district court today on alleged violators of the prohibition act. They were the result of recent raids made by the police liquor squad headed by Sergeant Michael Winn.

Peter Andrews, said by Deputy Downey to have been a second offender, having paid a $100 fine two years ago for liquor keeping, was fined $150. He appealed and was held in $300 bail. The police testified to having purchased a bottle of Jamaica ginger from his store on Broadway two weeks ago. The fluid had been analyzed and found to be intoxicating, a certificate showed. Counsel for the defendant argued that Jamaica ginger is not necessarily intoxicating but the court stated he was satisfied the analysis had proved otherwise.

George Marcas, of Cross street, for keeping liquor with the intent to sell it, was fined $150. He paid. Sergeant Winn stated that a still, and a small quantity of moonshine was confiscated on his premises last month.

A plea of guilty was entered by Joseph Freitas, of West Union street, to a charge of keeping. About two weeks ago moonshine was seized here, the police asserted. He paid a fine of $100.

The next to feel the teeth of the law was Joseph Nadoly, a Fayette street storekeeper. Officer Kenney testified that here they seized a gallon and a quart of moonshine cleverly hidden in a hole in the wall. Nadoly was fined $100 and although it took him considerable time to decide whether he would appeal or not, he finally paid. Mrs. Nadoly testified the moonshine was for personal use.

Following the seizure of several cases of home brew in a house on Aiken street a few days ago, Joseph N. Bedard was arraigned for liquor keeping. Pending the usual analysis he was held in $300 bail to November 19.

Tokio Advises U. S. Delegates

at first regarding the identity of the youth at whose hands Premier Hara fell but it became known today that the assassin was a son of a former member of the samurai, or soldier class constituting the lower nobility under the Japanese feudal system, who had been a man of importance during the restoration period. The son, it appears, was of an erratic nature and is regarded as a political fanatic. He was arrested immediately after the stabbing. Detective Tsunajima, who was escorting Premier Hara, was badly cut on the arm and hands in disarming the assassin.

To Elect New Premier

It was generally assumed that the designation of Viscount Uchida as premier, was only a temporary expedient in the emergency and considerable speculation as to the probable new premier is voiced in today's Tokio newspapers. The probabilities, according to the newspaper views, appeared to point to Baron Kenjiro Den, governor general of Formosa, as the selection for the premiership.

Meanwhile the elder statesmen are likely to hold a conference shortly to consider the policy to be pursued as a result of the tragedy, the Asahi Shimbun says today. It is known that Marquis Saionji is on his way to Tokio from Kioto, possibly in this connection. The Nichi Nichi Shimbun says it understands the cabinet will continue to function pending its reorganization probably calling a cabinet council for Nov. 7, the date previously arranged for consideration of the budget for the fiscal year.

Unfortunate, Says Lodndon

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Public interest in the assassination of Premier Hara of Japan was intensified in London by consideration of the influence his removal might have upon Japan's attitude toward the Washington conference. Details of the crime are meagre.

The tragedy was described by the Daily Mail as "a grave misfortune on the very eve of a conference where it was believed M. Hara's steadying influence would be on the side of conciliation and peace."

ARMAND FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT

That he enlisted in the Canadian army five years ago and did not return to Lowell until about a year ago and since then had forgotten all about paying twenty-eight dollars restitution in an alleged larceny case, was the story told Judge Enright today by Armand Robillard, arrested last night on a capias. The probation officer stated that the defendant was found guilty of larceny in 1916 and ordered to pay $28 for restitution and expenses. This he failed to do. The court exercised leniency and told Robillard he could have a month or more if he wanted to pay the money. The defendant said he was eager to settle.

John Szewiczyk, in a continued non-support case, was placed on probation for six months.

A drunken offender was given a two months' suspended sentence to the house of correction, while another was given three months when the court learned he was already on probation from the superior court.

A telephone alarm was sent in at 8.12 o'clock this morning for a chimney fire at 130 Westford street. At 11.36 o'clock an alarm was sounded from box 125 for a slight blaze in back of the stove in a flat at 372 Market street.

a very acceptable body. What is worrying many of the male candidates is the sentiment expressed in many quarters that it would not be a bad idea to elect some of the women who have entered, the argument being that the women are very much interested in the schools, and that affairs might be handled more satisfactorily if a little womanly influence were felt occasionally. However that may be, every woman elected means one less place for a man's occupancy, and some are inclined to resent the encroachment, as they regard it.

Of course the mayoralty campaign is of necessity the most interesting feature of the election, and more discussion is devoted to that than to any of the other offices. All the avowed candidates are getting into action as rapidly as possible, and it promises to be a hot campaign. It is doubtful if any new campaign stunt can be invented for about everything possible has been tried in the past with varying success, but the public may rest assured that its appetite for politics will be satiated before the January inaugural.

The list of candidates who have already entered the fray is as follows:

Dennis J. McCarthy, well known poet, addressed the students and faculty of Notre Dame Academy yesterday at their regular monthly lecture.

Mr. McCarthy gave a short but very interesting lecture upon poetry in general touching some of the high lights of literature. He read several exquisite poems of his own composition, all of which were highly enjoyed by his audience.

While in the city Mr. McCarthy was the guest of Mr. Henry T. Gilday, 32 Varney street.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS SPELLACY

Miss Spellacy, a member of the St. Elizabeth branch of the Irish National Foresters, was given a great send off at A.O.H. hall Thursday evening when she was presented a certificate of passage to Ireland and a purse of gold. She came here to relatives nearly a year ago, after enduring the hardships of the rebellion in the County Clare. The presentation was made by Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan. The committee in charge included Miss Mary Dillon, Miss Maria Markham, Miss Bergen and J. L. Handley, chief ranger of the O'Neil Crowley branch. Refreshments and an entertainment followed the presentation.

MISS McPHERSON HONORED

A very pretty shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox on Chambers street, in honor of the coming marriage of her sister, Miss Marion McPherson, who is soon to become the bride of Mr. George Lyons, a popular employe of the Saco-Lowell shop. The bride-to-be was presented a beautiful mahogany library table. The feature of the evening was the "mock marriage," the Misses Tarpy and Bray as bride and groom and Kitty Towey and Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox as witnesses. The train-bearer for the bride was Miss Zeta Dowd. There were piano selections by Misses Marion Cashman and Zeta Dowd and Master "Buddee" Fox. Solos were sung by the Misses Alice Spillane, Maybell Lyons and Anna Mahan. Kitty Reardon, who has just returned from Mecca, did her new oriental dance. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the bride-to-be the best of luck in her coming marriage.

TEWKSBURY BOY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Harold C. Greenough, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Greenough of Tewksbury, was instantly killed last evening in an automobile accident, which occurred in South Tewksbury, while Daniel O'Neil, son of the owner of the car, who was at the wheel; Richard O'Neil and Clifford and Charles Greenough, who were also in the car, escaped with slight injuries.

The accident occurred on South street at a point near Silver Lake, while the boys were delivering milk in a touring car owned by Police Officer Patrick O'Neil of the town. According to the boys' story, Daniel O'Neil, who was at the wheel, swung his car to the edge of the road in order to avoid striking a dog, and when the machine struck the gravel surface, it turned turtle, pinning the driver to the ground. Witnesses of the accident say that the machine was not going at an excessive rate of speed when it turned over. Dr. William A. Buck of Wilmington gave first aid to the injured, while the body of O'Neil was being removed to a morgue in Wilmington, where it was viewed later by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith.

HANDSOME GAVEL FOR COMMANDER

Commander John J. Garvey of Chelmsford post, 212, American Legion, was presented a handsome gavel, trimmed with the national colors, by the Ladies' auxiliary to the post at a reception given by the women to the legionaires in Chelmsford town hall Thursday evening. The presentation was made by Mrs. John Vinal, president of the auxiliary. The boys of the post first attended the business meeting of the ladies and later sat as their guests at a supper served in the basement of the hall. There were speeches after the supper by Commander Garvey, Vice Commander Leo McEnaney, Adjt. John Johnson, and Past Commander Sidney Perham. Co-operation between the post and the auxiliary was the keynote in the commander's remarks, and he also urged the women to redouble their efforts in securing new members. The Honey Boys quartet of Lowell offered a number of selections, as did little Doris York of Graniteville. The latter also contributed a series of readings. Community singing and "The Star Spangled Banner" brought the affair to a close. Mrs. Sidney Ferguson sat at the piano. The committee in charge of the reception consisted of: Mrs. Harriett Sweetser, chairman; Mrs. Hazel Silk, Mrs. Addie Carl, Mrs. Marion Johnson, Mrs. Alice Roharge, Mrs. Dorothy Russell, Mrs. Luella Lakin and Miss Mary Garvey. They were assisted by Mrs. Jennie Murphy, Mrs. Bessie Robinson, Mrs. Isabelle Young, Mrs. Elizabeth Miner and Misses Anna Bishop, Ethel Booth, Frances Young, Margaret Queen, Anna Murphy, Grace Cummings and Alice Butler.

Women Under Twenty-One

There is a form of anemia called chlorosis that most frequently attacks young women. It is most common between thirteen and twenty-one. The symptoms are pallor, debility, breathlessness and palpitation of the heart. It is a disease which easily runs into a fatal form of anemia unless it is corrected in time.

Chlorosis yields readily to proper treatment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended together with a proper diet and plenty of sunlight and fresh air. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood. When they do this they tone up every nerve in the body. They strengthen the stomach and make digestion thorough and comfortable.

"Building Up the Blood" is a booklet full of useful information. Every mother and every growing girl should have one. It is free on request.

Your own druggist can supply you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can order direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., at 60 cents a box.—Adv.

Chief of Police John J. McBride in announcing his action, said it would give Gordon an opportunity to demand a public hearing within three days and that it would be granted. WILSON DEMOCRACY FAVORS ARMS PARLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Hamilton Holt, president of the Woodrow Wilson democracy, made public yesterday a statement expressing the organization's attitude toward the coming Washington conference on limitation of armaments.

The statement, authorized by the executive committee, follows:

"The very timely request of Secretary Hughes that the American people should place confidence in the American delegation and that those who are most interested in the objects to be attained will permit us to endeavor to attain them and to perform our important work without unnecessary embarrassment' has prompted the publication of the following declaration of the Woodrow Wilson democracy:

"The Woodrow Wilson democracy, by its executive committee, takes this occasion to state publicly that it regards the disarmament conference as an event of great importance, and as such that this organization will lend whole-hearted support to the efforts of the administration to bring about the limitation of armament by international agreement. We would seriously question the patriotism and loyalty of any individual or group who might seek to embarrass and make more difficult the constructive efforts of the American conferees.

"'We believe that this conference is constructive in purpose; that it was called together not only to find a solution of the armament problem but to bring about international harmony and accord.

"The League of Nations is organized for the same general purposes, and we shall expect the president and the secretary of state to rebuke any effort to belittle or discredit the League of Nations or make more difficult its program for reducing armaments."

Atty. Gen. Allen Appoints Trio to Prosecute Dist. Atty. Pelletier

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Appointment of Robert G. Dodge, James J. McCarthy and Andrew Marshall to assist General J. Weston Allen in prosecuting proceedings in the supreme court for the removal from office of District Attorney J. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, was favored today by the council of the Boston Bar association. The council sent word to the attorney general that it would be pleased if he saw fit to select the three men to work with him. The same men have been named as prosecutors in disbarment proceedings which Attorney General Allen has brought against Daniel H. Coakley, William J. Corcoran and Daniel V. McIsaac.

The council also voted to oppose the petition of Corcoran a former district attorney of Middlesex county for permission of the supreme court to resign from the Massachusetts bar. Corcoran asked the right to resign on the ground that he was no longer a resident of the state, having removed to Portchester, N. Y.

Oppose Approval of Treaty With U. S.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 5.—Opposition to approval of the treaty between Colombia and the United States has arisen in the chamber of deputies. The senate has already approved the pact, by which $25,000,000 would be paid this country by the United States in settlement of the controversy resulting from the establishment of the Panamaan republic. It is pointed out by opponents of the treaty that, as it stands, it does not guarantee any compromise obtained by Colombia.

Judge and Jurors Have Busy Session in the Superior Court

Standing: left to right: S. G. Swanson, J. Curran, W. T. Fermoyle, F. J. O'Hara, W. M. Lawrence, J. H. Meehan, G. H. Nelson, J. P. Dunigan, F. A. Sadlier, T. H. Donahue, W. T. Hopkins, D. S. Dewire, G. A. Wilson, S. E. Dupee, F. H. Coggeshall, J. H. Linnell, T. Croswell, J. H. Cogger, E. F. Pratt, F. Cullinan, A. N. Denley, A. E. Fowler. Sitting, left to right: M. E. Lawrence, C. H. Jewett, C. R. McElroy, M. S. Griffin, W. H. Cottrell, G. E. Holton, W. J. Christian, R. H. Creed, Court Officer G. F. Stiles, Justice Elias B. Bishop, Clerk R. H. Hurd, Deputy Sheriff G. H. Stevens, J. A. Eames, J. S. Greig, E. Champagne, J. A. Tarbell, J. A. Chesborough, J. W. Claffy, W. H. Livingston, T. H. Geary.

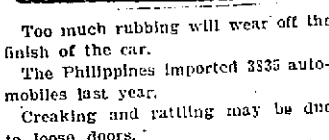

It is rather an unusual state of affairs to have three juries working at the same time as was the case in superior court yesterday with Judge Bishop presiding. Two juries were sent out in the forenoon while a third was impanelled and heard a case. Findings were made by all three before the day's work had been completed. Legal machinery seemed to be well oiled yesterday and moved with a rapidity that is unusual, considering the calibre of the cases.

The first jury to go out was the one sitting in the case of Doonan vs. the inhabitants of Littleton. The action was one of tort for $5000 brought by Jeanne Doonan of Malden through her father, Owen P., to recover for alleged personal injuries when she was struck by an auto in Mill street, Littleton. In the case the jury charge was started late Thursday afternoon. Yesterday morning Judge Bishop completed the charge and sent the jury out. Shortly before court adjourned for the day Judge Bishop called the jury in and impressed upon it a verdict was important inasmuch as this was the second trial. The jury retired and returned a sealed verdict later.

The cases of Murdock and Grace M. McKinnon vs. the Massachusetts street railway were heard and verdicts for the plaintiffs of $200 and $400 respectively were brought in. Judge Bishop set the verdicts aside and will report to the supreme court.

The case of Alexander Duncan vs. J. Doyle to recover $3000, the result of a real estate transaction was tried. During the trial the judge and attorneys went into a conference after which the court ordered the jury to make a decision for the defendant. The decision will be reported to the supreme court. If the decision of the superior court is upheld, the case will be ended. If not, counsel will have agreed upon a settlement of $400 rather than take the case to the supreme court.

ALLEN NOW SEEKS TO DISBAR PELLETIER

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Petition for disbarment of Dist. Atty. Jos. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, proceedings for whose removal from office are pending was filed with the supreme court by Atty. Gen. Allen late yesterday.

Thirty-two allegations charging Mr. Pelletier with deceit, malpractice, gross misconduct, conspiracy to distort and corruptly aiding and abetting to extort were included in the attorney general's petition.

William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, now claiming residence in Portchester, N. Y., and Daniel H. Coakley, both of whom face disbarment proceedings already filed here are named in the attorney general's petition, on the ground that Mr. Pelletier conspired with each and both in efforts to extort.

The petition for disbarment of Mr. Pelletier closely follows that filed last week by Mr. Allen asking the court to remove him as district attorney for alleged misfeasance, non-feasance and malfeasance in office. Announcement of Mr. Pelletier's candidacy for mayor of Boston came shortly before that, but after the Boston Bar association had asked the attorney general to seek the district attorney's removal.

DRY CHIEF PAYS TRIBUTE TO FIELD STAFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The field staff of the prohibition enforcement force comprises "men of character and calibre who serve from the motive of patriotism," Federal Commissioner Haynes declared today in a statement published as a tribute to these workers.

"These men have faced death, scorn and temptation," the statement said. "They are sleepless in vigilance, unswerving in loyalty and fearless in doing their daily tasks in the same manner in which the English sing of their men who advanced in Flanders: 'They go as heroes and gentlemen.'"

Mr. Haynes said the illicit liquor traffic embraced "unscrupulous men of unlimited means" as well as common crooks. He made a list of casualties recently sustained by the prohibition forces showing that five men met their death and two others had narrow escapes.

BIG BARGAINS AT LEMKIN STORE SALE

The interest shown in the wonderful bargains offered to the public at the great sale of The Lemkin store's entire stock by the women of Lowell and vicinity almost beggars description. The buyers have been coming since the opening of the store Friday morning and in such large numbers that even the extra staff of salespeople were unable at times to take care of everybody.

Many who made purchases openly expressed their surprise that a store of Lemkin's reputation for quality in goods, could afford to make the sacrifices in prices that are being made at this slashing price sale.

The stock consists of the best in women's outer wearing apparel including dresses, coats, skirts and wraps, and the sale will continue until closing time tonight.

PARIS CADILLAC SERVICE

To accommodate owners of Cadillac cars who anticipate touring the battlefields of Europe, a new headquarters for Cadillac service, known as the American Service station, has been established in the centre of the automobile district in Paris, at No. 36 Rue Marboeuf. Here, for the first time, cars from Los Angeles and New Orleans and Boston will rub fenders with former standard 7-passenger army Cadillacs that a few months back shook to the thunder of heavy guns at St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

A good many of these cars were turned over to the French government at the close of the war. Some of them the French resold to civilians, some they put into service with their own army, while others were retained as official cars of the French government. Not a few of them bear marks of shrapnel and high explosives, which have been skillfully covered up by their new owners. All of them will come from time to time to this centre of Cadillac service, and American visitors will hear at first hand the adventures of some of these veteran army Cadillacs and the part they played in the war.

FIRST FRIDAY OBSERVANCE

"Alf's Button" Is an English Comic With a Novel Plot

"STRIKE ME PINK!" EXCLAIMED A BRITISH TOMMY WHEN A GENIE APPEARED AFTER HE HAD RUBBED A BUTTON ON HIS BLOUSE. THE GENIE DID, FOR HE WAS THE REINCARNATION OF ALADDIN'S SLAVE. THIS, IN A FIRST NATIONAL FILM.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—"Alf's Button," a film comic, offers a subtle exposition of the British sense of humor. This movie is the best from the standpoint of story interest and evolution of plot yet made by English producers.

A British Tommy is surprised by the appearance of a genie ready to do his bidding when he rubs the second button on his tunic. The button had been cast from the metal of Aladdin's lamp.

"Strike me pink!" the cockney soldier exclaimed when he regained his breath. The genie accommodated him and then disappeared.

Threatened with quarantine, Alf rubbed the button and bade the genie return him to his former state.

Alf confided his secret to a skeptical sergeant. When the sergeant demanded beer as proof the genie deposited two foamy goblets upon the trench floor.

Alf longed to see his girl. He wished for the most beautiful girl in England. The genie brought the captain's fiancee. Matters were sadly complicated when the captain met her in the trench. And more so when the genie at Alf's bidding whisked the girl from his arms and restored her to England.

The sergeant was overcome with nostalgia. Alf rubbed the button. Presto! Alf and the sergeant were back in blighty.

The genie provided Alf's girl with wholesale lots of finery and Alf with a suit of "fish and soup" design. Riches did not bring happiness to either. With all that the genie could do for Alf he could not lift him above his wonted place in the social scale.

Such a story offers a tremendous field for the play of the author's imagination. The English producer employed it for seven reels. It ended with Alf's wife wishing for a boy and returning the magical button to the genie.

The genie did things in a wholesale way. He brought Alf and Mrs. Alf three sons.

English Technique

The English technique in photography and direction has not advanced beyond the nickelodeon era in America. Some scenes of "Alf's Button" are in blue and brown, after the manner of sun prints made by photographers in 1899. Others have the quality of tintypes.

Anachronism

In "Alf's Button," a girl is writing with a pen on note paper. A close-up shows a typewritten telegram she is supposed to be sending. The flashback shows her still writing with a pen. I have not seen such a slip-up in American pictures in many months.

If Americans Made It

"Alf's Button" is a better comic than the ordinary run of American comedies. However, one wonders what an American producer would have evolved from the same story idea. Chaplin would have made a greater picture of it than "The Kid" and that picture is a far better comedy than "Alf's Button" as the English filmed it.

Buster Keaton or Harold Lloyd also might well covet the idea. Their version probably would have been reduced to three reels with all the action of the seven-reel British comic retained.

Therein lies the distinction between English and American wit. The American comedian makes you laugh uproariously and before you have had time to rest your risibles stirs you to mirth again. The English comedian lays a trail to his joke, like a long fuse to a powder can. After that explosion of humor he laboriously contrives another situation to provoke merriment.

THE MOVIETORIUM

"The Vermilion Pencil" is Sessue Hayakawa's next.

The studio orchestra plays "Mother Macree" to make Bessie Love cry.

Prince Ferdinando Pignapelli of Italy acted as cameraman for one scene of Marshall Neilan's production of "Penrod."

Leave it to D. W. Griffith to pull something new. He has taken out a $25,000 insurance policy to guarantee a snowfall for "The Two Orphans" before Nov. 20.

Adventures of The Twins

MISSING WIVES

"YOU RUN ON, KIDDIES," SAID CAP'N PENNYWINKLE

One day Cap'n Pennywinkle sent Nancy and Nick over toward the shore to see what in the world was the matter. "I just got a telephone message from Mr. Fifteen-Pin Stickleback that his missus has been gone all day and isn't back yet," said the captain. "And Mr. Corkwing sent word by old Dolly Lasher that Mrs. Corkwing hadn't showed up since daybreak. And daddy said that as he passed by, he heard Mr. Blenny call over to Mr. Goby and ask if he knew where his wife was, and Mr. Goby called back that indeed 'n' he didn't and he was just wondering what had become of his own."

"You run on, kiddies," went on Cap'n Pennywinkle, "and see if you can find all the missing fish ladies. I won't be likely to learn anything about them away out here at the cross roads for these are all little fish, you know, and do their housekeeping near to the shore. Besides if they'd show up out here, land love us, wouldn't Mr. Cod and Mr. Sturgeon and Mr. Haddock and all the big fellows have a feast!"

"We'll go at once and hunt them," replied Nancy obligingly. "But how shall we know them? How do they dress?"

Cap'n Pennywinkle had to laugh before he answered. "Dress! Well, just wait until you see them. You'll know 'em all right. Just pick out anybody you see with stripes and polka dots and dresses like Christmas tree ornaments and you'll know it's one of the missing wives. It's just the same on the water as it on the land, my dear, the ladies who like to dress the gayest are usually the ones who leave all the housework to their husbands. All these people, Mrs. Goby, Mrs. Rock-Fish and all the others, are gay dressers. Very!"

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Next Week's Bill One of All-Star Quality—Three Local Singers Tomorrow

For tomorrow's special bill at the B. F. Keith theatre three Lowell singers will be accorded the leading position. They are John J. Hartnett, Joseph M. Reilly and Jas. King, singers of excellent training, who are known as "Lowell's Caruso, Scotti and McCormack." Other acts on this bill will be those of Patricola, Richard Kean, Fields & Fink, and Ed. Boyle and daughter and Hal Stack.

Val and Ernie Stanton, who describe themselves as "The English Boys from America," will top the coming week's bill at the B. F. Keith theatre, giving their inimitable satire on English as it is not spoken. Wherever the vaudeville stage is popular there will be found the Stantons, who are prime favorites.

The Five Musical MacLarens are Scottish, but why make such a superfluous statement? They have the bur-r-r in their voices, the bagpipes in their arms and the thistle in their appearance, and, of course, they are garbed in kilts. Kilts aren't as much in evidence in the heather as they are on the stage, but they are a picturesque attire, and they give this act a splendid bit of costuming.

Loraine Howard and Verna Sadler will offer a harmonious songalog which they call "Wedding Bells." They are a pair of girls, who don't make any particular attempt to hide their ages. But they are wonderfully refreshing in other particulars. Their act is said to be one scream of laughter from beginning to end.

William Newell and Elsa Most are a very young couple who have known the theatre since they were but tots. In the years they have been "on" they have done many things, sang, played, danced and acted. Their present sketch is called "On the Lawn," which is touched up with wit and good music.

Shapiro and Jordan are two girls, who do all that they attempt in superfine manner. They entertain mostly at the piano, and their song numbers invariably turn out to be hits. Archie and Gertie Falls have an act that will take away the breath. Incidentally Gertie is a modern Venus. Two Dancing Frenchmen are Gold and Edward, who do some amazingly clever stepping.

RIALTO THEATRE

Triple Feature Attraction at the Rialto For the First Three Days of the Week

An all star program far in excess even of the productions that have adorned its screen for the past two or three weeks, will appear at the Rialto theatre this coming week, according to the announcement of Manager Prager.

For the first three days of the week will come a triple feature attraction introducing Charles Ray, well known star in "The Midnight Bell," Buster Keaton in his latest comedy, "The Goat," Peter Morrison in a thrilling western drama, "Crossing Trails" and the Kinograms.

For the last three days of the week there will be a famous James Oliver Curwood production, "The Golden Snare," also Bessie Love in "Penny of Top Hill Trail," a snappy comedy and the Kinograms. It is truly a program of exceptional merit and should meet with the approval of crowded houses every afternoon and evening.

In speaking of the leading feature of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday we find Charles Ray in a story of adventure and hair raising experiences rarely to be found in small towns or metropolitan centres. Charles is seen as "Martin Tripp," a traveling salesman for a large city concern and he finds his way into a small town where the inhabitants are up in terror because of the persistent ghosts who are to be found in the abandoned village church. In reality these ghosts are nothing more than a quintet of crooks who have been attracted to the town by its rich bank and who make the church their headquarters in digging a tunnel to the basement of the bank. Of course our friend Martin did not believe in ghosts and so he spent a night in the church waiting for the weird hour of "The Midnight Bell." He is discovered, and though bound and gagged, he manages to ring the bell himself and thus, becomes the hero of the place.

In James Oliver Curwood's story shown the latter part of the week, we again find the well known author lives up to the reputation which he established in "The River's End," "Back to God's Own Country," and "Nomads of the North." It is a story of the Northwest Mounted Police in a desperate search for a much wanted fugitive from justice and it carries an absorbing love story which balances delightfully.

The Sunday program at the Rialto theatre will introduce Robert Warwick and Douglas McLean in two excellent productions, also four acts of high class vaudeville.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Love Bandit," a Play of Society and the Great Northwest to Be Presented by the Lowell Players.

The Armistice Week offering at the Opera House by the new Lowell Players will be Charles E. Blaney and Norman Houston's realistic romance of society and the Canadian Woods, called "The Love Bandit." Stories of the Great Northwest are invariably unusually strong in all of the pleasing elements that go in the making of a high-grade stock offering, and "The Love Bandit" is no exception to the rule. You will like it and you will admire and enjoy the various characterizations by the members of the company. It's a combat between blue blood and red and intermingling in sufficient good humor to properly balance the whole thing. Jim Blazes, a young millionaire, is in love with his stenographer, a descendant of one of New York's oldest families. Her family has lost its wealth and the girl, believing that blood and not money tells, scorns his offer of marriage. Then the girl's brother is caught stealing money with which he plays the races. It belongs to the young man and he threatens to send the thief to jail when the girl promises to marry him. They are married, and after having stood all things from her, he decided to return to his logging camp. There he works out the redemption of the wife's brother. During this process the young wife realizes that the man she has married has real strength of character to him and directs her course to his side. In the meantime a conflict arises between river logging camps and the opposition, on hearing of the coming of the girl, tries to capture her. From then to the close of the play one sees really thrilling situations. Miss Magrath, as the young wife, will find greater opportunity for the reflection of dramatic ability than ever before. The other characters will be in good hands and the scenic effects and stage accessories will be up to the usual high standard of the past.

The retirement of pickets about the entrance of the theatre during the past week has relieved the situation there very materially. Tickets for the coming week are selling fast. Tel. 261. Down-town office at the Prince-Walter Shop.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Ladies Must Live" and Kubinoff, Russian Concert Violinist, Features for Next Week

"The Isle of Destiny," a romantic feature with an all-star cast, and "Common Sense," another entertaining production featuring Edgar Lewis, will be the chief attractions of the Sunday program at the Merrimack Square theatre. The usual excellent surrounding program will be carried out.

Declared to be a screen masterpiece, equal, if not superior, to his enormously successful production of "The Miracle Man," George Loane Tucker's last picture production, "Ladies Must Live" will be the feature attraction for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Betty Compson, who made a great hit in "The Miracle Man," in which she played opposite Thomas Meighan, is the featured player. The picture has been produced along artistic lines and there are many thrilling moments in the action. The support is excellent.

Another big feature at the Merrimack Square theatre will be Kubinoff, the noted Russian concert violinist, who will appear in person at every performance during the entire week of November 7. Kubinoff is one of the most talented artists of the concert stage and his visit to Lowell will undoubtedly attract hundreds of music lovers.

A Fox comedy and the International News will complete the bill.

STRAND THEATRE

"Life's Darn Funny" and "The Shark Master" Attractions for the First Three Days in the Week

Another series of big picture productions are scheduled for presentation at the Strand for the coming week. During the first three days of the week Viola Dana, in "Life's Darn Funny," and Frank Mayo in "The Shark Master," will be shown, and during the last three days of the week, the one and only Tom Mix in "A Ridin' Romeo" and Edith Roberts in "Luring Lips," will be the attraction. The usual comedy and weekly will be shown in connection with these bills. Sunday's sacred concert will be comprised of new pictures and an array of high grade vaudeville.

Viola Dana, the effervescent little star, in "Life's Darn Funny," should please everyone. Some queer or unusual experience stands out vividly in the minds of about everyone. See this picture and you will surely be reminded of something in your life that will reflect itself sharply. Miss Dana, in the role of little Zoe, finds herself in distress because of the lack of a gown, but her delight is unbounded when she runs into luck that brings about a realization of her fondest hopes. Gareth Hughes plays opposite the star and the remainder of the supporting cast is superb.

Virile Frank Mayo is seen in a wonderfully gripping photoplay of the South sea islands. A huge liner burning in mid-ocean and then swallowed up in the waves; a tropic hurricane which lashes a schooner and threatens its destruction; a mutiny at sea; a terrific fight between the master of the vessel and a score of his seamen; a leap from a high cliff into the shark-infested waters of the South Pacific—there are but a few of the many interesting phases of "The Shark Master." A delightful love romance is also intermingled. You'll like it immensely.

The one and only Tom Mix in a new story of his own, "A Ridin' Romeo," will feature the program for the week-end, starting with matinee on Thursday. The daredevil star of many an exciting and thrilling western story, is seen in this play in an entirely new role that affords him wider and better opportunity for his unusual capabilities. In view of the fact that Tom wrote the story himself, it is quite natural to expect thrillers of an exceptional sort. And you won't be disappointed. He has written in all kinds of mischievous trouble and as for stunts—well, see them yourself and judge.

"Luring Lips," the feature in which Edith Roberts appears, is another of those gripping melodramatic creations of the screen that has everything that goes in the making of a high class offering. Miss Roberts finds rare opportunity to indicate her exceptional talent and the support accorded her is truly wonderful. It's a stirring story of how a beautiful girl's wits and wiles won back the man she loved and incidentally solved a great intrigue. The element of mystery and chance it contains is a phase that will please all. Miss Roberts brings to the role assigned to her all of the fire and feeling which characterizes her unusual screen personality.

Don't miss either program. They are the kind that helps maintain the high standard of film entertainment one invariably gets at the Strand.

Smith Girls—Dartmouth Boys To Debate

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 5.—The young women of Smith college and the young men of Dartmouth college having agreed to meet in joint debate, have now agreed on Dec. 10 as the date and recognition of the Russian soviet government by the United States as the question, it was announced today. H., and the Smith affirmative side will be presented against Dartmouth's negative at Northampton. Trials to determine the membership of the two Smith teams are now being held.

Sinn Feiners Raid Police Barracks

BELFAST, Nov. 5.—Sixteen Sinn Feiners raided the police barracks at Kesh, County Fermanagh, last night, overpowered the four constables in charge, seized all the rifles and ammunition and escaped. They took advantage of the absence of most of the garrison, the men having gone to Enniskillen to attend a boxing tournament. General Tudor, Irish police chief; Col. M. Wickam, Ulster divisional commissioner and other high police officials were at the tournament. Police were rushed to the scene of the raid, but the Sinn Feiners had made good their escape.

THREE-PIECE SUIT IS ATTRACTIVE

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The three-piece suit has attained a degree of popularity this season which carried the mode into the most elegant of costumes.

Not only the practical and the conservative effects are achieved in this combination of gown and coat, but the most bizarre and gorgeous limits are reached.

A Poiret creation of silver and black brocade accentuates this gorgeousness. The coat is cut with a decided flare and is edged with monkey fur.

The big sleeves, with novel turned-back cuffs, are also edged in this jungle fur, while the closely fastened collar with revere extensions is of velvet.

The dress is a combination of black velvet and the brocade cut in straight lines.

An interesting tricorn hat with cascades of moire ribbon is worn with this smart costume.

Girl's Greatest Gifts All Belong To This Interesting Girl

MARJORIE PATTERSON, ACTRESS AND AUTHOR

By ALICE ROHE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—What is the greatest gift a girl may have—beauty, brains, youth, health, money, ancestry, family position, great genius?

What if one didn't have to choose, but had all of these!

Well, this is the lot of one of the most interesting young women in New York.

She is Marjorie Patterson, actress and author, the great-grandniece of Betsy Patterson, whose marriage to Jerome Bonaparte, young brother of Napoleon, started off international marriages with a romance that has made present-day alliances with reigning royal families quite commonplace by comparison.

But although Miss Patterson pours tea from an ancient silver tea set brought over from Ireland by Betsy Patterson's father, and sits in Betsy Patterson's chair, and sleeps in Betsy Patterson's bed, she thinks the real aim of life is giving expression to her creative force in the best way possible. So she has to her credit one of the most discussed and lauded literary achievements in bookdom—"A Woman's Man."

Two other books, "Fortunato," written in Rome when she was 19, and "Dust of the Road," written in England when she was a member of Sir Frank Benson's company, have attained best seller proportions.

"I believe that heredity plays an important part in life," says Miss Patterson, "but inherited tendencies, no matter how fine, do a minimum of good unless developed through individual power.

"If a man or a woman feels, that overpowering creative force calling for expression, it is the person's duty to follow the call. Some women feel it for domestic life and become great mothers; others feel it for professional life.

"Personally, the life of society means nothing to me."

Miss Patterson left the stage at the height of attainment as Pierot in "Pierre the Prodigal," to devote herself to writing.

"I am said to resemble Betsy Patterson," said the great-grandniece of Madame Bonaparte. "Perhaps I find my romance in work. At present I am finishing a play, 'Pan in Ambush' and am working on another drama. Yes, work is the great motive force in life."

WOMEN APPEAL FOR SPECIAL SERVICE

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—"Open your churches! Open them all and invite the whole world to a half hour's prayer for those who lost their lives in the world war and for the best result from the disarmament conference!"

This is the message which the League of Women Voters, through its president, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, issues, particularly to women.

"There must be no more war—this is the conviction of the mothers of America," says Mrs. Park. "It has been crystallized within the past week as the disarmament conference draws near.

MRS. MAUD WOOD PARK

"Women know too well the tragic cost of war. They are the ones who should take the initiative in this question of limiting the nations in their effort to build greater armies and navies."

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser, limitation of armament chairman for the league, is appealing to the governor of every state to issue proclamations setting aside a thirty-minute prayer period on Armistice day.

Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn., director of the first region of the league, and Miss Christine Merriman of New York also a league official, called personally on President Harding and asked him to issue a national proclamation calling for special Armistice day services.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union is joining the league in its appeal.

NOVEL COSTUME HAS A SPANISH ACCENT

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—A Spanish comb doesn't necessarily make a Spanish costume, yet the green crepe cashmere trimmed in black and white fringe has a decidedly Spanish flavor.

Paul Poiret has draped a novel waist effect, the sleeves being merely pieces of the goods caught in such a manner as to fall in a cape-like effect in the back.

The skirt is richly embroidered in points, from which the fringe falls.

This novel costume, while it suggests the stage, is really a dinner gown, although its use extends to reception or afternoon functions.

Lady Lookabout

Value of a Newspaper

How many people ever stop to think, when reading the daily newspapers, which have become such a necessity to us, and which we take so much as a matter of course, that this is the cheapest commodity that enters into our everyday existence? Could the average person realize the immense amount of labor, both mental and physical, entailed in gathering the account of happenings of interest all over the world, as well as the obtaining of diversified special articles to contribute to the enjoyment of the reader, we would all agree that there is nothing else which furnishes us with so much value for our money, as the daily newspaper. I think it would be a splendid idea if the publishers of the various papers would give the public an opportunity of examining the workings of their plants, on the same basis as the recent telephonic exhibit, showing how the matter is received, handled, printed, etc. I am sure that it would prove of much interest, and would be appreciated by the public. We have come to expect absolute accuracy in reading printed matter, and if the people could see for themselves the rapidity with which the raw matter must be whipped into shape, they would be much more lenient, and ready to make allowance for any little error or discrepancy which may occur. I realize, however, that the newspaper cannot give any of its working time to the entertainment of visitors. Such an exhibition would have to come after the paper goes to press.

A Friend in Need

A lady coming into Lowell recently, arriving from Boston on a very early train, with best bib and tucker on, in a downpour of rain, went into the Middlesex station, and made the remark to the congenial young lady on the newspaper stand, that the B. & M. owed her about nine umbrellas which she had left on the trains at various times, and wished she could locate one of them for the time being. The clerk simply stooped down to a closet under the counter, and drew out a fine, big umbrella, and inquired if that would help out any. It certainly did fill the bill wonderfully, and the traveller was sent on her way rejoicing, with hearty thanks to the Good Samaritan behind the counter, and convinced that there are a lot of fine people in this old workaday world of ours, who are always doing little acts of kindness to brighten the way for others.

An Annoying Habit

Can any one tell why it is that at concerts, lectures, but more particularly church services, so many people have a habit of coughing, without making the least pretence of trying to smother it in any way? It certainly must be very annoying to a speaker, as well as to the audience or congregation, and while at times it may be unavoidable, in most cases it is simply a habit. Should you attend a first class drama, you will notice that there is absolutely no sound from the audience, and you can hardly believe that the same people generally attend service, in some church or other on Sunday, when one would imagine that 75 per cent. of the congregation were in the last stages of tuberculosis.

The Salvation Army

However much we may differ in point of creed from the Salvationists, fair-minded people cannot help admitting that in the matter of moral courage, they stand second to none. They hold their meetings in all kinds of weather, absolutely regardless of the derision which is often showered on them by thoughtless people. Almost everyone has a secret dread of ridicule, and try in every way to avoid it, but the members of the Salvation Army appear to be entirely impervious to either praise or blame.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

BUSINESS BETTER

Every week brings new evidence of improvement in business. The factories are calling in more hands, new departments are starting up and the stores find a greater demand for goods. This condition is not confined to Lowell but prevails all over the country, a sure sign that we are passing out of the gloom that has hung over business for the past two years.

THE VOTER'S DUTY

The time limit for filing nomination papers has now practically closed with the result that there is a fairly good list of candidates in the field from which the electorate by the exercise of good judgment can choose a very acceptable candidate for mayor, a thoroughly representative municipal council of 15 members and nine candidates qualified to conduct the affairs of the school board.

At first considerable misgiving was felt over the rush of candidates to take out nomination papers; but this has given way to a feeling of satisfaction that so many business men and other acceptable candidates have volunteered their services to the city for the next two years. From the list of candidates for the council both at large and from the wards, there can be chosen a municipal council that will reflect credit upon the city of Lowell. We mention this as one of the possibilities, although it is hardly to be expected that the most desirable candidates will be elected in all cases. With the general conflict among the candidates, the urgent claims made by some and the disposition of a great many voters to support the candidates with whom they are acquainted, whether the latter are qualified or not, will assuredly affect the result in a manner that may bring more or less disappointment to those who expected to see good judgment shown in the final analysis. However, we have confidence that the electorate will see the wisdom of overlooking the candidates who have no chance of election and voting for the stronger candidates in order that every vote may count in deciding the chief contests both at the primaries on Nov. 22 and at the final election on Dec. 13.

We sincerely hope that the voters will not leave themselves open to the charge that they do not want good government and that they will vote for weak candidates in preference to men of the highest integrity and long experience in business.

What is the supreme duty of the voters in this election? Simply to pick out the most decent and capable candidates for all the offices to be filled.

GUARD AGAINST CANCER

Cancer week should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by any citizen of Lowell, high or low, healthy or unhealthy. When a disease takes a toll of 90,000 lives in the United States in a single year, and when doctors everywhere admit that it is incurable unless taken in the early stage, surely every person who has any regard for his or her safety should heed the wise counsel offered in various newspaper articles and in lectures by surgeons and others who are well qualified to instruct the public on the symptoms and treatment of this dread disease.

What seems to be established beyond a doubt is, that the disease when external, usually starts with a painless growth or excrescence on the skin, causing but slight inconvenience until its roots sink into the flesh and, like the roots of a vine, spread over blood-vessels and muscular tissue. It is plain that the longer the roots be allowed to spread, the more radical will be the operation necessary to remove them.

When the disease is external and before the roots have sunk deeply into the flesh, the cancer may be removed entirely by a surgical operation and, it is claimed, in some cases by what is known as an arsenical plaster. Some years ago a man lived on Common street who had the recipe for such a plaster and used it successfully on several patients; but, of course, it was of no use in cases in which the roots had sunk deeply into the tissues. As to internal cancers, only the surgeon's knife is of any use and that, too, will fail unless applied before the roots of the growth have spread to vital organs.

What is to be remembered is that cancers come gently and at first are as painless as a wart or a wen, and for this reason they are liable to be neglected until too late. The advice of the cancer experts is to watch such growths and promptly consult a physician as to whether they are cancers.

If these simple precautions be followed, it is claimed that 30,000 of the 90,000 cancer victims in this country each year could be saved.

APPEALS TO PREJUDICE

Some men with political axes to grind seem to think it will help them to stir up class, racial and even religious prejudice in the coming election; but against the injection of any such spirit, we would enter a solemn protest. Such a course should be resented by sensible men as dangerous to the city and to all classes of citizens. Those who realize the baneful effects of such methods in the past, will dread the return of any such bitterness as they would a plague. The man who would widen the breach between labor and capital, who would stir up feeling against any reputable business organization, any class, any race or any religion is a menace to the community and if he does so through a newspaper, so much the worse for the people and for Lowell.

What we need in approaching our city election is the spirit of patriotism shown by our people during the war when all united for a common cause with the result that for all time, this nation will be honored for the glory of their achievement. For the war, only the men who were physically fit were chosen. Let our new city government be chosen solely upon the ground of merit and evident fitness of each candidate for the proper discharge of the duties attached to the office to be filled. In that way and that alone can we improve our city government.

PAY THE BONUS

Simple justice demands that the men who offered their lives for the nation overseas shall be compensated in some measure—we do not believe they can ever be sufficiently repaid for the sacrifices they made and for the glory they brought to the United States by their heroism on the battlefields of France. Marshal Foch gave the American people a clearer idea of what our troops did than they ever had before; and he is the highest authority on the subject.

Having saved the allies from defeat, these service men who survived the conflict deserve well of the nation. It is also important and necessary that the allies pay their indebtedness to the United States in order that the money may be used to help compensate these men for their glorious achievements. Even the interest on the loans would come in handy now to enable the government at Washington to pay the soldiers the proposed bonus.

THE BIG TEXTILE SHOW

Nothing of the kind hitherto shown has equalled the International Textile Exhibition and National Power show held this week in Mechanics hall, Boston. It has presented the very latest inventions and the rarest products of loom and spindle, and in fine every phase of the textile art in all its related branches. It was certainly a wonderful exposition and it was fortunate that Lowell textile factories were so well represented in the exhibits. The special exhibit by the Saco-Lowell shops, the Merrimack Manufacturing company and several other Lowell concerns, in addition to the general exhibit of Textile fabrics produced by the Lowell mills and in charge of the Lowell chamber of commerce, were quite creditable. Indeed Lowell was the only city which had a general exhibit of this kind at the show.

PELLETIER

District Attorney Pelletier of Boston in his first speech in the mayoralty fight did not talk like a guilty man. Evidently he is not afraid of his enemies; and as for his opponent, Hon. John R. Murphy, he charges him with being allied to the clique that has been trying for years "to get Pelletier." But the present district attorney of Suffolk county acknowledges only one weakness—he has a heart susceptible to the appeals for pity and mercy, and he may have exercised both qualities to a greater extent than his accusers deem necessary or proper. But every district attorney is allowed wide latitude in such matters and the ends of justice are not always best served by enforcing the penal code with the rigor of a Lycurgus.

OUTLOOK FOR 1924

The statement is going the rounds of the press that the clash between Mr. McAdoo and ex-Governor Cox of Ohio at the meeting of the democratic national committee is likely to result in the nomination of former Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall for president in 1924. It is quite a while till 1924 and in the meantime conflicts such as occurred at the meeting of the committee may be smoothed over and the whole political situation changed, so that new candidates may come into the field and old pass out. It is too soon to predict who will be the democratic nominee in 1924.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL

Quail is more plentiful than for many years past according to the department of agriculture. That is good news for those who like quail on toast; and if the shooting of game were prohibited for a few years our American forests would abound with the birds that delight the heart of the hunter. But for the restraint imposed by law the game birds would soon be exterminated. It is well to have a hunting season, but that implies something to shoot.

New Bedford is getting a reputation as a seaport. The White Star liner "Cretic" will call at that city on Dec. 5 for the purpose of taking on passengers for the Azores, Madeira and Lisbon. This will be the fourth steamship running out of New Bedford as those of the Cunard, Fabre and Portuguese lines already make New Bedford a port of call. This seems to be placing New Bedford in a position of importance which she has not hitherto held.

The women's committee of the Anti-Saloon League comes out with a manifesto in favor of strict enforcement of the prohibition law. They very naturally and reasonably take the ground that this law, like every other, should be enforced and that if one law be ignored or scoffed at, others may soon be similarly disregarded.

Suppose the auditorium was finished and that all the candidates were brought upon the stage—oh! yes, it will be big enough to hold them—in order that each might make his bow and offer some excuse for seeking office, wouldn't it be a great improvement upon present methods?

A Connecticut company reports being rushed with orders in its fish pole department and says it is receiving orders from Canada, England and France. In reference to the latter claim, we should like to apply to the company the short and ugly word that did good service in Roosevelt's day.

India may yet compete with the world in foreign trade. Cotton and jute manufacturing are leading industries there, and there is a growing development in steel manufacture, cement making and leather industries. Yet many people wonder why England wants to keep a tight grip on India.

"When the world meets in Washington" is a newly coined phrase that does very well for a catchy synonym, but the world may have to wait a long time before it gets all the news of that conference and gets the truth.

The quaintly furnished offices of some of the old-time stables in Lowell and vicinity still contain many aged habitues who follow horses and know them better than the average man.

China is reported as still firm on Shantung, but Japan is saying nothing. The Japanese have bought considerable land in and about Shantung. Who will cancel these purchases?

Mexican bandits have captured four Americans and ransom has been demanded and paid. Are we to return to the border again for watchful waiting?

Shoe manufacturers are swinging to lower grades, but if that will keep the factories busy, it will mean more money in circulation and better times for employes who have been idle.

Fish prices in Boston wholesale marts have dropped with a bang. That ought to help the Friday pocketbooks.

It is good policy for manufacturers to cater right now to the trade demanding pre-war prices. High prices without business get nowhere.

Very properly the American Legion demands action by congress on the bonus for soldiers without further equivocation or delay.

The exactions of the late war have not all been met, but some of its benefits have been realized in full.

The large passenger lists on outgoing steamers Europe-bound are also signs of the times.

ARMISTICE DAY

Hon. Joseph Walker Will Speak at St. Anne's Church

Under the auspices of the local Federation of Churches, an Armistice day service will be held in St. Anne's church at 8 o'clock in the evening, with Hon. Joseph Walker, former speaker of the house of representatives, the principal speaker. Mr. Walker will deliver an address covering lines suggested by the day of observance and the disarmament conference. A feature of the service will be the singing of hymns by several vested choirs of the city.

Lowell Post No. 81, American Legion, has a notable program for the day's observance. Salutes will be fired in Monument square and there will be addresses by several well known citizens, including Mayor Perry D. Thompson.

Mayor Thompson has recommended the closing of all city departments on Armistice day. The schools will be closed and exercises will be held on Thursday, in most of the city schools.

PAIGE STREET CHURCH

The alterations at the Paige Street Baptist church and the installation of the new organ have been completed and the interior of the old church has taken an altogether different aspect. The alterations included the changing of the baptistry, an addition to the choir gallery and the addition of new dressing room. The new organ is of the largest type and was installed by Kimball & Frazer of Boston. It will be dedicated at the morning service at 10.30 o'clock, when a special musical program will be carried out and an appropriate sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. Cecil Hayes, whose topic will be, "The Importance of Music in a Church." In the evening, an organ recital will be given under the direction of Russell Fox

CHELMSFORD H. S. BALL

The annual ball of the Chelmsford Centre High school was held last evening in the town hall. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and in the evening, a delightful entertainment program was given by Hoppe and his team of artists from Boston. The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Miss Ruth Emerson, chairman; Charles A. Ellis, Miss Mary Garvey, William Berg and Miss Ruth Monahan.

CHELMSFORD LEGION POST

Chelmsford Post, 212, American Legion, will hold its regular meeting in the town hall, Monday evening. Nominations for officers will be made and as competition between prospective candidates is keen, it is expected a large attendance will be on hand. The boys are talking about a minstrel show to be held after New Years, and at this meeting some definite steps in this direction will be taken.

"To the manor born" was not meant for jazz artists and chicken-dinner fiends who frequent the imitation "manors" in the non-prohibition districts.

No Sick Animal

They were in a railroad train and were discussing Dickens. "Well," said one, "John puts 'Bleak House' first and 'Martin Chuzzlewit' second." "Excuse me, gentlemen," said a husky voice from the seats behind, "I don't know your pal, John, but you're being steered. There ain't no such horses runnin'."

Pusher Pushed

"Here, boy," said a wealthy motorist, "I want some gasoline, and please get a move on! You will never get anywhere in the world unless you have push. Push is essential. When I was young I pushed, and that was what got me where I am." "Well, mister," said the boy, "I reckon you'll have to push again, 'cause we ain't got a drop of gasoline in the place."

A Typical Case

The cripple thumped his crutch on the ground as he confronted his lawyer. "Heavens, man, your bill is outrageous!" he exclaimed. "You are taking four-fifths of my damages. I never heard of such extortion." "I furnished the skill and eloquence and the necessary legal learning for your case," said the lawyer coolly. "Yes," said the client, "but I furnished the case itself." "Bosh!" said the lawyer. "Anybody could fall down a coal hole."

Knees and Sir Harry

Sir Harry Lauder, among other things the author of "A Minstrel in France," is back again. He says it's the first of many farewell tours. As usual, he's in kilts. So, he observed on his first day in America, are many of the girls on Fifth avenue. "I saw one bonny lassie whose skirt came down to just about where mine does," remarked Sir Harry. "And her stockings were rolled below the knee just about where mine are. And she showed just about as much knee as I do. But if I do say it as shouldn't, it was nicer knee."

The Wrong Words

The Chinaman could speak but little English and the Englishman could speak no Chinese, nevertheless the dinner went off agreeably. There was one dish that pleased the Englishman. It was a rich stew of onions, pork, mushrooms, and a dark, tender, well-flavored meat that tasted like duck. The Englishman ate heartily of this stew. Then he closed his eyes, lifted his hands, and shook his head with an air of ecstasy. After this compliment to the dish, he said interrogatively: "Quack, quack?"

"No, no," said the Chinaman. "Bow-wow."

Unusual Request

"Operator, will you please see that my telephone is put out of order?" This strange request came over the wire the other day from a Lynchburgh, Va. telephone subscriber, who explained that his bell had been ringing almost constantly for over five hours. He had, the man explained, inserted an advertisement in a local paper announcing that he desired to vacate an eight room residence, giving a telephone number for inquiries. So successful was the experiment that after the entire family had been worn out answering the telephone the householder begged that his line be disconnected for the night, in order that they might have an opportunity to recuperate.

Very Busy Man

One or two stories have been told of hustling American tourists "seeing the world." Here's another: A tourist dashed up to the British museum in a taxicab, ran up the steps, and said to the man in uniform at the door:

"Still got the Elgin marbles?"

"Yes, sir; of course, sir," replied the attendant.

"All right. How about the Assyrian-winged bulls near the lunchroom?"

"They're still there, sir."

"German air-raiders during the war didn't damage your fine mummy display upstairs, I hope?"

"No, sir; not at all, sir. But won't you step inside, and look around for yourself, sir?"

"No, thanks. I'll just take them as per catalogue," answered the tourist. "You see, I've got St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, the Tower, the South Kensington museum, the Wallace collection to do this morning, before I catch the Oxford train, give the college the once over and catch a connection with the Stratford express, so as to see Shakespeare's home before dinner."

On Your Toes

I knew a sprinter once who ran
Swifter than any other man
In all our school. And yet he could
(And not a comrade understood)
Not win a single open race,
But grew content with second place.

Our trainer was a wise old chap;
So he put on his thinking cap
And watched this fellow. On the mark
He poised as lightly as a lark
And got away at crack of gun;
But yet he never, never won.

Watching him one day near the finish
Our trainer saw his speed diminish.
He'd led the field by full a yard
Nor seemingly was running hard.
Then as a runner near him steals
Our man comes down upon his heels.

Trainer smiled and said: "I know
Why past the tape he does not go
Ahead of all the rest. Next race
He'll be accorded foremost place.
For lo I have discerned the lack
Which holds this wondrous sprinter back."

Next sprint our wonder started in
Our trainer with a knowing grin
Stood near the finish, with his eye
Upon the men as they went by.
And as this runner by him goes
The trainer yells: "Up on your toes!"

Up on his toes the sprinter went
And o'er the mark his feet he sent
A goodly distance ere the rest
Could reach it though they ran with zest
Now how to win this runner knows;
He simply stays up on his toes!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Now comes the season when the "dog cranks" have their inning. Horse fans are no more faithful to their hobby than the owners of blooded canines. And many a man and woman not owners of dogs of any description, may always be seen at the big shows, tramping through the aisles and inspecting the exhibition stalls where famous breeds are on exhibition, blue ribbons and everything. I learned today that the 30th annual specialty show of the Boston Terrier Club of America will be staged in Boston, Nov. 11 and 12, at the Mechanics building. Supt. Charles E. O'Connor reports that more than 300 dogs will be benched. This club is the parent of all Boston terrier clubs. Numerous creators of this breed 30 years ago are still in the ring. Among the well known exhibitors this year, known to all Lowell owners of Bostons, are Dr. C. F. Sullivan, C. C. Kammerer, Frank Tooling and Frank Dondero. M. J. Donlon of Lynn will be this year's judge.

Despatches announce that Camp Devens, which was officially "abandoned" as a regular army base in orders issued by the war department last September, may continue to remain on the government books as a cantonment. It is said that the First division of the U. S. army may be assigned to Devens very soon. The First Corps area officials have the matter under consideration. At present, I am informed, there are about 200 soldiers at Ayer, a part of the famous 13th U. S. Infantry. They are soon to be transferred to Fort Warren to join the remainder of the units of this splendid regiment.

Rare critics of the American army personnel—and there are critics even when it comes to our splendid military organization, I am sorry to say—have sometimes said that "many soldiers are foreigners." Let me tell the "harpers" something: A few weeks ago, I took a party of friends in a flivver to old Camp Devens. We wandered about the deserted barracks, hiked down the long military roads of wide macadam, sifted through deserted barracks and troop quarters, peeked into musty mess halls and cooking quarters and even trekked through former official "headquarters," the doors of which had been left unlocked. On sentry duty far down the area close to the foot of Telegraph Hill (remember that spot, boys?) I ran into a khaki-clad six-footer with a tanned face that resembled the color of a Pawnee Indian brave of the Custer-Buffalo Bill period. I spoke casually of the weather and the prospects of sunshine on the morrow. The voice that answered me did not belong to a Jugo-Slav. Said this husky in khaki:

"Naow, bruther, ssh, you speak truthfully. The weather, sah, is sure going to be fine tomorrow, let me tell you."

Four more brothers in arms, all stalwarts of Uncle Sam's finest in every detail from tan shoes to peaked campaign hats, replied to my questions in the same, slow drawling voices, with courtesy in every response. Southerners they were and three out of the big four from good old Dixie land—Tennessee, sah! But not colored. In all there were 200 good American huskies there at that time.

"What's Wrong with the World?" is such a catchy topic that one can readily see the possibilities for an interesting discussion of its many points. Hence it is that Lowell people are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to hearing the noted lecturer, Peter W. Collins, on Wednesday evening next in Associate hall. Mr. Collins is a student of the economic and sociological problems, a man whose experiences fit him admirably to shine as a brilliant exponent of standards that make for ideal citizenship. Grand Knight John E. Hart of Lowell council, Knights of Columbus, under whose auspices the lecture is to be held, wants to emphasize the fact that the lecture is absolutely free and cordially invites the public to be on hand to hear an unrivalled presentation of facts about the present day problems affecting the civilized world.

Again yesterday it was conclusively proved that The Sun is a widely read newspaper. Thursday, Supt. of Police Redmond Welch appealed to this paper to publish a letter he had received from the postmaster of Mindoro, Wis., seeking relatives of one William O. Taplin, who recently died in that western town. The postmaster, F. J. Roland, told the local police head in his letter that Taplin was said to have relatives in Lowell or hereabouts, although very little else was known. A story and the letter were printed in Thursday's Sun. Yesterday afternoon a young man purporting to be a nephew of the deceased Mr. Taplin visited the local police station and informed the chief that he was related to the late Mindoro man and that Alden Taplin, an overseer in a Methuen mill, his father, was a brother of the dead man whose relatives were sought here. The story had been read in The Sun, it was stated, the day before. Supt. Welch furnished the Methuen man all the information he had, the latter being very anxious to communicate with the Mindoro authorities to learn more of his late brother's death.

Eminent Portuguese operatic artists recently arrived in this country from Paris and Lisbon, will give a lyric concert at the Lowell Opera house Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of well known Portuguese citizens, which should be enjoyable to all music lovers. The program will include selections from the operas of Rossini, Leoncavello, Puccini, Verdi, Ambroise, Thomas and Carvalho, and romantic folk lore ballads of France, Spain, Portugal and Italy, by Alice Pancado, soprano, Alfredo Mascarenhas, baritone, and instrumental solos by Alberto Sarto, maestro. Berton Braley's Daily Poem
The PRIMAL GLAMOR

There is a little lake I know,
A lake of azure, cool and clear,
Where slim canoes slip to and fro
With rippling music sweet to hear;
At night the silver moonlight gleams
On wavelets crinkling over sand,
It is a spot of drowsy dreams;
But somehow, blown across the land
From far, far off, there comes to me
The great green magic of the sea.

Mountains with peaks of dazzling white
That rear themselves against the sky
Wake in my heart a brave delight;
Forests of pine trees towering high
Stir me with wonder and with awe,
And desert stretches hold a thrall
Of color, barbarous and raw;
But there's a spell beyond them all,
A lure of space and mystery,
The great green magic of the sea!

The sea, the cruel, tender sea
Eternal, yet forever strange,
Restless and turbulent and free,
With mighty moods that shift and change
From rage to calm, from love to hate;
The sea, that surges round the world,
Calling to high empires and great,
Where long waves roar and tides are swirled;
Oh, glamor that man may not flee—
The great green magic of the sea!

As to Large Ballots

It is alleged that the size of the ballot at the primaries will confuse the voters. Well, if it does, what will happen the poor voters when they have to deal with the blanket ballot in a national election?

Take, for example, the ballot for the presidential and state election in 1896. A sample ballot was published in the old Sun, and it appears that there were no less than seven distinct tickets in the field for president and vice president. It is well understood, of course, that nobody votes directly for president or vice president, but for the electors representing them. There were thirteen electors on each ticket and then there was a blank space on which the voter could write in the names of different electors if he did not wish to vote for any or all of those on the ticket of his choice.

The electoral vote of a state equals the number of its congressmen and its two United States senators. In 1896 the electoral vote of Massachusetts was 15, but in 1920 it was 18. If we get one or two more congressmen on the basis of population as shown by the last census, then the electoral vote of the state will be increased accordingly.

The ballot used in the election of 1896 was about the size of half a page of The Sun. Here were the principal tickets from which the people were to select:

Bryan and Sewall, democratic.
Bryan and Sewall, democratic nomination papers.
Bryan and Watson, people's party.
Levering and Johnson, prohibition.
Matchet and Maguire, socialist labor.
McKinley and Hobart, republican.
Palmer and Buckner, democratic national nomination paper.

Then came the same number of party tickets for state officials.

For governor, lieutenant governor, treasurer, secretary of state, auditor, and attorney general the same parties made their appeal and then came the list of state, senatorial and representative candidates, embracing about ten contests in all, with two or more candidates in each.

In addition to this, there were three referenda questions. One was whether the voters should decide in favor of biennial elections for state officers and another, whether there should be biennial elections of members of the general court.

The third was the question of amending the city charter of Lowell. This was adopted and the two preceding were defeated.

Election Excitement

On the Saturday night preceding election in 1896, the city was decorated for the great street parades of both parties. Of this the old Sun said:

"The city is literally covered with the national colors. From hundreds of housetops, from the flag poles on city hall and all the public buildings Old Glory floats.

"Even horses are decked with the Stars and Stripes, which are also seen on vehicles of all kinds.

"Ladies have miniature flags pinned on the lapel of their jackets, and the display of flags from the windows of private residences is really surprisingly large. Business men, irrespective of party, have dressed the exterior of their establishment in flags, big and little."

Then followed a list of the leading stores on Merrimack and Central streets as having elaborate decorations.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt

In the old Sun I find the following tribute to Herman Eckhardt who a generation ago was prominent in social circles in this city:

H. V. Huse writes an interesting story of Prof. Eckhardt, musician, now passed away, whose fame was transcontinental and who was known to every lover of music in Lowell.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt was a native of Saxony and was in fact a born musician. He began his musical training in the celebrated Leipsic university, studying the violin and mastering it with remarkable ease.

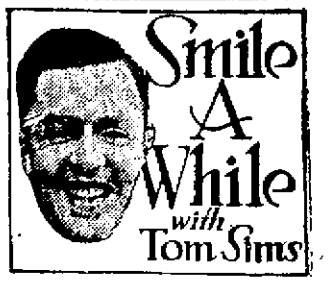

When only 11 years old he became the pupil of the world famous Weintuatein and later joined a military orchestra, playing the French horn and associating with the most prominent musicians of the day, coming to America in 1840 with an orchestra of talented musicians.

Prof. Eckhardt and his orchestra played in all the larger cities previous to 1847. In 1850 Prof. Eckhardt took the position of leader of the Lowell Museum orchestra, and after his marriage he toured this country and Europe. In connection with the Boston Museum orchestra he produced many excellent concerts from the classical operas.

In 1863 he was offered the position of musical instructor in the public schools of Columbus, Ohio, and in that city for nearly 30 years he had rounded out his busy life as the leading musician of the community and one of the foremost in America.

Made Millions in Horse Races

By N.E.A. Service

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 5.—Could you practically live on a race track and never bet a single cent?

Could you develop and sell race horses and never bet a cent to back them up?

Could you race a race horse and still never bet on him?

It is not impossible. John Edward Madden, the most famous and leading breeder and racer of thoroughbred race horses on the American continent, does all of this, and still more.

He has a farm at Lexington, Ky., 2000 acres of the finest blue grass land. He has other large interests and possesses a large fortune—but not one cent of this has ever been made through betting on race horses, notwithstanding horses he himself had bred for winning.

Madden as a boy turned his early fancy to the trotting horse. He came to Lexington in 1883 and from that time to this he has been the leader of the trotting and thoroughbred ovals.

His first "big" buy was in 1889 when he paid $10,100 for Sulsin, trotting mare, and in 1890 he paid $23,250 for Robert McGregor, famous trotting sire.

Madden has a lot of sentiment for his horses. He heard that Nancy Hanks, trotting mare, was for sale. He immediately bought her and gave her a home on the blue grass of his farm and the day she arrived Madden issued invitations to numerous friends for a reception in honor of Nancy Hanks.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged within a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments to Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added luster to the annals of the turf.

Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals, but selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him, but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

DOBBIN IS COMING TO THE FRONT AGAIN

Old-time horsemen in and about Lowell read with interest The Sun story of the long record of Silas A. Shattuck of West Fourth street, who for 60 years has been a blacksmith and horseshoer. A visit to some of the other best known business places run by blacksmiths and expert horsemen for many years in various parts of Lowell resulted in uncovering some readable facts about the industry in this city.

One of the best known "old-time" shoeing stables in Lowell, popular with horsemen old and young, and still doing business up a small side street far from the busy thoroughfares, is the establishment of Henry Reynolds, horseman, race track follower and golf player.

A Sun man visited the Reynolds place at 42 Cushing street this morning and found that the old buildings have been running wide open for horseshoeing for more than 50 years. Reynolds has been in the game about 25 years, and of course does not consider himself an old-timer.

Reynolds has been a little slow about getting enthusiastic over Golden Cove racing, he told a Sun man today. He drew the writer over to an old desk cabinet on which lay billheads, pictures of horses of every age and color, race score cards and sale announcements.

"Look at this!" he exclaimed, handing the reporter a large race card. It was one of the summer Grand Circuit affairs, and Reynolds admitted that he "followed the big wheel horses." He has the records of every circuit horse on his tongue's end. He can tell you the speed of Arion or Croesus, or Single G or Natalie. He shot them out like a catapult this morning and told stories gleaned from his recent visits to the big stables owned by Cox, Geers and all the rest. You can talk grand circuit all day with Henry and not go home tired of listening to his chatter. He told a few this morning that would go big in a horse journal.

Just around the corner on Fletcher street is another old-time stable and horseshoeing establishment, and run by George Ahearn. This man has a fine line of work, and the shop is an old one, but George isn't old and so doesn't want to be classed with the historic boys of the anvil chorus.

"Let me take my hat off to Brother Shattuck instead," said Ahearn genially, this morning. "He's a fine old gentleman and a good horseshoer. Put that in The Sun. I want him to know it!" That is Ahearn all over—with a good trade and no fault to find with the advent of the automobile. "I have all I can do, and besides, you will please set it down that horses are coming back, my boy!" he said as he turned back to his fireplace and tossed in another new shoe for shaping.

At other stables in that vicinity the belief was current that horses were on their way "back to the front." Some horseshoers say many large trucking concerns are finding horse power cheaper in the long run and more profitable in every way. The sentiment in the stables over beyond Central street and over in Centralville, too, is that more horses are being used for general business purposes than was the case when the trucking craze reached its climax a few seasons ago.

ANOTHER GILROY ON GRIDIRON

Another member of the famous Gilroy family of Haverhill is slowly stepping blong in the athletic line. The last and youngest of this famous athletic family entered Haverhill high last fall and is now on the Haverhill football squad. Whether or not he will be able to follow in his two older brothers' footsteps time alone will tell. His two brothers, Ralph and Johnny, have nation-wide reputations as college football players. Johnny, scintillated at Georgetown a few years back and later with Jim Thorpe's pro team out in the west. Ralph has been starring at Princeton for the past two years and is one of the most brilliant defensive backs in the country. Bill Broderick, the Haverhill high coach, has a great reputation for developing raw material into stars so it won't be much of a surprise to hear in a year or so of another Gilroy cutting his name into the athletic hall of fame.

GAVE SHEPARD AWARD

Mob of Fight Fans Threatened Joe McCarthy Who Refereed Nashua Bout

NASHUA, N. H., Nov. 5.—The police had to escort Joseph McCarthy of Boston, a Massachusetts referee, to the state line early yesterday, to save him from a mob of fight fans because of his award last night, to Johnny Shepad of Woburn, Mass., in the bout with Peddy O'Neill.

The two judges announced that both voted for a draw. McCarthy, however, gave the decision to Shepard.

The demonstration was so bitter and persistent that an escort to the state line was deemed advisable.

Chief Goodwin is to investigate a statement attributed to McCarthy that he could not declare a draw under Massachusetts rules.

THE STORY THAT HELPED McGRAW

There's a new business yarn called "The Go-Getter"—and appropriately subtitled: "A Story That Tells You How to Be One"—which is in size one of the smallest books of the year, and in the enthusiasm it has aroused among business men and other go-getters, one of the biggest. It's a moderately short story in book form, by Peter B. Kyne, and in New York the following story about it is going the rounds among baseball fans.

"Things were looking dark for John McGraw and his champion troupe of horse-hide maulers. Then an admirer sent him a mysterious brown package. At first McGraw was going to soak same in water because certain Yank fans stop at nothing, but with characteristic bravery, the baseball Napoleon threw discretion to the four winds. The package, however, disclosed nothing more alarming than books—twenty copies of "The Go-Getter"—about a Yankee who was beaten a dozen times but didn't know it. McGraw took half an hour off to read the story and decided there was a new 'Message to Garcia' in it. His opponents were ahead and he'd even stoop to psychology to win. Wherefor he distributed the extra copies of the book among his disciples. That the Giants won the next three games, and, of course, the pennant, is a mere matter of history. Now the Yanks, who were defeated, are wondering if they hadn't better include a course in reading in their training schedule next spring."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM GOES TO WOBURN

The high school football team journeyed to Woburn this afternoon and played the strong high school team of that town. Although a hard battle was looked for Coach Eddie Cawley's charges were confident of adding the Woburn team to their list of victims. That the Lowell boys were up against a tough team was evidenced by the fact that Woburn so far this year had won every game. Woburn is noted for the star athletes that it turns out and it was in view of this fact that Coach Cawley started his strongest lineup in today's game.

The high school team today was ordered by Coach Cawley to confine all its efforts to straight football. If, however, the ball is in scoring position and the backs are unable to gain Willard or Condon, who has come along fast as a drop kicker in the past few days, will be called on to boot over a drop kick. Coach Cawley is lucky in having two such clever kickers as this pair.

At the final practice yesterday afternoon the coach devoted most of his time in teaching his new guards, Bailey and Brosnan the fundamentals of guard play. Both boys proved apt learners and in the scrimmage against the second team threw back all attempts to gain through their positions. A shift was made in the backfield by the return of Pete Sheehan to eligibility. Sheehan was one of the sensations of the early games and his return to the team at this time will greatly strengthen it. In the Lowell backfield today there was no star plunger as both Linton and Normandin were out of the lineup. Coach Cawley, however has groomed Taplin, the husky tackle, to fill in the position of fullback and he was expected to see service at that place today. The lineup at the start of today's game was probably as follows: King, Gleason, ends; Rowlandson, Sullivan, tackles; Bailey, Brosnan, guards; Dolice, center; Sweeney, quarter, Willard, Hilton, halves; Sheehan, fullback.

GREB BEATS WEINERT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harry Greb, Pittsburgh heavyweight, last night defeated Charles Weinert, Newark, receiving the judges' decision after a 15-round bout.

TEXTILE AND WORCESTER TECH IN BIG GAME

This afternoon on the Moody street gridiron Lowell Textile played its most important football game of the season when it took on the Worcester Polytechnical Institute eleven.

Both teams appeared to be in fine condition for the game and made a snappy appearance before the largest crowd of the season. The visitors, clad in their red and gray uniforms, took the field first and after exchanging punts and trying out passes went through a rapid signal drill. While not a heavy team, the Engineers presented a well balanced outfit.

Textile took the field shortly after and went through its preliminary work. All of the regulars were in the lineup and the manner in which the local team went through its warming up stunts indicated it was out to lift a Worcester scalp.

A high wind was blowing which made the handling of punts and long passes difficult. Shortly before 2.45 the rival captains met in the center of the field and tossed for the choice of goals.

CASTLES AND BURKE IN CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

An announcement of considerable importance to boxing followers in Lawrence and Lowell was made today, when C. P. Dodge of the Moody club issued a statement that he had succeeded in matching Barney Burke and Mike Castles for a 10-round bout on next Thursday night to settle the claims of both to the featherweight championship of Lawrence.

It was originally planned to put Castles against Chick Hayes here next week, but when the local promoter found that he could land the Castles-Burke battle, he immediately cancelled the Hayes' end and signed up the rival Lawrencians.

COMMUNICATIONS

Sporting Editor, Dear Sir:

A few weeks ago there appeared in the Lowell papers, a statement which was signed by the manager of the Greek tug of war team, stating that his team had been treated unfair on Columbus day and he also issued a challenge to the Billerica shop team to pull for a purse of $500. Now immediately afterwards, we, the Boilermakers tug of war team, accepted the challenge to pull the Greek team or any other team for a suitable prize but not for money. Then along come the officers of one of the few clubs in the city of Lowell who are trying to boost sports in the city (namely the Lowell Driving club) and arrange to put on the contest between the two teams for a suitable prize and it was all set for October 22nd at the Golden Cove park but after the driving club committee had gone to the expense and trouble of arranging the contest and the Boilermakers' team had trained faithfully for same, along comes (Mr. Andreniclaus, Greek Manager) at the last minute and notifies the committee that they are not going to pull.

Now we stated in our letter of acceptance that we would pull any team any time or anywhere and that we did not believe in (hot air sports) that we were willing to beat but it is too bad for a good club like the Lowell Driving club whose members are doing all within their power to put Lowell on the map as a clean and real sporting city and are doing all that human beings can do to give the city a good athletic field by their hard labor and many sacrifices that this kind of a trick should be pulled over on them. There should be some way or rules to handle such poor sportsmanship as pulled off by the Greek team and we hope in the future when anything is agreed to, that all concerned will live up to the agreement. There is one thing we would say, that the Driving club has used us people as real gentlemanly sportsmen and we expect at all times to treat and help them in the same manner.

We also have a basketball team which we would be only too glad to enter into any games of league if possible. We are not champions at anything yet but we are here to be beaten. So let's help the clubs that are trying to help the city and sports.

Hoping that you will see your way to print this in your valuable papers and thanking you for past favors, we remain,

EDW. MacMILLAN, Manager.

CRIMSON AND TIGER SQUARE OFF IN ANNUAL FOOTBALL STRUGGLE

Both Teams Enter Game With All Regulars in Form---Army Meets Notre Dame at West Point---Other Important College Clashes on Today's Card

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harvard, recovered from the jolt given her last Saturday by Centre college, was the guest of Princeton today in the east's feature gridiron affair. The clashes of Army and Notre Dame at West Point; Nebraska at Pittsburgh; Lafayette at Pennsylvania; Maryland at Yale, and Cornell at Columbia, also shared considerable interest.

Both Princeton and Harvard went to today's game with their strongest elevens ready for the fray.

Princeton has defeated Harvard 11 out of 22 games played since 1877, and tied her three times, one of the ties being the 14-14 game at Cambridge last year. Since 1911, however, when football relations were renewed between the colleges after a lapse of 15 years, the Crimson has won five of eight games played and tied two. Princeton last beat Harvard in 1911, 8 to 6.

The Army eleven, according to reports from West Point, was stronger today in a point of attack than it was against Yale, and expects to avenge the defeat administered by Notre Dame last year. French, Army's backfield star, is out with an injury, it was announced.

Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh squad, one of the strongest of eastern teams, was expecting its hardest tussle of the the year against the Nebraskans. University of Pennsylvania, with several new faces in its line, had the dashing Lafayette eleven as its opponent.

Yale had its first string backfield men and a substitute rush line ready for Maryland. Captain Aldrich was slated for the left half position. O'Hearn and Blair, two of the bull dog's strongest regulars, were suffering from slight injuries and could not play. Coach Jones said he would give about 25 substitutes a chance in the game.

The Ithacans buoyed by their great victory over Dartmouth last Saturday met Columbia at the Polo Grounds here. It will be the ninth engagement of Columbia and Cornell elevens since 1890. Columbia had an entirely new combination to present against Cornell and Coach O'Neill said he believed he had strengthened the eleven's defensive powers a great deal.

Big Games in West

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Three of the four undefeated teams in the big ten were in action today, two of them playing each other. The Buckeyes invaded the Maroon's territory and big 10 fans throughout the conference territory eagerly watched this game.

Chicago is Ohio's strong remaining opponent for the conference title, while on the other hand, victory by Chicago would leave her with but one more serious contender in the championship race, Wisconsin, on Nov. 19, and a season of notable victories headed by that over Princeton.

Iowa appeared at Minneapolis for the game with Minnesota with 40 players from Iowa City, including the scrubs.

Northwestern and Purdue, tailenders, were to fight it out for cellar honors today at Lafayette, Ind.

Northwestern has three crippled stars and previous showing of the teams would indicate a victory for Purdue.

Nodtre Dame vs. Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Uncle Sam's cadets were called upon to face today one of the most dangerous football teams on the gridiron—Notre Dame. The Indiana team promised to carry the battle to the army through the medium of the forward pass, which has always been a keen rapier in the hands of Coach Rockne's men. Army was expected to rely largely on line plunges and end runs.

International Game

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—McGill university's football squad, having switched from Canadian to American college football in two weeks today meets Syracuse in the Memorial stadium. It was the first game scheduled between a United States and Canadian college football team in 41 years.

U. of Pittsburgh vs. Nebraska

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5.—The University of Pittsburgh football team looked for a tough tussle today, with the Nebraska team when they met in the first intersectional game in Pittsburgh this season. At the opening kickoff, Pitt was to go into the game without Quarterback Holloran and two others of its first string men—Bowser and McLean.

Marietta Plays B. C.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The elevens of Marietta and Boston college met at Braves Field today. Coach Griffiths of the Ohioans said he felt confident that Marietta would reverse the result of last year's game. The local collegians took the field crippled by casualties of earlier games.

Yale and Maryland Play

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Second string men predominated in the lineup of Yale in its contest today with Maryland university. The reserve strength will be test in the opening of the game but regulars are expected to have a hand in the battle before it is over. Clear, cold weather and a brisk wind greeted fans and players this morning.

The probable lineup:

YALE		MARYLAND
Hulman, le,		le, Young
Hilden lt,		lt, Nesbitt
McKay, lg.		lg, Brewer
Norris, c,		c, Tallock
Cross, rg.		rg. Gundry
Esselstyn, rt,		rt, Burger

FOR REORGANIZATION OF RACE COMMITTEE

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 5.—Reorganization of the American race committee which had charge of the selection of the Elsie, unsuccessful defender of the international fishing vessel championship cup is demanded by Mayor Percy Wheeler. The present members should resign, he thinks. "Men who know the bowsprit of a schooner from its stern" should hold their places, and ports other than Gloucester should be represented, the mayor asserts.

His views, announced at a meeting last night, will be pressed, he said today until a new order of things is obtained. The mayor declared; "We want no more Mayflower episodes," referring to the fact that the Mayflower of Boston, nominated as the American defender was disbarred. "This race should be open to all. The committee should be composed of master mariners and vessel owners with representation for Provincetown and Boston."

NEPONSET A. A. TO PLAY INDIANS

Boston, Mass.,
November 4, 1921.

Dear Sir;

Will you kindly insert the following:

The Neponset A.A. which will play the Indians on the Lowell Fair grounds Sunday is managed by Ray Sweeney and he has in his lineup some familiar faces who have performed in the past in Lowell.

Among them are McDonald, Carlson and Gorman of Y.D. fame. Thorson and Foster of Fordham, McLaughlin and Ferris of the South Boston K. of C. team of last year, Haggerty, last year's all-interscholastic quarter-back, Devine and Gormley of high school fame and others.

The Neponset Wanderers have refused to play this club in spite of persistent challenges for the reason that the Neponset A.A. is considered one of the strongest clubs in Greater Boston.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
RAYMOND L. SWEENEY.
Mgr. Neponset A.A.

This game was arranged as a benefit to Owen Nerney.

CADETS PLAY SHARP'S NOBLES

Tomorrow afternoon the O. M. I. Cadets will back up against the strong Sharf's Nobles on the North common. "Jack" Vaughn, Arthur White, "Jake" Cullen, Gigger Rogers and several other grid stars will be seen wearing Sharf's uniforms.

During the past week the Cadets have been drilling on some of Georgia Tech's famous hidden ball plays and aerial attacks. If these prove successful the "Nobles" will find the going very hard.

The game starts at 3 p. m

Germany a the only country which has formally abolished tipping.

LOWELL HORSEMEN BUY SOME NEW ONES

Lowell horsemen made some excellent buys at the speed sale held under the management of George McKinney, Charles Lockwood and Daniel McKinney at the Readville track. Not for 12 years have so many good ones been under the hammer. Fully 20 Lowell followers of the driving game attended the auction, and numerous purchases were clinched.

Some of the buys came to Lowell this morning, two more are due tonight or Sunday, and on Tuesday morning, if a certain deal is put through in the meantime, one of the best little "ladies" that ever traveled without hopples will arrive in Lowell with a mark of 2.13¼ or near there.

Ray Frost of Roxbury, formerly of Lowell and one of the judges at the last Golden Cove meet, has bought Bertolini, 2.11¼, a bay gelding nine years old, by Bertini. Frost also picked up Rita C., a bay mare. Bertolini cost $270 and Rita C. went under the hammer for $110.

A handsome bay colt about a year old, by Justice Brooks, also went to Frost to fill out his string. A half-century bought this one.

Clinton Coffin of Dracut came home with a fine animal, said to have cost him but little and one with a good pedigree.

Dan Fay purchased Monana, 2.25, aged four years, a bay gelding by Moko, the price being only $170. Fay brought him through Lowell last night stabling him in Nashua where he has winter quarters.

Afton G. Tilus, the real estate man, brings home the bacon with Anna Donna, a brown filly two years old, by Peter O'Donna, $170 being top price.

R. L. Clark got Helen Mortain, a bay mare, 7 years, by Earl of Chatham, for a $55 check.

Dr. H. H. Watson of Haverhill paid $220 for Lady Harvester, bay filly, 3 years old, by The Harvester.

Oscar Dewel and Isaac E. Wotten also made good purchases, Oscar going "half" with another buyer on a fancy horse with a fair record.

POLO NOTES

Going up.

Lowell's victory over Worcester last night pushed the club up a peg in the league standing.

Bob Griffith of the Lawrence team was a spectator at last night's game. He said he was doing a little scouting as Lowell plays in the down-river city tonight.

Owner Cronin of the Worcester team and Owner Daniels of Portland were at the game. Cronin came over with his team, but Daniels made the trip to call on Bob Hart, who has been laid up with a severe cold for the past week. He found Hart recovering and hopes to have him back in the lineup next week.

The playing of all members of the Lowell team was of a classy variety, and a continuance of such work will bring the team well up the ladder.

BOXING

well as in all other branches of sports is more productive of interest than the importation of out-of-town men, regardless of their class. This fact has been clearly demonstrated here during the past few weeks and the policy it is announced, will be continued.

The supporters of Benny Nelson, Billy Murphy, Johnny Avila and the other local boys turned out in large numbers the other night and the enthusiasm manifested was the most spontaneous here in many a day.

Lowell is certainly developing some artistic mitt wielders. Avila, Murphy and Nelson are truly promising performers. Nelson's defeat by Murphy while a setback was no disgrace. It was not because of Nelson being a poor fighter that he lost, but because Murphy is a much better workman. Both are bound to go higher on the pugilistic ladder.

Avila also showed superfine boxing ability. He resembles Benny Valger in action. Valger is noted as one of the country's leading defensive fighters. He always lets the other fellow do the leading, invariably sidestepping and popping his man as he comes forth. Avila, while not as finished as the New Yorker, has the same style. When the opening comes Avila, like Valger, is like a flash to grasp the opportunity and when he does go on the offensive he can launch a terrific attack.

Frank O'Dowd of the Acre would like nothing better than a match with Billy Murphy for the championship of the Acre. O'Dowd informed The Sun through his manager, Dan O'Heir, that he would meet Murphy at any place and any time. Manager O'Heir would like to meet the manager of Murphy at the latter's earliest convenience.

Perry who was defeated by Avila is a crafty ring general, using his head at all times. Only for his fine generalship he might have gone out early in the fray. He exercises good judgment and even in defeat he made a splendid impression.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The New England amateur cross country championship was held today over the Franklin park course of six miles. The Boston Athletic association and the Dorchester and St. Alphonsus clubs were represented by teams. The winning team will be chosen to represent New England in the national cross country championships at Pittsburgh, on November 19.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Rangers' 115 pound team would like to play the Wanderers 115 pound team a series of five games starting Sunday, Nov. 6, 1921, for the championship of the city. Answer through this paper.

The Bulldogs and the Fenwick Stars' football teams will play on the North common Sunday on the small grounds. They are 50-85 pound teams.

LOWELL IN FINE FORM

Plays Championship Polo and Defeats Worcester by 11 to 5 Score

For two periods last night's Lowell-Worcester polo game at the Crescent rink was a closely fought contest but in the final stanza local goals were rained by Goal Tend Jette and when the hickories were tucked away for the night the count stood 11 to 5, with Lowell on the long end.

Lowell turned in its best performance of the season. Each and every member played real championship polo, with Davies and Alexander coordinating to perfection on the rush line, Quigley in mid-season form on the offense and defense at centre, Morrison like a stone wall before Thompson and Taylor, and Blount turning in one of his characteristic games at goal.

But Lowell had to cut loose for the visiting lineup is of the all-star variety. Lee Taylor and "Legs" Thompson are a fast and hard driving pair of rushes, Hardy and Donnelly are strong blockers and Jette plays a good goal.

It was through no inferiority on Worcester's part that Lowell won, rather it was due to the superior play of the home crew. Many thrills were witnessed during the game. Thompson hooked the ball out of the air and into the net for a peachy goal. Alexandar and Davies also turned in some artistic shots.

The first period brought Lowell three goals and Worcester one. Davies netting two and Alexander and Thompson one apiece. Thompson opened the second session with one for Worcester. Davies got it back a little later. Then Taylor got his first and last of the night and the session ended 4 to 3. Alexander launched a splendid attack as the final session got underway, scoring three in a row. Thompson then broke the monotony with one, Alex. landed another, and Thompson came back with a beaut. Quigley came up on the rush line and hammered through a brace and Davies landed another for good measure. They were coming thick and fast, but the big horn ended further scoring. The lineup:

The Living Room in This Home Gets Sunlight From Three Sides

There is a fireplace in the dining room of this model home plan, furnished The Sun, by the Curtis Service Bureau, of Clinton, Ia.

There are seven rooms in this captivating little house, although it doesn't look it, and they are larger than average rooms, at that. The most important one—the living room—is 12 feet by 20 feet and occupies an entire end of the first floor, so that its grouped casements capture sunshine from three sides.

This room follows the English tradition in its panelled walls. Machine production places wall panelling within the reach of the builder of even a modest cottage. The Elizabethan type, such as is used in this little home, may be called the standard English panelling.

Plenty of Wall Space

In the middle of the outside wall of this room, the simple fireplace, with panelling for its over-piece, is flanked by pairs of casements. A long wall space opposite invites piano or davenport. The far end of the room consists of two permanent bookcases, with a built-in seat connecting them, under the casements.

The same excellent planning is evidenced in every room in the house. There is the desirable vestibule, the indispensable coat closet; the main stair hall, accessible from the kitchen directly, and communicating by means of the French doors with the living room on one side and dining room on the other.

The dining room has front location, with groups of casements on two sides. Its pleasing shape—a long rectangle with all four corners cut across, is due to built-in corner china cupboards at each side of the front pair of casements, a fireplace in a third corner, and the kitchen door in the fourth.

Provides an Alcove

The cutting off of this fourth corner makes a little alcove between kitchen and dining room that serves the same purpose as a pantry in eliminating noises and odors. One of the built-in dressers is in this location, equally convenient to kitchen and dining room.

There is an ironing board in a wall cabinet among the kitchen conveniences, also, and besides ample space for sink, drainboard, range, boiler and worktable, a folding breakfast table might be included. Only a cased opening separates the kitchen from the rear entry, an excellent place for the refrigerator and for receiving deliveries, and which is also the means of access to the basement. The small rear porch occupies a corner, so would require screening on only two sides to make it an outdoor workroom.

Four Bedrooms

There are four bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs. Besides the linen closet in the hall, each bedroom has its clothes closet. In the largest, a regular interior door—really a built-in chiffonier. A mirror door is an added convenience in one room, that hints of spring sewing as well. Each bedroom has a pleasant corner location, and promises cheerfulness and healthfulness in abundance of casements. Notice the pretty dormer in one room.

PAINT AND POWDER CLUB MEETING

The annual meeting of the Paint and Powder club was held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Meigs. Disappointment was expressed by the members when Miss Louise Jennison, the president of the club, who managed the vaudeville performance given last April, resigned her office. Miss Jennison gave a great deal of her time to the club last winter and used to advantage her experience gained as a member of the Idler club at Radcliffe. The club elected Mrs. James Abbott president for the coming year. As Miss Elizabeth Meigs resigned her position as secretary, Miss Leslie Hylan was given that office. Miss Margery Stover was re-elected treasurer.

To give a theatrical performance each year, the proceeds of which will be devoted to some worthy charity, is the aim of the club. After the performance last spring the Paint and Powder club was able to give $700 to the Lowell guild.

LUCY LARCOM CAMP FIRE GIRLS

At the meeting of the Lucy Larcom Camp Fire Girls at St. Anne's parish house Tuesday night the following officers were elected: President, Miss Emily Fraser; treasurer, Miss Hilda Pihl; secretary, Miss Helen Nudd; social committee, Miss Mildred Buzzell, chairman; ways and means committee, Miss Effie James, chairman; publicity committee, Miss Dorothy Bainbridge, chairman. The details on sewing evening will be attended to and the plays staged this season will be managed by the guardians, Miss Mae Buzzell and Miss Kelly. The home of Miss E. Crossly, 68 Humphrey street is the next meeting place.

LOOKS LIKE A MOVIE BUT IT ISN'T

THE LAST WORD IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

"Cancer Week" comes to an end tonight, but physicians and surgeons hope that the campaign will bear fruit in the weeks to come. A last-minute recital of pertinent facts in relation to the dangerous character of flesh wounds and sores is issued today by local physicians, who have been acting in conjunction with members of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, the statement reading as follows:

Any lump, especially in the breast.
Any irregular bleeding or discharge.
Any sore that does not heal—particularly about the tongue, mouth or lips.
Persistent indigestion with loss of weight.
Go immediately to a hospital or to a reputable physician if any of these signals are displayed and insist upon a thorough examination.
Don't wait to see if the condition will go away of itself.
Don't use patent medicines.
Don't allow advertising "Cancer Specialists" and "Quack Doctors" to treat you.
Don't be guided by anybody except a thoroughly competent physician.
Don't be ashamed to talk cancer. The right way is the only safe way.

WEEK DAY FAIR CLOSES TONIGHT

A supper and entertainment tonight brings to a close the three days' fair which has been conducted at the Y. M. C. A. by the ladies auxiliary. The supper tonight will be served from 5.30 until 7.

The sale yesterday afternoon and evening was reported as very brisk, in many instances it being necessary to rush fresh supplies to the various booths.

A musical program under the direction of Mrs. Rufus Corlew featured last night. Vocal selections by Miss Hazel Tuthill, readings by Miss Doris Yorke of Westford and piano selections and duets by Miss Charlotte Corlew and Clayton Cruthers were included.

This afternoon will be children's afternoon at which special features such as grab-bags, games and the like will be prominent. A special sale of dolls and children's toys at the Wednesday booth has been arranged. Piano selections by Beatrice Warner and Irma Carp, and a farce entitled "Kid Curlers" by four boys of the Middlesex county training school will be among the many numbers.

ARREST OF LOWELL BOYS IN NASHUA

Among the defendants who will appear before Judge Enright at the juvenile session of the district court next Friday are three boys, arrested yesterday, two charged with breaking and entering and larceny, and the other with larceny. Wilfred Gignere, 14 years old, of Hall street, and Sylvio Corignan, aged 14, of Moody street, were arrested at the railroad station in Nashua last night by Officer Ouellette at the request of the Tyngsboro police, who had sent reports of a break and a description of the youths to nearby cities and towns. It is alleged that the boys broke into the Tyngsboro cash market at Tyngsboro yesterday afternoon and stole a small sum of money and a quantity of various articles.

Much of the loot was found on their persons, the Nashua police say. The boys also admitted the break, according to the police of the New Hampshire city. They were returned to this city last night in charge of Officer Holt of Tyngsboro and Agent Richardson, of the Humane society, who is juvenile probation officer, was notified. He took custody of the youths until Friday.

The other boy who will face juvenile arraignment is George L. Fennell, aged 16, of Princeton street. He is alleged to have stolen a bicycle, the property of another boy, about two weeks ago. Since then Lieut. Maher and Sergt. Dwyer have been investigating the theft and yesterday afternoon took Fennell in custody.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PLANS TO CUT DOWN REPUBLICAN MAJORITY

Aim of Chairman Hull---Senator Walsh Sounded Keynote of Democratic Policy in New York---Mysterious Rumors Concerning Ex-President Wilson

(Special to The Sun.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—The democratic effort to cut down the big republican majority in house and senate is one of the topics of the day at the capitol. The meeting of the democratic national committee in St. Louis this week has brought the matter to the front and senators and members of congress are giving much thought and attention to the probable outcome of that conference.

The headquarters of the party in Washington are to be enlarged and will be the center of political activities. The democrats believe the landslide victory for republicans last year resulted largely from a vigorous campaign begun long before the country at large realized a campaign was under way. Now the democrats propose to pursue the same tactics and begin the work of the 1922 campaign this fall. The slowness of a republican congress to make good its promises, opposition to the policies advanced by the republicans in congress, and a general clamor against the way that party has conducted a national program, but not fulfilled its pledges will be a target for the opening guns. It is understood here that the democrats are hopeful of cutting down the majority in senate and house and that the congressional committee will take a big part in the preliminary campaign soon to be inaugurated, and that the hope of regaining governors in many states, that last year went to the republican fold, though formerly democratic or close, is even stronger in the democratic breast of the national committee. Anyhow, Washington is keenly alive to the fact that the election is but a year away, and that primaries loom up in the more immediate future. "Be prepared" is the slogan of that party at this moment, and little groups of democratic congressmen can be seen daily, discussing the best methods to pursue.

Senator Walsh as Democratic Leader

It will be recalled that Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a leader of the democratic side of the senate was selected by New York democrats last June to make the leading address, when theories, methods and a general outline of the democratic policy for 1922 was the topic under discussion. In fact, it was the Massachusetts senator who was selected by the New York City club to set the pace for the great campaign of 1922.

It was a significant move on the part of the influential New York club, to select a northern democrat as its chief spokesman, and was at that time regarded as a move to make converts in New England and the east. Moreover it put in the foreground of the nation's stage a powerful democratic senator who bitterly opposed the League of Nations, and many other of the so called Wilson policies. Still more notable was the fact that Mr. Walsh, although progressive to a marked degree, preached old fashioned Jeffersonian democracy. He is a devout Catholic and devoted to the cause of Ireland, the land of his immediate ancestors. Mr. Walsh is an orator of powerful arguments and eloquence. In talking in New York last June, he advocated clinging to the original precepts of the democratic party, and not be led into untried by-paths. He pleaded for straight old fashioned democracy. His keynote speech was received with tremendous favor by the club, and it's safe to say Mr. Walsh will be one of the leaders in framing a party policy for the coming campaign. At this moment all his time is given over to the tax bill now before the senate and to which, he as a member of the finance committee, has suggested numerous amendments, which though they failed adoption, under his name—republicans preferring to frame a bill with republican amendments only—have met with very general favor from the senate regardless of partisanship. Even now it may be possible a Walsh amendment will be adopted at the eleventh hour.

Chairman Hull in Favor

The selection of Cordell Hull of Tennessee as chairman of the national committee meets with favor here. Judge Hull served long in congress but went down to defeat in the landslide in 1920. He is the author of the income tax bill and was high in rank on the ways and means committee when he went out of office. Those of us who knew him well personally have great confidence in his ability and integrity. He is a quiet man who talks little but works much. A reader and thinker who cares but little for social affairs or club life. How the judge will enjoy the hustling life of a committee chairman is a matter of doubt, but there seems to be no doubt here in the minds of congressmen who served with him in the house, that he will devote his time and energy to the task put before him. Since his defeat for congress he has spent much time abroad studying the condition in Europe, and it has been counted a foregone conclusion among his former colleagues that he intended to run for re-election to his old seat in the house, when the 1922 campaign opens.

Wilson a Man of Mystery

The condition of former President Wilson is once more shrouded in mystery. Bulletins, or perhaps statements, would better describe them, have this week been issued by his physician Dr. Grayson, to the effect that although still confined to his bed, Mr. Wilson "is improving rapidly."

Not until Marshal Foch called at the Wilson home to pay his respects was it known to the outside world that Mr. Wilson had suffered another ill turn. But the marshal was informed, when he called that Mr. Wilson was ill, and under the order of his physician could receive no visitors, so the marshal left his card with messages of condolence.

But right on the back of that statement jumps the one that Mr. Wilson is expected to attend the opening of the disarmament conference and also take part in the memorial ceremonies at Arlington cemetery on Armistice Day, November 11th. Statements are likewise buzzing through the air to the effect that Mr. Wilson will soon break his long silence on political and international affairs, and will again come to the front in the approaching campaign.

In fact there are as many contradictory statements flying through the air at this moment, regarding Mr. Wilson's health and purposes, as there were a year ago, while he was still in office, but remaining invisible to the leaders of his party and the people of Washington in general.

Many Foreigners in Capital

Tourists visiting Washington just now are treated to unusual sights. For instance, shortly before the house adjourned yesterday, a long string of big automobiles coursed slowly through the capitol grounds, and peering from them with eager faces, were half a hundred or more Chinese delegates, attaches and secretaries who have just reached the city. They were chattering rapidly in their own language, pointing out buildings or views that attracted their attention, and laughing among themselves in a very amiable fashion. They were dressed in conventional manner after the fashion of this country, and I could but recall how short a time ago it was when Minister Wu Ting Fang and Madame Wu were familiar figures on the streets of the city dressed in native costumes of rare silk, heavy brocades and wearing little round caps, richly jeweled. In fact, the Japanese, Koreans, and Chinese members of the diplomatic corps, were, a few years ago, the "observed of all observers" at state reception, on the street and at their own official functions, for they carried out to the fullest degree possible here, the court rules and costumes of their own nations.

Now passers by see them riding through the city street with much freedom and attracting but little notice, unless in large groups.

The opening of the armament conference will bring together a motley assembly, with the white and the yellow races sharing all ceremony and influence on a fifty-fifty basis.

Congressman Rogers' Duties

On the broad shoulders of the Hon. John Jacob Rogers, of Lowell, member of congress from the 5th district, will fall the responsibilities of the house committee on foreign affairs through the approaching conference. Mr. Rogers is ranking member of that committee and will thus become its acting chairman, in the absence of Chairman Porter, who will be one of the American advisors by appointment of President Harding.

RICHARDS.

Why Dread Old Age?

It don't make much difference how old you are if you only keep in good health and are active. Many people appear older at 50 than others do at 70, to keep looking young you have got to enjoy good health, and do as little worrying as possible. Backaches, swollen joints and legs, disturbed sleep by being compelled to arise one or more times during the night are sure symptoms of kidney trouble, and should have immediate attention to avoid serious consequences. SEVEN BARKS, nature's remedy of roots and herbs, is one of the best remedies to take not only for affected kidneys, but for liver, stomach and heart troubles.

Middle-aged people realize that they cannot perform their work or move around as fast as formerly. The intestinal organs feel the effect of age and do not perform their work properly. The heart palpitates on the slightest exertion and the back aches after a day's work. The muscles and flesh get flabby, and the blood thinner than formerly, it is then you need a good tonic and bowel regulator—you cannot find a more reliable and efficient remedy for these conditions than SEVEN BARKS.

If you want to enjoy life, recover some of your youthful vigor and have the glow of health, get SEVEN BARKS of your druggist. Do not accept a substitute.—Adv

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

SATURDAY EVENING, Nov. 5, 1921

STORY OF POWDER HORN FOUND HERE ALMOST A CENTURY AGO

JOHN A. KELLEY, HOLDING POWDER HORN

Reading The Sun is something more than a pastime with a great many Lowell citizens. John A. Kelley, well known resident of West Third street, for many years an expert house painter and interior decorator, now retired from active work, is a daily reader of Sun items classed as "unusual"—items that, perhaps, arouse curiosity and excite more than ordinary attention. Mr. Kelley, always gets rare enjoyment, he says, from "something out of the ordinary."

The ex-painter was reading his favorite evening newspaper at his home, No. 64 a few nights ago when his quest for something "unusual" led him to this little item, tucked away in The Man About Town column:

"I am trying to locate an old-time family by the name of Farwell, that lived at one time near what is now Lowell. Who was Olive, wife of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford, prior to 1640?"

Mr. Kelley read and re-read the little item, and slowly spelled out the name "Farwell." His memory is excellent, and the name seemed somehow very familiar.

"Farwell!" he exclaimed, as he laid down The Sun and walked over to the mantel-piece.

"William Farwell, Ye 1775."

Mr. Kelley believes that this man Farwell, who undoubtedly once owned the horn, may be some relative of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford. He is anxious to find out if some member of the old family is still living, and would like to meet anyone at his home on West Third street, any day who can trace the ancestry of the Farwell family back to the days when William carved his name in this powder horn.

Story of the Horn

The history of this quaintly carved horn has never been told before, and is most interesting indeed, having to do with the early lives of settlers in this part of Massachusetts and especially those around the so-called "Fort Hill section" of what is now a great residential section of the City of Spindles.

John A. Kelley was born on old Market street, Lowell, just 83 years ago. He has been a painter all his life, and has done much work for large local corporations, notably the Merrimack mills. His record as an interior decorator and painter is also filled with remarkable works. He has painted the inside of St. Patrick's and St. Michael's churches. He was one of the very first to work on old St. Peter's church, when the venerable and greatly beloved Father Cruddon was leader of that parish.

Mr. Kelley's wife died some 16 years ago. No children are living, and Mr. Kelley resides with his two nephews, John and Charles Kelley, of the firm of Kelley Brothers, West Third street.

The story of the finding of the old powder horn is told with much descriptive detail by Mr. Kelley. His wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Duffy, went one fine morning nearly 100 years ago for a walk into the country. At that time Fort Hill territory was nothing but woods and pastures. As the couple climbed the hill, and about half way from the bottom, they nearly stumbled over an object that lay partially hidden amid tall grass, leaves and old sticks of wood. It was the old powder horn and it was in a fine state of preservation. Despite the fact that it must have lain on Fort Hill since the revolutionary war period, no part of it had suffered deterioration from the elements.

Wonderfully Carved

The horn today is a great curiosity in every way. It is covered with hand carvings, excellently done by someone well trained in drawing figures. There are carvings of Indians, fishes, rabbits, deer, eel, birds, frogs and fish on the bone. The largest drawing is that of an Indian entirely naked except for a breech cloth and a small set of feathers.

Upraised arm, tomahawk, expression of ferocity—all are there quaintly carved on the horn bone. Pictures of human hearts, square-shaped figures of remote origin, round objects meant for something not known in these days of "something new," appear before the eyes as the horn is slowly turned around in the hands. It is an object without doubt of great antiquity and historic value.

Mr. Kelley has no idea as to where the powder carrier might have come from, neither does he know how it came to be lying on the ground on the side of old Fort Hill, but he earnestly believes that some day it will be proved that the horn was carried by its owner, William Farwell, possibly during some of the skirmishes with Indians who frequented Fort Hill in days of yore.

The West Third street painter will be glad to show his interesting relic to any antiquarian interested in it, and repeat the story of its recovery from the wilds of the historic hillside.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

LOWELL CITY LIBRARY

Plans for Children's Book Week—New Quarters for Newspaper Files

"Children's Book Week" will be observed at the Lowell city library from Monday, Nov. 14 to Saturday, Nov. 19. All parents are urged to visit the library during the week.

In the upper room will be held an exhibition of the latest recommended children's books and attractive editions of the classics.

New quarters have just been arranged in the library basement for the bound volumes of Lowell newspapers, covering almost 100 years of publication. Library employes have been at work all the week getting the big room ready and placing shelves and large frames for the scores of bound volumes. Today the quarters were in shape for visitation, and all of the newspaper volumes were arranged in good order for quick finding. This room will undoubtedly be a popular place for those who like to "dig" back into old newspaper files.

The newspapers now on the shelves are numerous, indicating Lowell's progress from "four pages to twenty-two" and sometimes more. The names of most of the newspapers are familiar to present day readers, but there are some on the shelves almost forgotten in the rapid advance of time.

There are, for instance, excellent volumes of old copies of the Lowell Morning Times, the Advertiser, Le Supplement, the old Evening Star, Lowell Daily Journal and Courier (volumes 1849-1856), Daily Citizen & News, Morning and Evening Mail, The Courier, The Experiment, (volumes 1832-1833), published by Horatio H. Welt; Evening Democrat, Morning Herald (volumes of 1855), Morning Herald, issues of 1844; Daily News, Daily Courier, La Revell, La Revue de Lowell, La Republique, Le Journal, Saturday Free Press, N. E. Greek Messenger, La Verite, Daily Telegram, Sunday Telegram, L'Etoile, Sunday News, Centralville Sunday News and complete files of the Lowell Sun.

JOHN CONWAY DEAD

Well Known Patrolman Passed Away This Morning

John E. Conway, for many years a well known and respected officer of the Lowell police department, died this morning at St. John's hospital, after a lingering illness, aged 51 years. Patrolman Conway was born in this city Oct. 23, 1869, and received his education in the local schools. He was appointed a supernumerary officer Nov. 13, 1897, and was promoted to regular Oct. 23, 1899. During the past few years he had been patrolling the so-called "Flats" district on the day shift. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, Mrs. Della (Ryan) Conway; four daughters, Mrs. Alice Deporcher, Misses Elizabeth, Annabelle and Marion Conway, and two sons, William and John Conway. He was an esteemed member of the Massachusetts Police Protective association; Lowell Aerie, No. 223, F.O.E., and the C. S. Bunting club. The remains were removed to his late home, 4 Billerica street, by Undertakers O'Connell & Fay.

FOR PLAYGROUND PURPOSES

Park Board Recommends Purchase of Washington Park for Playgrounds

After Conference With Committee From Highlands Improvement Association

Temporary Shelter House Recommended for Shedd Park—Skating Plans

A vote by the park commission to recommend the purchase of Washington park for playground purposes was the result of a conference held last night with a committee from the Lower Highlands Improvement association. The association was represented by Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Rep. Adelard Berard and Louis J. Lord.

At a conference held last Saturday morning at which the municipal council, members of the park commission and a committee from the improvement association were present, the sentiment of the council seemed to be that the proper action in the matter was to await a recommendation from the park authorities. Although about a month ago the park commission deemed it inexpedient to secure any new playgrounds for the present they now say that circumstances have changed; hence their action last night.

A temporary shelter house, which could be used both as a dressing room and a refuge in bad weather, was recommended for Shedd park by Supt. Kernan. During the coming skating season one portion of the pond will be set off for a hockey rink and hockey will not be allowed elsewhere. This is a measure taken for the protection of ordinary skaters and for the convenience of all.

Knock-down bleachers for use on the baseball diamonds were also discussed and costs on these are being obtained. These can be taken down and put away during the winter season. They are now used by many colleges and athletic fields.

Three tree petitions were referred to the tree committee for consideration, as follows: Tree at 1 Allen street, petition of Lawrence Dziegiel; tree at 71 Dover street, petition of Walter D. Miller; tree at 55 West Sixth street, petition of J. A. Vincent. A tree at 74 Bowers street, request of Salome Riner, was referred to Supt. Kernan. Permission to remove a tree in Hovey street at his own expense was given J. A. Weinbeck, and Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, of the high school commission, was granted permission for the removal of a tree in Anne street on the ground that it interferes with the new high school. A tree in George street at the First Baptist church which is considered dangerous, was ordered removed. A suggestion contained in a letter from Joseph Knopf that the commission build a suitable and ornamental building on the South common which he would lease for the sale of soft drinks and eatables, was not favorably acted upon by the commission on the ground that their policy in this direction is not yet defined.

THE DRUNKEN MOTORIST

Question of Dealing With Drunken Auto Drivers Discussed by Judges

The question of dealing with drunken operators of motor vehicles and the establishment of a penalty to fit the crime will be introduced by Judge Enright of this city at the meeting of the Massachusetts district court judges at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, this afternoon.

The local judge stated from the bench at the district session this morning that he hoped this all-important question would be settled in some decisive form at the session this afternoon. Judge Enright had previously stated he recently interviewed the assistant district attorney of Middlesex county and obtained from him the views regarding this particular offense maintained by Judge Brown of the superior court at Cambridge.

Judge Brown, the local justice was told, does not impose a direct sentence in cases where it is the first offense and there is no danger either to property or to person caused.

Judge Enright did not appear satisfied with the superior court justice's opinion and stated: "Of course Judge Brown is entitled to his opinion and I'm entitled to mine. Campaigns are being launched by newspapers seeking jail conviction for these menaces to the highways and the commission has repeatedly asked us to impose direct sentence. Many licenses are being revoked for this very offense. A drunken auto driver is a menace to the public on one hand. However, on the other hand, if he is a good, reputable citizen and it is his first offense a direct sentence would be somewhat drastic. Anyway, I'm going to find out this afternoon how the other judges of district courts feel about it."

The judge then stated he would be away next week and ordered the case of Philias Rochette, charged with drunkenness and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, continued to Nov. 19 so that he may be back on the bench to deal with this particular case which the court continued last week, that he might interview the district attorney.

SEC. FALL SENDS A SUPERPOWER REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

Gigantic Scheme for Consolidating the Generation and Distribution of Electric Power in Region Between Boston and Washington

Secretary of the Interior Fall is transmitting today to President Harding the completed report of what has been popularly called the superpower survey, an engineering study conducted by the United States geological survey. The appropriation act under which congress provided for this work refers to it as "the special investigation of the possible economy of fuel, labor and material resulting from the use in the Boston-Washington region of a comprehensive system for generating and distributing electricity to transportation lines and industries." Congress expected this intensive study to be completed within the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, and in compliance with this expectation the manuscript report was in the hands of the director of the geological survey on July 1. The published report, with its wealth of technical information in the form of statistical tables, text figures and maps, has now been issued from the government press—a record of promptness that is gratifying to the public.

The superpower project makes its appeal to the general public as a means of saving coal and of increasing the productivity of labor. The nation's business demands greater and cheaper production and better and cheaper transportation, and the electrification of industries and railroads is the answer to that demand. To connect all the large generating plants —both steam and water power—in one great system means more and cheaper electric current, because each ton of coal will be used to the best advantage and our idle rivers will be made to turn wheels, especially in the regions farthest removed from the coal fields.

Looking ahead to 1930, with the increased demand for power that can then be reasonably expected, the total coal saved annually under the unified system will be 50 million tons. Under motor operation the industries could save $190,000,000 annually in their power bill and could make a greater output of product. The ordinary citizen also ought to profit directly by the superpower system because it promises a reduction of one cent a kilowatt hour in the first cost of the current as put on the transmission lines. Cheaper electricity and more of it will bring comfort to the home as well as efficiency to the workshop, even though the reader may search this engineering report in vain for any basis whatever for the pleasant vision of electric-heated homes throughout our land. Superpower does not stand for the impossible but only for the wider application of practical engineering and sound economics.

The North Atlantic coast region to which it is proposed to supply more and cheaper electric current was selected for this study because its industries and railroads have the maximum requirements for power. Unfortunately, this region is not blessed with the abundance of water power that is possessed by the Pacific coast states, so that the plan of power production includes large steam plants at tidewater or on rivers large enough to furnish sufficient condensing water and hydro-electric power plants wherever they can be economically built on the rivers within the zone or within transmission distance. After 1930 cheap power from the proposed St. Lawrence improvement and from additional capacity at Niagara falls may be available for western New England and New York state, which will benefit greatly by the development of these new sources of energy.

ANOTHER NEW DISEASE

Man in District Court Was Suffering From "Food Smelling Sickness"

Sick of smelling food while working in a local restaurant, a man, yet young in years but apparently aged due to neglect and force of circumstances, faced the bench in District court this morning and told Judge Enright he had not eaten for four days. He had been picked up on Middlesex street early this morning and taken to the station as a suspicious person, the police alleged, as he was a window cleaner by trade, he told the court, but had recently worked in a local restaurant where he contracted this supposed "food smelling sickness." And not only did he relate his sad hunger plight to the court but he also told of a man for whom he recently worked stealing $50 from him, all the money in the world he possessed. The judge was very much impressed with the man's story and called a lawyer to the bench asking him to look into the case. The attorney promised to aid him and told him to go to his office where he could tell him all the particulars regarding the alleged theft.

Then ways and means of giving the suspicious person something to eat were being devised when the same attorney withdrew a dollar bill from his pocket and handed it to a court officer instructing him to get the man something to eat and then accompany him to his office. The lawyer's kind act elicited much favorable comment.

STILL INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF DEATH

How Edward J. Dillon, machinist, and 50 years old, lately a resident at 41 Rock street, met injuries that caused his death at St. John's hospital Thursday night, has not yet been determined by the police. However, the inspectors investigating the case, called to the attention of the police by Medical Examiner Dr. Thomas B. Smith yesterday, have learned several facts that lead them to believe Dillon sustained his fatal injuries when he fell down a flight of stairs at the Rock street address last Sunday night.

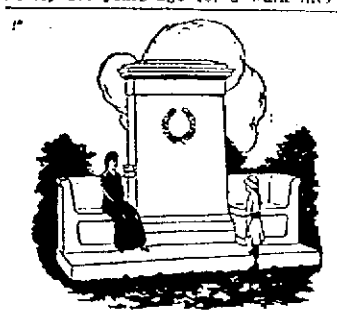

He was unconscious when removed in the ambulance from the house to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness, hospital attaches state.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the many friends and neighbors, also the employes of the Lawrence hosiery, who with their many acts of kindness, flowers and spiritual bouquets, helped to lighten my sorrow during the sickness and death of my sister, Sabina Mooney.

CRAIG CONFERS WITH BRITISH

Ulster Premier in Conference With Lloyd George and Commons Leader

Claims Nothing Will be Settled Behind Backs of Ulstermen

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, had a long interview with Prime Minister Lloyd George at the latter's official residence soon after his arrival today. Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, also was present.

After Sir James left the prime minister's residence, he was quoted by a representative of the Belfast Telegraph as stating that he had called on Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer, as a result of an invitation received today. Sir James, according to the newspaper representative's version, added:

"I have arranged that if and when Ulster's interests are reached in the Irish conference, all the Ulster representatives will be asked to attend. In the meantime nothing will be settled behind our backs."

It was announced that the week-end party at Chequers Court, Mr. Lloyd George's country home, would consist only of the immediate members of his family, since he was extremely tired after a very busy week.

IRELAND AS AN ASSOCIATE NATION

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—Desmond Fitzgerald today contradicted several reports emanating from London relative to the basis of agreement said to have been reached at the London conference.

It is estimated in these quarters, however, that a formula has been agreed upon, bridging that difficulty, whereby Ireland would not be designated as a British dominion but as an "associate nation." It is further stated that a solution of the Ulster problem must come, if it comes at all, through Ulster's recognition of the principle of unity in Ireland.

It developed today that the report made public yesterday from Belfast to the effect that all the Sinn Fein prisoners in the Ballykinlar internment camp near that city, numbering about 1700, had been released was erroneous. The giving out of the report, it seems, was based on the release of a number of prisoners from this camp owing to congestion there, but no general freeing of the interned men at Ballykinlar occurred.

GREAT ACTIVITY TODAY AT ELECTION BOARD'S OFFICE AT CITY HALL

The election commissioners' office was a busy place in the late morning hours today, when 19 of the candidates at the coming primary appeared to file their papers, among them Samuel Scott, candidate for mayor. When the office closed at 12.30, 108 candidates had filed, four for mayor, 36 for councilor at large, 48 for ward councilor and 20 for school committee.

Three new candidates took out papers today, all for councilor at large. Tyler A. Stevens, Park street, who will be remembered as a prominent member of the city government under the old form of charter, being at one time president of the common council, and who has always taken a keen interest in public affairs, was one of the number. Edward F. Purcell, the contractor, residing at 280 Fairmount street, and John J. McAuliffe of 87 Linden street, a young man of prominence in fraternal circles, also entered the contest.

Late yesterday afternoon James J. Roddy, 19 Chestnut square, took out papers for councilor in ward 2, and Dr. Patrick J. Meehan, 253 Appleton street registered for school committee.

Those who have filed papers since the list was published are as follows:

For mayor, Samuel Scott.

Councilor at large—James J. Gallagher, Patrick H. Grady, James J. Flanagan, Albert Bergeron, Michael F. O'Brien, Jr., John J. Townsend, and Stewart C. Guline.

Ward 3—Ward councilor—Louis W. Richard, Louis J. Lord, Donald M. Cameron; ward 4, Fred A. Sailler; ward 5, Joseph C. Clark; ward 6, Robert J. Laird; ward 7, George T. Hobden, Arthur Genest, Cornelius F. Crowlin; ward 8, George Tyrrell.

School committee—Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Howard D. Smith, Matthew D. Doyle and William B. Rigby.

Lots of New Talent

In glancing over the lineup for the municipal primaries it would seem that the advent of the new form of charter not only has reawakened the political aspirations of many of our old-timers but has brought forth a considerable flock of new talent from which selections might be made that would, with the leavening influence of a few of the more experienced candidates, give us a city government calculated to satisfy the public demand for a different sort of administration of the city's affairs; a demand which seemed to find emphasis in the recent overthrow of the commission form of government.

Passing over the mayoralty list for the moment, we find in the councilor groups a number of young men who have already demonstrated some ability in public affairs or have the training and other qualifications necessary for successful tenure of public office. Many of the older candidates rendered capable service in past city governments and may be considered strong candidates for public favor in the present instance. Doubtless a large proportion of the candidates will conduct active outdoor campaigns as the primary date approaches and others will work along other lines. The public is certain to have an opportunity of judging their fitness before the votes are cast.

Only two members of the present school board are candidates at the coming primary, as far as can be learned at the present time. There are plenty of others, though, who are willing to attempt the administration of the school department, and it seems that in this case, also, it will be possible to choose

Bar Association Would Disbar Him as Result of Supreme Court Decision

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The council of the Middlesex Bar association voted today to bring disbarment proceedings against Nathan A. Tufts, who was removed from office as district attorney of Middlesex county by the supreme court recently. The grievance committee which had unanimously recommended action against Tufts was instructed by the council to bring a petition for disbarment and was given full powers in the matter.

NATHAN A. TUFTS

The question of disbarment proceedings was considered by the grievance committee soon after the supreme court found Tufts guilty of using his office for improper purposes. Several meetings were held at which Tufts and his counsel were heard. Later Attorney General J. Weston Allen, who instituted the removal proceedings in the supreme court, was heard.

IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Edward L. Fickett is Charged With Larceny From Lowell Men

Edward L. Fickett of Lincoln, formerly treasurer of the Automobile Finance and Sales company, agents for the Kenworthy motor cars, with headquarters on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, was held for the grand jury by Judge Enright in the district court today, on a charge of larceny. His bail, which was furnished, was set at $5000. The case was heard in the local court last Monday. The trial as a lengthy and complicated one and the court at the time reserved decision until today. The larceny charge had arisen from a loan obtained in this city last February.

Fickett, as treasurer of the company, it is alleged, borrowed $11,783.84 from David W. Dewar, a local business man, on a promissory note, the latter obtaining the money from the Old Lowell National bank. As collateral, a bill of sale for six automobiles was given. During the trial it was shown that three of the cars named on the bill of sale given the local bank were also included among automobiles named in a bill of sale given the Metropolitan Trust company of Boston, when a loan was obtained from that institution shortly after. The judge today stated he had thoroughly investigated the case and felt satisfied a fault had been committed.

ANOTHER BIG REAL ESTATE TRANSFER

Another big real estate transaction took place in this city during the past week, when Adolphe Lamontagne, the Merrimack street furniture dealer, sold his property numbered 646 Merrimack street, to Adolphe Delisle, of the Lowell pharmacy.

The property consists of a four-tenement building with a large store on the street floor, and 3295 square feet of land. The building is assessed for $6600, while the assessment on the land is $11,550, making a total assessment of $18,150.

THE SHOOTING OF LOUIS SINASIS

An inquest into the circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting of Louis Sinasis by Officer William L. Keegan in a Dummer street coffee house Saturday night, Oct. 8, during what was said to be a row among card players, was held by Judge Fisher in the district court building today. Among the witnesses who testified was Dr. Thos. B. Smith, local medical examiner. It will be remembered Officer Keegan shot Sinasis after the latter refused to heed the policeman's commands to drop a revolver he was holding pointed at the officer.

TOKIO ADVISES U. S. DELEGATES

Official Word of Hara's Death Received in Washington by Jap Embassy

Murderer is Son of Prominent Soldier—Slayer Was Political Fanatic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Takashi Hara, premier of Japan, was stabbed at 7.25 yesterday and died soon afterward, the Japanese embassy here was advised today by the Tokio foreign office, in the first word of the assassination to reach Washington from the Japanese government.

All Japanese social functions attendant on the forthcoming conference, however, have been postponed.

Whether the death of the Japanese premier might affect plans for the armament within the Japanese delegation or otherwise, was a question to which an answer was looked for today.

The embassy communication said Viscount Uchida, foreign minister in the Hara cabinet, had been made acting premier but gave no details as to the assassination.

The message was received in uncoded form, but its filing time indicated that it had experienced considerable delay.

Nations Express Horror

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination yesterday of Takashi Hara, the premier, poured into Tokio today from the capitals of virtually all nations. The attack on M. Hara was made by a demented youth, and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in the political rancor which actuated bitter assaults upon M. Hara and his government in the recent past.

Viscount Uchida, former Japanese minister to the United States and foreign minister in M. Hara's cabinet since 1918, has assumed the post of acting premier, pending a possible reconstruction of the government.

Princeton Cheated Out of Early Score By Freak Play—Open Game Features Play

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Palmer stadium was filled to capacity when the annual football game between Harvard and Princeton began. A nipping high northwest wind blew down the field but there was the usual enthusiastic cheering and the crowd of 52,000 soon forgot the cold sweep of the wind.

The Harvard squad came on the field shortly before 1.30 and after running and punting retired.

The Crimson men were followed a few minutes later by the Princeton team, who were given a wild cheer as they came on the field.

Princeton won the toss and elected to defend the north goal with a gale of wind at its back. This forced Harvard to kick off and Hubbard drove the ball to Princeton's 10-yard line where Lourie ran it back to his 37-yard line before he was run out of bounds.

Princeton in three attacks on Harvard's line gained but six yards and Lourie punted, the wind carrying the ball for a touchback. The Crimson put the ball in play on its 20-yard line. Owen made two yards through Baker. Owen picked up another two yards at centre. On the third down, Fitts punted out of bounds, at midfield. The stiff wind held the Harvard back's drive to a minimum gain. On Princeton's first lineup, Cleves broke through the line for a five-yard gain and Garrity made it first down for Princeton on Harvard's 36-yard line. Garrity again split between Brown and Clark for a three-yard gain, but offside play caused imposition of a five-yard penalty. Cleves failed to gain in an end run at Macomber's position.

Accident Prevents Score

On the next line up, a forward pass, Lourie to Snively, brought the ball to Harvard's 30-yard line. Cleves gained for Princeton and it was declared a first down on the Crimson 20-yard mark. The Crimson eleven spread out across the field and Lourie hurled a long forward pass which was caught by Stinson a foot from the Crimson line. As the latter turned to run for a touchdown, he crashed into the goal post directly at his back and the force of the collision made him drop the ball, which rolled over the line. The play thus developed into an incompleted forward pass behind the goal line and Harvard put the ball in play on her 20-yard line.

Harvard in a relayed pass made two yards around Stinson's end, gained two more in a line plunge and then Fitts punted out of bounds and near midfield. The ball was brought back, however, and Princeton penalized for roughing the punter. Harvard got a first down on its own 34-yard line. Gilroy twisted his ankle in the play and the game was delayed while he received medical attention.

Tigers Penalized

From a fake formation Buell pierced Princeton's center for a yard and a repetition of the formation Fitts made it first down in a broken field run between Baker and Hooper on Harvard's 45-yard line. For the third time the deception formation was used Fitts gaining four yards between Morgan and Keck. Gilroy pulled down Fitts after the latter had gained three yards more on the same play. Buell plunged through Princeton's center for another yard. Owen made it first down over Wittmer on Princeton's 45-yard line.

Stinson spilled Fitts in the latter's charge at right end of the Tiger line. A forward pass to Fitts gained 10 yards, and then Fitts ran up the field to the Tigers' 20-yard line before he disappeared under a mass of Princeton tacklers. Owen made a yard through the middle of the Princeton line. Owen on a delayed pass, was spilled by Baker without gain. From the 25-yard line Buell tried a drop kick but the wind carried it to one side of the goal posts and the Tigers opened an attack from their own 20-yard line. Garrity gained a yard in a line plunge and Princeton was again penalized five yards for offside play. Garrity regained the five yards.

First Period No Score

Garrity again knocked out three yards, Lourie punted and Buell made a fair catch on Harvard's 36-yard mark. A Harvard line plunge gained three yards and then Buell shot a forward pass to Fitts, who ran to mid-field before he was upset by Gilroy. Owen made two yards through Captain Keck, but lost five yards for offside play. Buell took Owen's quick forward pass, but was forced out of bounds with a gain of but a yard, Wittmer driving the Harvard catcher over the sideline. Fitts, aided by excellent interference, swept around Princeton's right end to Princeton's 42-yard line.

Owen made it first down for Harvard on Princeton's 38-yard line with a smash between Keck and Morgan, and the first period ended with this play. Score, end first period: Harvard 0; Princeton 0.

Second Period

Owen gained three yards before Morgan stopped his plunge. A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, on which the latter ran 12 yards before he was forced out of bounds, gave the Crimson a first down on Princeton's 20-yard line. Owen made four yards before Wittmer stopped him from a forward pass formation. Again the Crimson lined up with its deceptive triple threat formation and after what appeared to be a misunderstanding of signals, Owen, aided by a fine line charge, swept past Hooper for a first down on Princeton's five-yard line. He appeared to be on the way to a touchdown when Wittmer and Garrity smashed him with a double tackle. Owen was so badly shaken by the play that he was obliged to leave the game, temporarily at least.

Centre Wittmer of Princeton also was injured in the terrific clash of the two teams, but finally limped to his place at centre. Jenkins took Owens' place in the Harvard backfield and with a first down on Princeton's five-yard line, the ball was fumbled and Fitts finally recovered it on the Tigers' 15-yard line. Jenkins, in a run across the field, failed to gain at Stinson's end. Buell attempted a forward pass which was knocked down by Captain Keck. On the fourth down, Buell, standing on Princeton's 25-yard line, prepared to kick a field goal. After holding the ball several seconds he hurled a long forward pass which fell dead behind the Princeton line and it was Princeton's ball on her own 20-yard line. Lourie, in a sweeping end run around Crocker, made it first down on Princeton's 33-yard line at the edge of the field.

Garrity was forced out of bounds for a yard gain. Lourie then attempted an end run at Macomber but he was smothered for a loss of a yard. Cleaves cut through the right side of the Harvard line for three yards. He was hurt in the melee and required the attention of the Princeton trainer.

When play was resumed, it was fourth down and a yard to gain on Princeton's forty yard line. Lourie punted to Buell, who made a fair catch on Harvard's 25-yard line. Jenkins fumbled the pass on the Crimson first line up and lost a yard in an attempted end run. Fitts then got off a booming punt to Princeton's 25-yard line where Lourie caught and ran it back 13 yards before being forced out of bounds.

From a tandem formation, Cleaves failed to gain at the right side of the Harvard line. Garrity pierced Captain Kane for four yards and on a repetition of the play at the other side of the line, made it first down for Princeton at exactly mid-field. Lourie slipped through Tierney for four yards before Coburn pulled him down.

Cleaves, in an off tackle drive, made a first down on Harvard's 35-yard line, being run out of bounds by Buell and Jenkins. Cleaves then hammered out three yards at Harvard's right tackle. Centre Wittmer of Princeton was again knocked out and required attention. He was finally patched up and went into the game again.

Princeton was penalized two yards for extra time out as a result of the delay. Cleaves lost two more when he was tackled before he could make a forward pass. Crocker spilled Lourie after the latter had made seven yards and it was the Tigers' ball with two yards to gain on the Harvard 25-yard line. Baker dropped back to Harvard's 30-yard line and tried for a field goal. The ball rolled over the Crimson goal line and the Crimson put it play on her 20-yard line.

Fitts fumbled the ball on the first lineup and after a wild scramble, Garrity secured the ball for Princeton on Harvard's 29-yard line.

Lourie tried a cross field run and lost a yard in the experiment. Macomber, knocked down Lourie's forward pass. Cleaves made three yards past Kane, and Baker on the fourth down, standing on Harvard's 35-yard line, again failed at a field goal. Harvard resumed play from her 20-yard line. Coburn carrying the ball, netted two yards. A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, made it third down with a foot to gain after Captain Keck, with a vicious tackle, spoiled what appeared to be the beginning of a long run. A second forward pass, Buell to Kane, made it first down on Harvard's 40-yard mark. A line plunge was good for one yard.

Time was taken out again for Wittmer. He resumed play, however. A third forward pass, Buell to Fitts made it first down for Harvard on Princeton's 46-yard line. Gilroy broke up another forward pass by crashing into the Harvard receiver as he was about to pick the ball out of the air. Buell then hurled a 30-yard forward pass which went as uncompleted when it sailed beyond Croker's reach.

A forward pass, Buell to Jenkins, fell to the ground dead. Gilroy upsetting the Crimson catcher. Fitts then punted over the Princeton goal line and the Tigers put the ball in play from their 20-yard line. Garrity hurled himself into the centre of the Crimson line and was hurled back. Lourie was run out of bounds by Macomber after a four-yard gain. From a tandem formation Cleaves tried the other end of the Harvard line and he, too, was run out of bounds with a gain of only a yard. Lourie punted to Harvard's 43-yard line where Jenkins made a fair catch for the Crimson. Buell tried to skirt Stinson's end and lost two yards just as the second period ended. Score: Harvard 0, Princeton 0.

Fines for Dry Law Infractions Tip the Financial Scales at $500

Fines aggregating $500 were imposed by Judge Enright in district court today on alleged violators of the prohibition act. They were the result of recent raids made by the police liquor squad headed by Sergeant Michael Winn.

Peter Andrews, said by Deputy Downey to have been a second offender, having paid a $100 fine two years ago for liquor keeping, was fined $150. He appealed and was held in $300 bail. The police testified to having purchased a bottle of Jamaica ginger from his store on Broadway two weeks ago. The fluid had been analyzed and found to be intoxicating, a certificate showed. Counsel for the defendant argued that Jamaica ginger is not necessarily intoxicating but the court stated he was satisfied the analysis had proved otherwise.

George Marcas, of Cross street, for keeping liquor with the intent to sell it, was fined $150. He paid. Sergeant Winn stated that a still, and a small quantity of moonshine was confiscated on his premises last month.

A plea of guilty was entered by Joseph Freitas, of West Union street, to a charge of keeping. About two weeks ago moonshine was seized here, the police asserted. He paid a fine of $100.

The next to feel the teeth of the law was Joseph Nadoly, a Fayette street storekeeper. Officer Kenney testified that here they seized a gallon and a quart of moonshine cleverly hidden in a hole in the wall. Nadoly was fined $100 and although it took him considerable time to decide whether he would appeal or not, he finally paid. Mrs. Nadoly testified the moonshine was for personal use.

Following the seizure of several cases of home brew in a house on Aiken street a few days ago, Joseph N. Bedard was arraigned for liquor keeping. Pending the usual analysis he was held in $300 bail to November 19.

at first regarding the identity of the youth at whose hands Premier Hara fell but it became known today that the assassin was a son of a former member of the samurai, or soldier class constituting the lower nobility under the Japanese feudal system, who had been a man of importance during the restoration period. The son, it appears, was of an erratic nature and is regarded as a political fanatic. He was arrested immediately after the stabbing. Detective Tsunajima, who was escorting Premier Hara, was badly cut on the arm and hands in disarming the assassin.

To Elect New Premier

It was generally assumed that the designation of Viscount Uchida as premier, was only a temporary expedient in the emergency and considerable speculation as to the probable new premier is voiced in today's Tokio newspapers. The probabilities, according to the newspaper views, appeared to point to Baron Kenjiro Den, governor general of Formosa, as the selection for the premiership.

Meanwhile the elder statesmen are likely to hold a conference shortly to consider the policy to be pursued as a result of the tragedy, the Asahi Shimbun says today. It is known that Marquis Satonji is on his way to Tokio from Kioto, possibly in this connection. The Nichi Nichi Shimbun says it understands the cabinet will continue to function pending its reorganization probably calling a cabinet council for Nov. 7, the date previously arranged for consideration of the budget for the fiscal year.

Unfortunate, Says London

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Public interest in the assassination of Premier Hara of Japan was intensified in London by consideration of the influence his removal might have upon Japan's attitude toward the Washington conference. Details of the crime are meagre.

The tragedy was described by the Daily Mail as "a grave misfortune on the very eve of a conference where it was believed M. Hara's steadying influence would be on the side of conciliation and peace."

ARMAND FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT

That he enlisted in the Canadian army five years ago and did not return to Lowell until about a year ago and since then had forgotten all about paying twenty-eight dollars restitution in an alleged larceny case, was the story told Judge Enright today by Armand Robillard, arrested last night on a capias. The probation officer stated that the defendant was found guilty of larceny in 1916 and ordered to pay $25 for restitution and expenses. This he failed to do. The court exercised leniency and told Robillard he could have a month or more if he wanted to pay the money. The defendant said he was eager to settle.

John Szewiczyk, in a continued non-support case, was placed on probation for six months.

A drunken offender was given a two months' suspended sentence to the house of correction, while another was given three months when the court learned he was already on probation from the superior court.

a very acceptable body. What is worrying many of the male candidates is the sentiment expressed in many quarters that it would not be a bad idea to elect some of the women who have entered, the argument being that the women are very much interested in the schools, and that affairs might be handled more satisfactorily if a little womanly influence were felt occasionally. However that may be, every woman elected means one less place for a man's occupancy, and some are inclined to resent the encroachment, as they regard it.

Of course the mayoralty campaign is of necessity the most interesting feature of the election, and more discussion is devoted to that than to any of the other offices. All the avowed candidates are getting into action as rapidly as possible, and it promises to be a hot campaign. It is doubtful if any new campaign stunt can be invented for about everything possible has been tried in the past with varying success, but the public may rest assured that its appetite for politics will be satiated before the January inaugural.

The list of candidates who have already entered the fray is as follows:

Dennis J. McCarthy, well known poet, addressed the students and faculty of Notre Dame Academy yesterday at their regular monthly lecture.

Mr. McCarthy gave a short but very interesting lecture upon poetry in general touching some of the high lights of literature. He read several exquisite poems of his own composition, all of which were highly enjoyed by his audience.

While in the city Mr. McCarthy was the guest of Mr. Henry T. Gilday, 32 Varney street.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS SPELLACY

Miss Spellacy, a member of the St. Elizabeth branch of the Irish National Foresters, was given a great send off at A.O.H. hall Thursday evening when she was presented a certificate of passage to Ireland and a purse of gold. She came here to relatives nearly a year ago, after enduring the hardships of the rebellion in the County Clare. The presentation was made by Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan. The committee in charge included Miss Mary Dillon, Miss Maria Markham, Miss Bergen and J. L. Handley, chief ranger of the O'Neil Crowley branch. Refreshments and an entertainment followed the presentation.

MISS McPHERSON HONORED

A very pretty shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox on Chambers street, in honor of the coming marriage of her sister, Miss Marion McPherson, who is soon to become the bride of Mr. George Lyons, a popular employe of the Saco-Lowell shop. The bride-to-be was presented a beautiful mahogany library table. The feature of the evening was the "mock marriage," the Misses Tarpy and Bray as bride and groom and Kitty Towey and Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox as witnesses. The train-bearer for the bride was Miss Zeta Dowd. There were piano selections by Misses Marion Cashman and Zeta Dowd and Master "Buddee" Fox. Solos were sung by the Misses Alice Spillane, Maybell Lyons and Anna Mahan. Kitty Reardon, who has just returned from Mecca, did her new oriental dance. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the bride-to-be the best of luck in her coming marriage.

TEWKSBURY BOY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Harold C. Greenough, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Greenough of Tewksbury, was instantly killed last evening in an automobile accident, which occurred in South Tewksbury, while Daniel O'Neil, son of the owner of the car, who was at the wheel; Richard O'Neil and Clifford and Charles Greenough, who were also in the car, escaped with slight injuries.

The accident occurred on South street at a point near Silver lake, while the boys were delivering milk in a touring car owned by Police Officer Patrick O'Neil of the town. According to the boys' story, Daniel O'Neil, who was at the wheel, swung his car to the edge of the road in order to avoid striking a dog, and when the machine struck the gravel surface, it turned turtle, pinning the driver to the ground. Witnesses of the accident say that the machine was not going at an excessive rate of speed when it turned over. Dr. William A. Buck of Wilmington gave first aid to the injured, while the body of O'Neil was being removed to a morgue in Wilmington, where it was viewed later by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith.

HANDSOME GAVEL FOR COMMANDER

Commander John J. Garvey of Chelmsford post, 242, American Legion, was presented a handsome gavel trimmed with the national colors, by the ladies' auxiliary to the post at a reception given by the women to the legionaires in Chelmsford town hall Thursday evening. The presentation was made by Mrs. John Vinal, president of the auxiliary. The boys of the post first attended the business meeting of the ladies and later sat as their guests at a supper served in the basement of the hall. There were speeches after the supper by Commander Garvey, Vice Commander Lee McEnaney, Adjt. John Johnson, and Past Commander Sidney Perham. Co-operation between the post and the auxiliary was the keynote in the commander's remarks, and he also urged the women to redouble their efforts in securing new members. The Honey Boys quartet of Lowell offered a number of selections, as did Ittie Doris York of Graniteville. The latter also contributed a series of readings. Community singing and "The Star Spangled Banner" brought the affair to a close. Mrs. Sidney Ferguson sat at the piano. The committee in charge of the reception consisted of: Mrs. Harriett Sweetser, chairman; Mrs. Hazel Silk, Mrs. Addie Carl, Mrs. Marion Johnson, Mrs. Alice Rebarge, Mrs. Dorothy Russell, Mrs. Luella Lakin and Miss Mary Garvey. They were assisted by Mrs. Jennie Murphy, Mrs. Bessie Robinson, Mrs. Isabelle Young, Mrs. Elizabeth Miner and Misses Anna Bishop, Ethel Booth, Frances Young, Margaret Queen, Anna Murphy, Grace Cummings and Alice Butler.

Women Under Twenty-One

There is a form of anemia called chlorosis that most frequently attacks young women. It is most common between thirteen and twenty-one. The symptoms are pallor, debility, breathlessness and palpitation of the heart. It is a disease which easily runs into a fatal form of anemia unless it is corrected in time.

Chlorosis yields readily to proper treatment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended together with a proper diet and plenty of sunlight and fresh air. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood. When they do this they tone up every nerve in the body. They strengthen the stomach and make digestion thorough and comfortable.

"Building Up the Blood" is a booklet full of useful information. Every mother and every growing girl should have one. It is free on request.

CAMBRIDGE POLICE OFFICER DISCHARGED

Chief of Police John J. McBride in announcing his action, said it would give Gordon an opportunity to demand a public hearing within three days and that it would be granted. WILSON DEMOCRACY FAVORS ARMS PARLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Hamilton Holt, president of the Woodrow Wilson democracy, made public yesterday a statement expressing the organization's attitude toward the coming Washington conference on limitation of armaments.

The statement, authorized by the executive committee, follows:

"The very timely request of Secretary Hughes that the American people should place confidence in the American delegation and that those who are most interested in the objects to be attained will permit us to endeavor to attain them and to perform our important work without unnecessary embarrassment has prompted the publication of the following declaration of the Woodrow Wilson democracy:

"The Woodrow Wilson democracy, by its executive committee, takes this occasion to state publicly that it regards the disarmament conference as an event of great importance, and as such that this organization will lend whole-hearted support to the efforts of the administration to bring about the limitation of armament by international agreement. We would seriously question the patriotism and loyalty of any individual or group who might seek to embarrass and make more difficult the constructive efforts of the American conferees.

"We believe that this conference is constructive in purpose; that it was called together not only to find a solution of the armament problem but to bring about international harmony and accord.

"The League of Nations is organized for the same general purposes, and we shall expect the president and the secretary of state to rebuke any effort to belittle or discredit the League of Nations or make more difficult its program for reducing armaments."

Atty. Gen. Allen Appoints Trio to Prosecute Dist. Atty. Pelletier

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Appointment of Robert G. Dodge, James J. McCarthy and Andrew Marshall to assist General J. Weston Allen in prosecuting proceedings in the supreme court for the removal from office of District Attorney J. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, was favored today by the council of the Boston Bar association. The council sent word to the attorney general that it would be pleased if he saw fit to select the three men to work with him. The same men have been named as prosecutors in disbarment proceedings which Attorney General Allen has brought against Daniel H. Coakley, William J. Corcoran and Daniel V. McIsaac.

The council also voted to oppose the petition of Corcoran a former district attorney of Middlesex county for permission of the supreme court to resign from the Massachusetts bar. Corcoran asked the right to resign on the ground that he was no longer a resident of the state, having removed to Portchester, N. Y.

Oppose Approval of Treaty With U. S.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 5.—Opposition to approval of the treaty between Colombia and the United States has arisen in the chamber of deputies. The senate has already approved the pact, by which $25,000,000 would be paid this country by the United States in settlement of the controversy resulting from the establishment of the Panaman republic. It is pointed out by opponents of the treaty that, as it stands, it does not guarantee any compromise obtained by Colombia.

Judge and Jurors Have Busy Session in the Superior Court

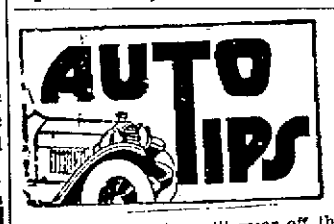

Standing: left to right: S. G. Swanson, J. Curran, W. T. Fermoyle, F. J. O'Hara, W. M. Lawrence, J. H. Meehan, G. H. Nelson, J. P. Dunigan, F. A. Sadlier, T. H. Donahue, W. T. Hopkins, D. S. Dewire, G. A. Wilson, S. E. Dupee, F. H. Coggeshall, J. H. Linnell, T. Croswell, J. H. Cogger, E. F. Pratt, F. Cullinan, A. N. Denley, A. E. Fowler. Sitting, left to right: M. E. Lawrence, C. H. Jewett, C. R. McElroy, M. S. Griffin, W. H. Cottrell, G. E. Holton, W. J. Christian, R. H. Creed, Court Officer G. F. Stiles, Justice Elias B. Bishop, Clerk R. H. Hard, Deputy Sheriff G. H. Stevens, J. A. Eames, J. S. Greig, E. Champagne, J. A. Tarbell, J. A. Chesborough, J. W. Claffy, W. H. Livingston, T. H. Geary.

It is rather an unusual state of affairs to have three juries working at the same time as was the case in superior court yesterday with Judge Bishop presiding. Two juries were sent out in the forenoon while a third was impanelled and heard a case. Findings were made by all three before the day's work had been completed. Legal machinery seemed to be well oiled yesterday and moved with a rapidity that is unusual, considering the calibre of the cases.

The first jury to go out was the one sitting in the case of Doonan vs. the inhabitants of Littleton. The action was one of tort for $5000 brought by Jeanne Doonan of Malden through her father, Owen P., to recover for alleged personal injuries when she was struck by an auto in Mill street, Littleton. In the case the jury charge was started late Thursday afternoon. Yesterday morning Judge Bishop completed the charge and sent the jury out. Shortly before court adjourned for the day Judge Bishop called the jury in and impressed upon it a verdict was important inasmuch as this was the second trial. The jury retired and returned a sealed verdict later.

The cases of Murdock and Grace M. McKinnon vs. the Massachusetts street railway were heard and verdicts for the plaintiffs of $200 and $400 respectively were brought in. Judge Bishop set the verdicts aside and will report to the supreme court.

The case of Alexander Duncan vs. J. Doyle to recover $3000, the result of a real estate transaction was tried. During the trial the judge and attorneys went into a conference after which the court ordered the jury to make a decision for the defendant. The decision will be reported to the supreme court. If the decision of the superior court is upheld, the case will be ended. If not, counsel will have agreed upon a settlement of $400 rather than take the case to the supreme court.

ALLEN NOW SEEKS TO DISBAR PELLETIER

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Petition for disbarment of Dist. Atty. Jos. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, proceedings for whose removal from office are pending was filed with the supreme court by Atty. Gen. Allen late yesterday.

Thirty-two allegations charging Mr. Pelletier with deceit, malpractice, gross misconduct, conspiracy to distort and corruptly aiding and abetting to extort were included in the attorney general's petition.

William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, now claiming residence in Portchester, N. Y., and Daniel H. Coakley, both of whom face disbarment proceedings already filed here are named in the attorney general's petition, on the ground that Mr. Pelletier conspired with each and both in efforts to extort.

The petition for disbarment of Mr. Pelletier closely follows that filed last week by Mr. Allen asking the court to remove him as district attorney for alleged misfeasance, non-feasance and malfeasance in office. Announcement of Mr. Pelletier's candidacy for mayor of Boston came shortly before that, but after the Boston Bar association had asked the attorney general to seek the district attorney's removal.

DRY CHIEF PAYS TRIBUTE TO FIELD STAFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The field staff of the prohibition enforcement force comprises "men of character and calibre who serve from the motive of patriotism," Federal Commissioner Haynes declared today in a statement published as a tribute to these workers.

"These men have faced death, scorn and temptation," the statement said. "They are sleepless in vigilance, unswerving in loyalty and fearless in doing their daily tasks in the same manner in which the English sing of their men who advanced in Flanders: 'They go as heroes and gentlemen.'"

Mr. Haynes said the illicit liquor traffic embraced "unscrupulous men of unlimited means" as well as common crooks. He made a list of casualties recently sustained by the prohibition forces showing that five men met their death and two others had narrow escapes.

BIG BARGAINS AT LEMKIN STORE SALE

The interest shown in the wonderful bargains offered to the public at the great sale of The Lemkin store's entire stock by the women of Lowell and vicinity almost beggars description. The buyers have been coming since the opening of the store Friday morning and in such large numbers that even the extra staff of salespeople were unable at times to take care of everybody.

Many who made purchases openly expressed their surprise that a store of Lemkin's reputation for quality in goods, could afford to make the sacrifices in prices that are being made at this slashing price sale.

The stock consists of the best in women's outer wearing apparel including dresses, coats, skirts and wraps, and the sale will continue until closing time tonight.

PARIS CADILLAC SERVICE

To accommodate owners of Cadillac cars who anticipate touring the battlefields of Europe, a new headquarters for Cadillac service, known as the American Service station, has been established in the centre of the automobile district in Paris, at No. 36 Rue Marboeuf. Here, for the first time, cars from Los Angeles and New Orleans and Boston will rub fenders with former standard 7-passenger army Cadillacs that a few months back shook to the thunder of heavy guns at St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

A good many of these cars were turned over to the French government at the close of the war. Some of them the French resold to civilians, some they put into service with their own army, while others were retained as official cars of the French government. Not a few of them bear marks of shrapnel and high explosives, which have been skillfully covered up by their new owners. All of them will come from time to time to this centre of Cadillac service, and American visitors will hear at first hand the adventures of some of these veteran army Cadillacs and the part they played in the war.

"Alf's Button" Is an English Comic With a Novel Plot

"STRIKE ME PINK!" EXCLAIMED A BRITISH TOMMY WHEN A GENIE APPEARED AFTER HE HAD RUBBED A BUTTON ON HIS BLOUSE. THE GENIE DID, FOR HE WAS THE REINCARNATION OF ALADDIN'S SLAVE. THIS, IN A FIRST NATIONAL FILM.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—"Alf's Button," a film comic, offers a subtle exposition of the British sense of humor. This movie is the best from the standpoint of story interest and evolution of plot yet made by English producers.

A British Tommy is surprised by the appearance of a genie ready to do his bidding when he rubs the second button on his tunic. The button had been cast from the metal of Aladdin's lamp.

"Strike me pink!" the cockney soldier exclaimed when he regained his breath. The genie accommodated him and then disappeared.

Threatened with quarantine, Alf rubbed the button and bade the genie return him to his former state.

Alf confided his secret to a skeptical sergeant. When the sergeant demanded beer as proof the genie deposited two foamy goblets upon the trench floor.

Alf longed to see his girl. He wished for the most beautiful girl in England. The genie brought the captain's fiancee. Matters were sadly complicated when the captain met her in the trench. And more so when the genie at Alf's bidding whisked the girl from his arms and restored her to England.

The sergeant was overcome with nostalgia. Alf rubbed the button. Presto! Alf and the sergeant were back in blighty.

The genie provided Alf's girl with wholesale lots of finery and Alf with a suit of "fish and soup" design. Riches did not bring happiness to either. With all that the genie could do for Alf he could not lift him above his wonted place in the social scale.

Such a story offers a tremendous field for the play of the author's imagination. The English producer employed it for seven reels. It ended with Alf's wife wishing for a boy and returning the magical button to the genie.

The genie did things in a wholesale way. He brought Alf and Mrs. Alf three sons.

English Technique

The English technique in photography and direction has not advanced beyond the nickelodeon era in America. Some scenes of "Alf's Button" are in blue and brown, after the manner of sun prints made by photographers in 1899. Others have the quality of tintypes.

Anachronism

In "Alf's Button," a girl is writing with a pen on note paper. A close-up shows a typewritten telegram she is supposed to be sending. The flash-back shows her still writing with a pen. I have not seen such a slip-up in American pictures in many months.

If Americans Made It

"Alf's Button" is a better comic than the ordinary run of American comedies. However, one wonders what an American producer would have evolved from the same story idea. Chaplin would have made a greater picture of it than "The Kid" and that picture is a far better comedy than "Alf's Button" as the English filmed it.

Buster Keaton or Harold Lloyd also might well covet the idea. Their version probably would have been reduced to three reels with all the action of the seven-reel British comic retained.

Therein lies the distinction between English and American wit. The American comedian makes you laugh uproariously and before you have had time to rest your risibles stirs you to mirth again. The English comedian lays a trail to his joke, like a long fuse to a powder can. After that explosion of humor he laboriously contrives another situation to provoke merriment.

THE MOVIETORIUM

"The Vermilion Pencil" is Sessue Hayakawa's next.

The studio orchestra plays "Mother Macree" to make Bessie Love cry.

Eva Novak plays opposite Tom Mix in "Around the World in Nothing Flat." Some speed!

Prince Ferdinando Pignapelli of Italy acted as cameraman for one scene of Marshall Neilan's production of "Penrod."

Leave it to D. W. Griffith to pull something new. He has taken out a $25,000 insurance policy to guarantee a snowfall for "The Two Orphans" before Nov. 20.

Smith Girls—Dartmouth Boys To Debate

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 5.—The young women of Smith college and the young men of Dartmouth college having agreed to meet in joint debate, have now agreed on Dec. 10 as the date and recognition of the Russian soviet government by the United States as the question, it was announced today. The meeting will be the first in which either college has met a debating team of the other sex. The Smith negative debaters will present their arguments against Dartmouth's affirmative team at Hanover, N. H., and the Smith affirmative side will be presented against Dartmouth's negative at Northampton. Trials to determine the membership of the two Smith teams are now being held.

Sinn Feiners Raid Police Barracks

BELFAST, Nov. 5.—Sixteen Sinn Feiners raided the police barracks at Kesh, County Fermanagh, last night, overpowered the four constables in charge, seized all the rifles and ammunition and escaped. They took advantage of the absence of most of the garrison, the men having gone to Enniskillen to attend a boxing tournament. General Tudor, Irish police chief; Col. M. Wickam, Ulster divisional commissioner and other high police officials were at the tournament. Police were rushed to the scene of the raid, but the Sinn Feiners had made good their escape.

MISSING WIVES

"YOU RUN ON, KIDDIES," SAID CAP'N PENNYWINKLE

One day Cap'n Pennywinkle sent Nancy and Nick over toward the shore to see what in the world was the matter. "I just got a telephone message from Mr. Fifteen-Fin Stickleback that his missus has been gone all day and isn't back yet," said the captain. "And Mr. Corkwing sent word by old Daddy Lusher that Mrs. Corkwing hadn't showed up since daybreak. And daddy said that as he passed by, he heard Mr. Blenny call over to Mr. Goby and ask if he knew where his wife was, and Mr. Goby called back that indeed he did not and he was just wondering what had become of his own."

"You run on, kiddies," went on Cap'n Pennywinkle, "and see if you can find all the missing fish ladies. I won't be likely to learn anything about them away out here at the cross roads for these are all little fish, you know, and do their housekeeping near to the shore. Besides if they'd show up out here, kind love us, wouldn't Mr. Cod and Mr. Sturgeon and Mr. Haddock and all the big fellows have a feast!"

"We'll go at once and hunt them," replied Nancy obligingly. "But how shall we know them? How do they dress?"

Cap'n Pennywinkle had to laugh before he answered. "Dress! Well, just wait until you see them. You'll know 'em all right. Just pick out anybody you see with stripes and polka dots and dresses like Christmas tree ornaments and you'll know it's one of the missing wives. It's just the same on the water as it is on the land, my dear, the ladies who like to dress the gayest are usually the ones who leave all the housework to their husbands. All these people, Mrs. Goby, Mrs. Rock-Fish and all the others, are gay dressers. Very!"

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Next Week's Bill One of All-Star Quality—Three Local Singers Tomorrow

For tomorrow's special bill at the B. F. Keith theatre three Lowell singers will be accorded the leading position. They are John J. Hartnett, Joseph M. Reilly and Jas. King, singers of excellent training, who are known as "Lowell's Caruso, Scotti and McCormack." Other acts on this bill will be those of Patricola, Richard Kean, Fields & Fink, and Ed. Boyle and daughter and Hal Stack.

Val and Ernie Stanton, who describe themselves as "The English Boys from America," will top the coming week's bill at the B. F. Keith theatre, giving their inimitable satire on English as it is not spoken. Wherever the vaudeville stage is popular there will be found the Stantons, who are prime favorites.

The Five Musical MacLarens are Scottish, but why make such a superfluous statement? They have the burr-r in their voices, the bagpipes in their arms and the thistle in their appearance, and, of course, they are garbed in kilts. Kilts aren't as much in evidence in the heather as they are on the stage, but they are a picturesque attire, and they give this act a splendid bit of costuming.

Loraine Howard and Verna Sadler will offer a harmonious songalog which they call "Wedding Bells." They are a pair of girls, who don't make any particular attempt to hide their ages. But they are wonderfully refreshing in other particulars. Their act is said to be one scream of laughter from beginning to end.

William Newell and Elsa Most are a very young couple who have known the theatre since they were but tots. In the years they have been "on" they have done many things, sang, played, danced and acted. Their present sketch is called "On the Lawn," which is touched up with wit and good music.

Shapiro and Jordan are two girls, who do all that they attempt in superfine manner. They entertain mostly at the piano, and their song numbers invariably turn out to be hits. Archie and Gertie Falls have an act that will take away the breath. Incidentally Gertie is a modern Venus. Two Dancing Frenchmen are Gold and Edward, who do some amazingly clever stepping.

RIALTO THEATRE

Triple Feature Attraction at the Rialto For the First Three Days of the Week

An all star program far in excess even of the productions that have adorned its screen for the past two or three weeks, will appear at the Rialto theatre this coming week, according to the announcement of Manager Prager.

For the first three days of the week will come a triple feature attraction introducing Charles Ray, well known star in "The Midnight Bell," Buster Keaton in his latest comedy, "The Goat," Peter Morrison in a thrilling western drama, "Crossing Trails" and the Kinograms.

For the last three days of the week there will be a famous James Oliver Curwood production, "The Golden Snare," also Bessie Love in "Penny of Top Hill Trail," a snappy comedy and the Kinograms. It is truly a program of exceptional merit and should meet with the approval of crowded houses every afternoon and evening.

In speaking of the leading feature of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday we find Charles Ray in a story of adventure and hair raising experiences rarely to be found in small towns or metropolitan centres. Charles is seen as "Martin Tripp," a traveling salesman for a large city concern and he finds his way into a small town where the inhabitants are up in terror because of the persistent ghosts who are to be found in the abandoned village church. In reality these ghosts are nothing more than a quintet of crooks who have been attracted to the town by its rich bank and who make the church their headquarters in digging a tunnel to the basement of the bank. Of course our friend Martin did not believe in ghosts and so he spent a night in the church waiting for the weird hour of "The Midnight Bell." He is discovered, and though bound and gagged, he manages to ring the bell himself and thus, becomes the hero of the piece.

In James Oliver Curwood's story shown the latter part of the week, we again find the well known author lives up to the reputation which he established in "The River's End," "Back to God's Own Country," and "Nomads of the North." It is a story of the Northwest Mounted Police in a desperate search for a much wanted fugitive from justice and it carries an absorbing love story which balances delightfully.

The Sunday program at the Rialto theatre will introduce Robert Warwick and Douglas McLean in two excellent productions, also four acts of high class vaudeville.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Love Bandit," a Play of Society and the Great Northwest to Be Presented by the Lowell Players.

The Armistice Week offering at the Opera House by the new Lowell Players will be Charles E. Blaney and Norman Houston's realistic romance of society and the Canadian Woods, called "The Love Bandit." Stories of the Great Northwest are invariably unusually strong in all of the pleasing elements that go in the making of a high-grade stock offering, and "The Love Bandit" is no exception to the rule. You will like it and you will admire and enjoy the various characterizations by the members of the company. It's a combat between blue blood and red and intermingling in sufficient good humor to properly balance the whole thing. Jim Blazes, a young millionaire, is in love with his stenographer, a descendant of one of New York's oldest families. Her family has lost its wealth and the girl, believing that blood and not money tells, scorns his offer of marriage. Then the girl's brother is caught stealing money with which he plays the races. It belongs to the young man and he threatens to send the thief to jail when the girl promises to marry him. They are married, and after having stood all things from her, he decided to return to his logging camp. There he works out the redemption of the wife's brother. During this process the young wife realizes that the man she has married has real strength of character to him and directs her course to his side. In the meantime a conflict arises between river logging camps and the opposition, on hearing of the coming of the girl, tries to capture her. From then to the close of the play one sees really thrilling situations. Miss Magrath, as the young wife, will find greater opportunity for the reflection of dramatic ability than ever before. The other characters will be in good hands and the scenic effects and stage accessories will be up to the usual high standard of the past.

The retirement of pickets about the entrance of the theatre during the past week has relieved the situation there very materially. Tickets for the coming week are selling fast. Tel. 261. Down-town office at the Prince-Walter Shop.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Ladies Must Live" and Kubinoff, Russian Concert Violinist, Features for Next Week

"The Isle of Destiny," a romantic feature with an all-star cast, and "Common Sense," another entertaining production featuring Edgar Lewis, will be the chief attractions of the Sunday program at the Merrimack Square theatre. The usual excellent surrounding program will be carried out.

Declared to be a screen masterpiece, equal, if not superior, to his enormously successful production of "The Miracle Man," George Loane Tucker's last picture production, "Ladies Must Live" will be the feature attraction for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Betty Compson, who made a great hit in "The Miracle Man," in which she played opposite Thomas Meighan, is the featured player. The picture has been produced along artistic lines and there are many thrilling moments in the action. The support is excellent.

Another big feature at the Merrimack Square theatre will be Kubinoff, the noted Russian concert violinist, who will appear in person at every performance during the entire week of November 7. Kubinoff is one of the most talented artists of the concert stage and his visit to Lowell will undoubtedly attract hundreds of music lovers.

A Fox comedy and the International News will complete the bill.

STRAND THEATRE

"Life's Darn Funny" and "The Shark Master" Attractions for the First Three Days in the Week

Another series of big picture productions are scheduled for presentation at the Strand for the coming week. During the first three days of the week Viola Dana, in "Life's Darn Funny," and Frank Mayo in "The Shark Master," will be shown, and during the last three days of the week, the one and only Tom Mix in "A Ridin' Romeo" and Edith Roberts in "Luring Lips," will be the attraction. The usual comedy and weekly will be shown in connection with these bills. Sunday's sacred concert will be comprised of new pictures and an army of high grade vaudeville.

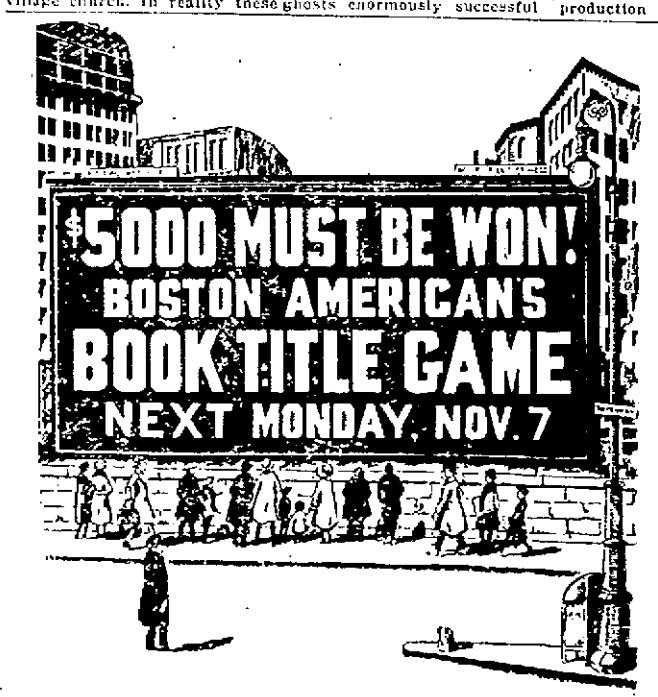

Viola Dana, the effervescent little star, in "Life's Darn Funny," should please everyone. Some queer or unusual experience stands out vividly in the minds of about everyone. See this picture and you will surely be reminded of something in your life that will reflect itself sharply. Miss Dana, in the role of little Zoe, finds herself in distress because of the lack of a gown, but her delight is unbounded when she runs into luck that brings about a realization of her fondest hopes. Gareth Hughes plays opposite the star and the remainder of the supporting cast is superb.

Virile Frank Mayo is seen in a wonderfully gripping photoplay of the South sea islands. A huge liner burning in mid-ocean and then swallowed up in the waves; a tropic hurricane which lashes a schooner and threatens its destruction; a mutiny at sea; a terrific fight between the master of the vessel and a score of his seamen; a leap from a high cliff into the shark-infested waters of the South Pacific—there are but a few of the many interesting phases of "The Shark Master." A delightful love romance is also intermingled. You'll like it immensely.

The one and only Tom Mix in a new story of his own, "A Ridin' Romeo," will feature the program for the week-end, starting with matinee on Thursday. The daredevil star of many an exciting and thrilling western story, is seen in this play in an entirely new role that affords him wider and better opportunity for his unusual capabilities. In view of the fact that Tom wrote the story himself, it is quite natural to expect thrillers of an exceptional sort. And you won't be disappointed. He has written in all kinds of mischievous trouble and as for stunts—well, see them yourself and judge.

"Luring Lips," the feature in which Edith Roberts appears, is another of those gripping melodramatic creations of the screen that has everything that goes in the making of a high class offering. Miss Roberts finds rare opportunity to indicate her exceptional talent and the support accorded her is truly wonderful. It's a stirring story of how a beautiful girl's wits and wiles won back the man she loved and incidentally solved a great intrigue. The element of mystery and chance it contains is a phase that will please all. Miss Roberts brings to the role assigned to her all of the fire and feeling which characterizes her unusual screen personality.

Don't miss either program. They are the kind that helps maintain the high standard of film entertainment one invariably gets at the Strand.

THREE-PIECE SUIT IS ATTRACTIVE

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The three-piece suit has attained a degree of popularity this season which carried the mode into the most elegant of costumes.

Not only the practical and the conservative effects are achieved in this combination of gown and coat, but the most bizarre and gorgeous limits are reached.

A Poiret creation of silver and black brocade accentuates this gorgeousness. The coat is cut with a decided flare and is edged with monkey fur.

The big sleeves, with novel turned-back cuffs, are also edged in this jungle fur, while the closely fastened collar with revere extensions is of velvet.

The dress is a combination of black velvet and the brocade cut in straight lines.

An interesting tricorn hat with cascades of moire ribbon is worn with this smart costume.

A LONG WALK

Miss Theresa Tromp hiked 3000 miles from Ferndale, Wash., to New York to enter Columbia university. She cooked her own meals over campfires, hopped freight trains and slept with Indian squaws en route. She says it was fun.

CHAMIPON BREAD MAKERS

MANKATO, Minn., Nov. 5—They're bread making champions—these three Mankato girls: Leona Peterson, Myra Jones and Evelyn Cuddy. Representing their school, the three girls first won the Blue Earth county championship and later took first prize in a southern Minnesota competition. Later they took first prize at the Minnesota state fair at St. Paul and finished by taking first honors at the interstate meet when bread makers of ten states were competing.

These three girls will represent the west in a contest to be held at Washington between the east and west.

NOVEL COSTUME HAS A SPANISH ACCENT

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—A Spanish comb doesn't necessarily make a Spanish costume, yet the green crepe cashmere trimmed in black and white fringe has a decidedly Spanish flavor.

Paul Poiret has draped a novel waist effect, the sleeves being merely pieces of the goods caught in such a manner as to fall in a cape-like effect in the back.

The skirt is richly embroidered in points, from which the fringe falls.

This novel costume, while it suggests the stage, is really a dinner gown, although its use extends to reception or afternoon functions.

By ALICE ROHE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—What is the greatest gift a girl may have—beauty, brains, youth, health, money, ancestry, family position, great genius?

What if one didn't have to choose, but had all of these!

Well, this is the lot of one of the most interesting young women in New York.

She is Marjorie Patterson, actress and author, the great-grandniece of Betsy Patterson, whose marriage to Jerome Bonaparte, young brother of Napoleon, started off international marriages with a romance that has made present-day alliances with reigning royal families quite commonplace by comparison.

But although Miss Patterson pours tea from an ancient silver tea set brought over from Ireland by Betsy Patterson's father, and sits in Betsy Patterson's chair, and sleeps in Betsy Patterson's bed, she thinks the real aim of life is giving expression to her creative force in the best way possible. So she has to her credit one of the most discussed and lauded literary achievements in bookdom—"A Woman's Man."

Two other books, "Fortunato," written in Rome when she was 19, and "Dust of the Road," written in England when she was a member of Sir Frank Benson's company, have attained best seller proportions.

"I believe that heredity plays an important part in life," says Miss Patterson, "but inherited tendencies, no matter how fine, do a minimum of good unless developed through individual power.

"If a man or a woman feels, that overpowering creative force calling for expression, it is the person's duty to follow the call. Some women feel it for domestic life and become great mothers; others feel it for professional life.

"Personally, the life of society means nothing to me."

Miss Patterson left the stage at the height of attainment as Pierot in "Pierre the Prodigal," to devote herself to writing.

"I am said to resemble Betsy Patterson," said the great-grandniece of Madame Bonaparte. "Perhaps I find my romance in work. At present I am finishing a play, 'Pan in Ambush' and am working on another drama. Yes, work is the great motive force in life."

There are more than 110,000 girl scouts in the United States.

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—"Open your churches! Open them all and invite the whole world to a half hour's prayer for those who lost their lives in the world war and for the best result from the disarmament conference!"

This is the message which the League of Women Voters, through its president, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, issues, particularly to women.

"There must be no more war—this is the conviction of the mothers of America," says Mrs. Park. "It has been crystallized within the past week as the disarmament conference draws near.

MRS. MAUD WOOD PARK

"Women know too well the tragic cost of war. They are the ones who should take the initiative in this question of limiting the nations in their effort to build greater armies and navies."

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser, limitation of armament chairman for the league, is appealing to the governor of every state to issue proclamations setting aside a thirty-minute prayer period on Armistice day.

Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn., director of the first region of the league, and Miss Christine Merriman of New York also a league official, called personally on President Harding and asked him to issue a national proclamation calling for special Armistice day services.

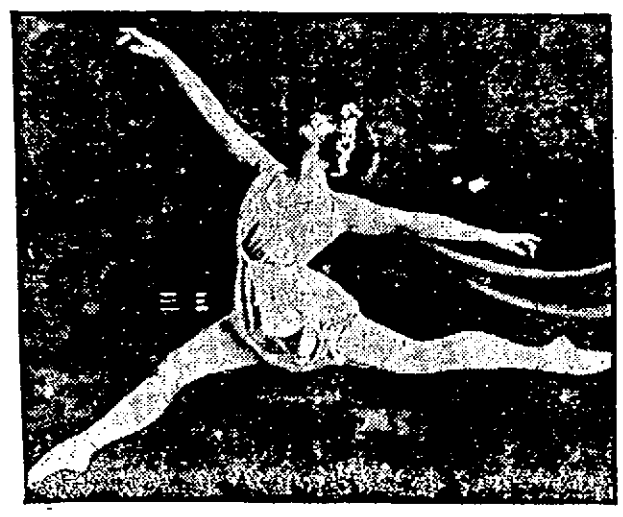

The Woman's Christian Temperance union is joining the league in its appeal.

There are five women house surgeons in English hospitals.

Value of a Newspaper

How many people ever stop to think, when reading the daily newspapers, which have become such a necessity to us, and which we take so much as a matter of course, that this is the cheapest commodity that enters into our everyday existence? Could the average person realize the immense amount of labor, both mental and physical, entailed in gathering the account of happenings of interest all over the world, as well as the obtaining of diversified special articles to contribute to the enjoyment of the reader, we would all agree that there is nothing else which furnishes us with so much value for our money, as the daily newspaper. I think it would be a splendid idea if the publishers of the various papers would give the public an opportunity of examining the workings of their plants, on the same basis as the recent telephonic exhibit, showing how the matter is received, handled, printed, etc. I am sure that it would prove of much interest, and would be appreciated by the public. We have come to expect absolute accuracy in reading printed matter, and if the people could see for themselves the rapidity with which the raw matter must be whipped into shape, they would be much more lenient, and ready to make allowance for any little error or discrepancy which may occur. I realize, however, that the newspaper cannot give any of its working time to the entertainment of visitors. Such an exhibition would have to come after the paper goes to press.

A Friend in Need

A lady coming into Lowell recently, arriving from Boston on a very early train, with best bib and tucker on, in a downpour of rain, went into the Middlesex station, and made the remark to the congenial young lady on the newspaper stand, that the B. & M. owed her about nine umbrellas which she had left on the trains at various times, and wished she could locate one of them for the time being. The clerk simply stooped down to a closet under the counter, and drew out a fine, big umbrella, and inquired if that would help out any. It certainly did fill the bill wonderfully, and the traveller was sent on her way rejoicing, with hearty thanks to the Good Samaritan behind the counter, and convinced that there are a lot of fine people in this old work-aday world of ours, who are always doing little acts of kindness to brighten the way for others.

An Annoying Habit

Can any one tell why it is that at concerts, lectures, but more particularly church services, so many people have a habit of coughing, without making the least pretence of trying to smother it in any way? It certainly must be very annoying to a speaker, as well as to the audience or congregation, and while at times it may be unavoidable, in most cases it is simply a habit. Should you attend a first class drama, you will notice that there is absolutely no sound from the audience, and you can hardly believe that the same people generally attend service, in some church or other on Sunday, when one would imagine that 75 per cent. of the congregation were in the last stages of tuberculosis.

The Salvation Army

However much we may differ in point of creed from the Salvationists, fair-minded people cannot help admitting that in the matter of moral courage, they stand second to none. They hold their meetings in all kinds of weather, absolutely regardless of the derision which is often showered on them by thoughtless people. Almost everyone has a secret dread of ridicule, and try in every way to avoid it, but the members of the Salvation Army appear to be entirely impervious to either praise or blame.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

BUSINESS BETTER

Every week brings new evidence of improvement in business. The factories are calling in more hands, new departments are starting up and the stores find a greater demand for goods. This condition is not confined to Lowell but prevails all over the country, a sure sign that we are passing out of the gloom that has hung over business for the past two years.

THE VOTER'S DUTY

The time limit for filing nomination papers has now practically closed with the result that there is a fairly good list of candidates in the field from which the electorate by the exercise of good judgment can choose a very acceptable candidate for mayor, a thoroughly representative municipal council of 15 members and nine candidates qualified to conduct the affairs of the school board.

At first considerable misgiving was felt over the rush of candidates to take out nomination papers; but this has given way to a feeling of satisfaction that so many business men and other acceptable candidates have volunteered their services to the city for the next two years. From the list of candidates for the council both at large and from the wards, there can be chosen a municipal council that will reflect credit upon the city of Lowell. We mention this as one of the possibilities, although it is hardly to be expected that the most desirable candidates will be elected in all cases. With the general conflict among the candidates, the urgent claims made by some and the disposition of a great many voters to support the candidates with whom they are acquainted, whether the latter are qualified or not, will assuredly affect the result in a manner that may bring more or less disappointment to those who expected to see good judgment shown in the final analysis. However, we have confidence that the electorate will see the wisdom of overlooking the candidates who have no chance of election and voting for the stronger candidates in order that every vote may count in deciding the chief contests both at the primaries on Nov. 22 and at the final election on Dec. 13.

We sincerely hope that the voters will not leave themselves open to the charge that they do not want good government and that they will vote for weak candidates in preference to men of the highest integrity and long experience in business.

What is the supreme duty of the voters in this election? Simply to pick out the most decent and capable candidates for all the offices to be filled.

GUARD AGAINST CANCER

Cancer week should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by any citizen of Lowell, high or low, healthy or unhealthy. When a disease takes a toll of 90,000 lives in the United States in a single year, and when doctors everywhere admit that it is incurable unless taken in the early stage, surely every person who has any regard for his or her safety should heed the wise counsel offered in various newspaper articles and in lectures by surgeons and others who are well qualified to instruct the public on the symptoms and treatment of this dread disease.

What seems to be established beyond a doubt is, that the disease when external, usually starts with a painless growth or excrescence on the skin, causing but slight inconvenience until its roots sink into the flesh and, like the roots of a vine, spread over blood-vessels and muscular tissue. It is plain that the longer the roots be allowed to spread, the more radical will be the operation necessary to remove them.

When the disease is external and before the roots have sunk deeply into the flesh, the cancer may be removed entirely by a surgical operation and, it is claimed, in some cases by what is known as an arsenical plaster. Some years ago a man lived on Common street who had the recipe for such a plaster and used it successfully on several patients; but, of course, it was of no use in cases in which the roots had sunk deeply into the tissues. As to internal cancers, only the surgeon's knife is of any use and that, too, will fail unless applied before the roots of the growth have spread to vital organs.

What is to be remembered is that cancers come gently and at first are as painless as a wart or a wen, and for this reason they are liable to be neglected until too late. The advice of the cancer experts is to watch such growths and promptly consult a physician as to whether they are cancers.

If these simple precautions be followed, it is claimed that 37,000 of the 90,000 cancer victims in this country each year could be saved.

APPEALS TO PREJUDICE

Some men with political axes to grind seem to think it will help them to stir up class, racial and even religious prejudice in the coming election; but against the injection of any such spirit, we would enter a solemn protest. Such a course should be resented by sensible men as dangerous to the city and to all classes of citizens. Those who realize the baneful effects of such methods in the past, will dread the return of any such bitterness as they would a plague. The man who would widen the breach between labor and capital, who would stir up feeling against any reputable business organization, any class, any race or any religion is a menace to the community; and if he does so through a newspaper, so much the worse for the people and for need in approaching our is the spirit of patriot-our people during the united for a common result that for all time, ll be honored for the achievement. For the war, only the men who were physically fit were chosen. Let our new city government be chosen solely upon the ground of merit and evident fitness of each candidate for the proper discharge of the duties attached to the office to be filled. In that way and that alone can we improve our city government.

PAY THE BONUS

Simple justice demands that the men who offered their lives for the nation overseas shall be compensated in some measure—we do not believe they can ever be sufficiently repaid for the sacrifices they made and for the glory they brought to the United States by their heroism on the battlefields of France. Marshal Foch gave the American people a clearer idea of what our troops did than they ever had before; and he is the highest authority on the subject.

Having saved the allies from defeat, these service men who survived the conflict deserve well of the nation. It is also important and necessary that the allies pay their indebtedness to the United States in order that the money may be used to help compensate these men for their glorious achievements. Even the interest on the loans would come in handy now to enable the government at Washington to pay the soldiers the proposed bonus.

THE BIG TEXTILE SHOW

Nothing of the kind hitherto shown has equalled the International Textile Exhibition and National Power show held this week in Mechanics hall, Boston. It has presented the very latest inventions and the rarest products of loom and spindle, and in fine every phase of the textile art in all its related branches. It was certainly a wonderful exposition and it was fortunate that Lowell textile factories were so well represented in the exhibits. The special exhibit by the Saco-Lowell shops, the Merrimack Manufacturing company and several other Lowell concerns, in addition to the general exhibit of Textile fabrics produced by the Lowell mills and in charge of the Lowell chamber of commerce, were quite creditable. Indeed Lowell was the only city which had a general exhibit of this kind at the show.

PELLETIER

District Attorney Pelletier of Boston in his first speech in the mayoralty fight did not talk like a guilty man. Evidently he is not afraid of his enemies; and as for his opponent, Hon. John R. Murphy, he charges him with being allied to the clique that has been trying for years "to get Pelletier." But the present district attorney of Suffolk county acknowledges only one weakness—he has a heart susceptible to the appeals for pity and mercy, and he may have exercised both qualities to a greater extent than his accusers deem necessary or proper. But every district attorney is allowed wide latitude in such matters and the ends of justice are not always best served by enforcing the penal code with the rigor of a Lycurgus.

OUTLOOK FOR 1924

The statement is going the rounds of the press that the clash between Mr. McAdoo and ex-Governor Cox of Ohio at the meeting of the democratic national committee is likely to result in the nomination of former Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall for president in 1924. It is quite a while till 1924 and in the meantime conflicts such as occurred at the meeting of the committee may be smoothed over and the whole political situation changed, so that new candidates may come into the field and old pass out. It is too soon to predict who will be the democratic nominee in 1924.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL

Quail is more plentiful than for many years past according to the department of agriculture. That is good news for those who like quail on toast; and if the shooting of game were prohibited for a few years our American forests would abound with the birds that delight the heart of the hunter. But for the restraint imposed by law the game birds would soon be exterminated. It is well to have a hunting season, but that implies something to shoot.

New Bedford is getting a reputation as a seaport. The White Star liner "Cretic" will call at that city on Dec. 5 for the purpose of taking on passengers for the Azores, Madeira and Lisbon. This will be the fourth steamship running out of New Bedford as those of the Cunard, Fabre and Portuguese lines already make New Bedford a port of call. This seems to be placing New Bedford in a position of importance which she has not hitherto held.

The women's committee of the Anti-Saloon League comes out with a manifesto in favor of strict enforcement of the prohibition law. They very naturally and reasonably take the ground that this law, like every other, should be enforced and that if one law be ignored or scoffed at, others may soon be similarly disregarded.

Suppose the auditorium was finished and that all the candidates were brought upon the stage—oh! yes, it will be big enough to hold them—in order that each might make his bow and offer some excuse for seeking office, wouldn't it be a great improvement upon present methods?

A Connecticut company reports being rushed with orders in its fish pole department and says it is receiving orders from Canada, England and France. In reference to the latter claim, we should like to apply to the company the short and ugly word that did good service in Roosevelt's day.

India may yet compete with the world in foreign trade. Cotton and jute manufacturing are leading industries there, and there is a growing development in steel manufacture, cement making and leather industries. Yet many people wonder why England wants to keep a tight grip on India.

"When the world meets in Washington" is a newly coined phrase that does very well for a catchy synonym, but the world may have to wait a long time before it gets all the news of that conference and gets the truth.

The quaintly furnished offices of some of the old-time stables in Lowell and vicinity still contain many aged habitues who follow horses and know them better than the average man.

China is reported as still firm on Shantung, but Japan is saying nothing. The Japanese have bought considerable land in and about Shantung. Who will cancel these purchases?

Mexican bandits have captured four Americans and ransom has been demanded and paid. Are we to return to the border again for watchful waiting?

Shoe manufacturers are swinging to lower grades, but if that will keep the factories busy, it will mean more money in circulation and better times for employes who have been idle.

Fish prices in Boston wholesale marts have dropped with a bang. That ought to help the Friday pocketbooks.

ARMISTICE DAY

Hon. Joseph Walker Will Speak at St. Anne's Church

Under the auspices of the local Federation of Churches, an Armistice day service will be held in St. Anne's church at 8 o'clock in the evening, with Hon. Joseph Walker, former speaker of the house of representatives, the principal speaker. Mr. Walker will deliver an address covering lines suggested by the day of observance and the disarmament conference. A feature of the service will be the singing of hymns by several vested choirs of the city.

Lowell Post No. 81, American Legion, has a notable program for the day's observance. Salutes will be fired in Monument square and there will be addresses by several well known citizens, including Mayor Perry D. Thompson.

Mayor Thompson has recommended the closing of all city departments on Armistice day. The schools will be closed and exercises will be held on Thursday, in most of the city schools.

PAIGE STREET CHURCH

The alterations at the Paige Street Baptist church and the installation of the new organ have been completed and the interior of the old church has taken an altogether different aspect. The alterations included the changing of the baptistry, an addition to the choir gallery and the addition of new dressing room. The new organ is of the largest type and was installed by Kimball & Frazer of Boston. It will be dedicated at the morning service at 10.30 o'clock, when a special musical program will be carried out and an appropriate sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. Cecil Hayes, whose topic will be, "The Importance of Music in a Church." In the evening, an organ recital will be given under the direction of Russell Fox.

CHELMSFORD H. S. BALL

The annual ball of the Chelmsford Centre High school was held last evening in the town hall. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and in the evening, a delightful entertainment program was given by Hoppe and his team of artists from Boston. The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Miss Ruth Emerson, chairman; Charles A. Ellis, Miss Mary Garvey, William Berg and Miss Ruth Monahan.

CHELMSFORD LEGION POST

Chelmsford Post, 212, American Legion, will hold its regular meeting in the town hall, Monday evening. Nominations for officers will be made and as competition between prospective candidates is keen, it is expected a large attendance will be on hand. The boys are talking about a minstrel show to be held after New Year's, and at this meeting some definite steps in this direction will be taken.

No Sick Animal

They were in a railroad train and were discussing Dickens. "Well," said one, "John puts 'Bleak House' first and 'Martin Chuzzlewit' second." "Excuse me, gentlemen," said a husky voice from the seats behind. "I don't know your pal, John, but you're being steered. There ain't no such horses runnin'."

Pusher Pushed

"Here, boy," said a wealthy motorist, "I want some gasoline, and please get a move on! You will never get anywhere in the world unless you have push. Push is essential. When I was young I pushed, and that was what got me where I am." "Well, mister," said the boy, "I reckon you'll have to push again, 'cause we ain't got a drop of gasoline in the place."

A Typical Case

The cripple thumped his crutch on the ground as he confronted his lawyer. "Heavens, man, your bill is outrageous!" he exclaimed. "You are taking four-fifths of my damages. I never heard of such extortion." "I furnished the skill and eloquence and the necessary legal learning for your case," said the lawyer coolly. "Yes," said the client, "but I furnished the case itself." "Bosh!" said the lawyer. "Anybody could fall down a coal hole."

Knees and Sir Harry

Sir Harry Lauder, among other things the author of "A Minstrel in France," is back again. He says it's the first of many farewell tours. As usual, he's in kilts. So, he observed on his first day in America, are many of the girls on Fifth avenue. "I saw one bonny lassie whose skir-r-t came down to just about where mine does," remarked Sir Harry. "And her stockings were rolled below the knee just about where mine are. And she showed just about as much knee as I do. But if I do say it as shouldn't, it was nicer knee."

The Wrong Words

The Chinaman could speak but little English and the Englishman could speak no Chinese, nevertheless the dinner went off agreeably. There was one dish that pleased the Englishman. It was a rich stew of onions, pork, mushrooms, and a dark, tender, well-flavored meat that tasted like duck. The Englishman ate heartily of this stew. Then he closed his eyes, lifted his hands, and shook his head with an air of ecstasy. After this compliment to the dish, he said interrogatively: "Quack, quack?"

"No, no," said the Chinaman. "Bow-wow."

Unusual Request

"Operator, will you please see that my telephone is put out of order?" This strange request came over the wire the other day from a Lynchburgh, Va. telephone subscriber, who explained that his bell had been ringing almost constantly for over five hours. He had, the man explained, inserted an advertisement in a local paper announcing that he desired to vacate an eight room residence, giving a telephone number for inquiries. So successful was the experiment that after the entire family had been worn out answering the telephone the householder begged that his line be disconnected for the night, in order that they might have an opportunity to recuperate.

Very Busy Man

One or two stories have been told of hustling American tourists "seeing the world." Here's another: A tourist dashed up to the British museum in a taxicab, ran up the steps, and said to the man in uniform at the door:

"Still got the Elgin marbles?"

"Yes, sir; of course, sir," replied the attendant.

"All right. How about the Assyrian-winged bulls near the lunchroom?"

"They're still there, sir."

"German air-raiders during the war didn't damage your fine mummy display upstairs, I hope?"

"No, sir; not at all, sir. But won't you step inside, and look around for yourself, sir?"

"No, thanks. I'll just take them as per catalogue," answered the tourist. "You see, I've got St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, the Tower, the South Kensington museum, the Wallace collection to do this morning, before I catch the Oxford train, give the college the once over and catch a connection with the Stratford express, so as to see Shakespeare's home before dinner."

On Your Toes

I knew a sprinter once who ran
Swifter than any other man
In all our school. And yet he could
(And not a comrade understood)
Not win a single open race,
But grew content with second place.

Our trainer was a wise old chap;
So he put on his thinking cap
And watched this fellow. On the mark
He poised as lightly as a lark
And got away at crack of gun;
But yet he never, never won.

Watching him one day near the finish
Our trainer saw his speed diminish.
He'd led the field by full a yard
Nor seemingly was running hard.
Then as a runner near him steals
Our man comes down upon his heels.

Trainer smiled and said: "I know
Why past the tape he does not go
Ahead of all the rest. Next race
He'll be accorded foremost place.
For to I have discerned the lack
Which holds this wondrous sprinter back."

Next sprint our wonder started in
Our trainer with a knowing grin
Stood near the finish, with his eye
Upon the men as they went by.
And as this runner by him goes
The trainer yells: "Up on your toes!"

Up on his toes the sprinter went
And o'er the mark his feet he sent
A goodly distance ere the rest
Could reach it though they ran with zest
Now how to win this runner knows;
He simply stays up on his toes!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Now comes the season when the "dog cranks" have their inning. Horse fans are no more faithful to their hobby than the owners of blooded canines. And many a man and woman not owners of dogs of any description, may always be seen at the big shows, tramping through the aisles and inspecting the exhibition stalls where famous breeds are on exhibition, blue ribbons and everything. I learned today that the 30th annual specialty show of the Boston Terrier Club of America will be staged in Boston, Nov. 11 and 12, at the Mechanics building. Supt. Charles E. O'Connor reports that more than 300 dogs will be benched. This club is the parent of all Boston terrier clubs. Numerous creators of this breed 30 years ago are still in the ring. Among the well known exhibitors this year, known to all Lowell owners of Bostons, are Dr. C. F. Sullivan, C. C. Kammerer, Frank Teeling and Frank Dondero. M. J. Donlon of Lynn will be this year's judge.

Despatches announce that Camp Devens, which was officially "abandoned" as a regular army base in orders issued by the war department last September, may continue to remain on the government books as a cantonment. It is said that the First division of the U. S. army may be assigned to Devens very soon. The First Corps area officials have the matter under consideration. At present, I am informed, there are about 200 soldiers at Ayer, a part of the famous 13th U. S. infantry. They are soon to be transfegred to Fort Warren to join the remainder of the units of this splendid regiment.

Rare critics of the American army personnel—and there are critics even when it comes to our splendid military organization, I am sorry to say—have sometimes said that "many soldiers are foreigners." Let me tell the "harpers" something: A few weeks ago, I took a party of friends in a flivver to old Camp Devens. We wandered about the deserted barracks, hiked down the long military roads of wide macadam, sifted through deserted barracks and troop quarters, peeked into musty mess halls and cooking quarters and even trekked through former official "headquarters," the doors of which had been left unlocked. On sentry duty far down the area close to the foot of Telegraph Hill (remember that spot, boys?) I ran into a khaki-clad six-footer with a tanned face that resembled the color of a Pawnee Indian brave of the Custer-Buffalo Bill period. I spoke casually of the weather and the prospects of sunshine on the morrow. The voice that answered me did not belong to a Jugo-Slav. Said this husky in khaki:

"Naow, bruther, sah, you speak truthfully. The weather, sah, is sure going to be fine tomorrow, let me tell you."

Four more brothers in arms, all stalwarts of Uncle Sam's finest in every detail from tan shoes to peaked campaign hats, replied to my questions in the same, slow drawling voices, with courtesy in every response. Southerners they were and three out of the big four from good old Dixie land—Tennessee, sah! But not colored. In all there were 200 good American huskies there at that time.

"What's Wrong with the World?" is such a catchy topic that one can readily see the possibilities for an interesting discussion of its many points. Hence it is that Lowell people are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to hearing the noted lecturer, Peter W. Collins, on Wednesday evening next in Associate hall. Mr. Collins is a student of the economic and sociological problems, a man whose experiences fit him admirably to shine as a brilliant exponent of standards that make for ideal citizenship. Grand Knight John E. Hart of Lowell council, Knights of Columbus, under whose auspices the lecture is to be held, wants to emphasize the fact that the lecture is absolutely free and cordially invites the public to be on hand to hear an unrivalled presentation of facts about the present day problems affecting the civilized world.

Again yesterday it was conclusively proved that The Sun is a widely read newspaper. Thursday, Supt. of Police Redmond Welch appealed to this paper to publish a letter he had received from the postmaster of Mindoro, Wis., seeking relatives of one William O. Taplin, who recently died in that western town. The postmaster, F. J. Roland, told the local police head in his letter that Taplin was said to have relatives in Lowell or hereabouts, although very little else was known. A story and the letter were printed in Thursday's Sun. Yesterday afternoon a young man purporting to be a nephew of the deceased Mr. Taplin visited the local police station and informed the chief that he was related to the late Mindoro man and that Alden Taplin, an overseer in a Methuen mill, his father, was a brother of the dead man whose relatives were sought here. The story had been read in The Sun, it was stated, the day before. Supt. Welch furnished the Methuen man all the information he had, the latter being very anxious to communicate with the Mindoro authorities to learn more of his late brother's death.

Eminent Portuguese operatic artists recently arrived in this country from Paris and Lisbon, will give a lyric concert at the Lowell Opera house Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of well known Portuguese citizens, which should be enjoyable to all music lovers. The program will include selections from the operas of Rossini, Leoncavello, Puccini, Verdi, Ambroise, Thomas and Carvalho, and romantic folk lore ballads of France, Spain, Portugal and Italy, by Alice Pancado, soprano, Alfredo Mascarenhas, baritone, and instrumental solos by Alberto Sarto, maestro. Berton Braley's Daily Poem The PRIMAL GLAMOR

There is a little lake I know,
A lake of azure, cool and clear,
Where slim canoes slip to and fro
With rippling music sweet to hear;
At night the silver moonlight gleams
On wavelets crinkling over sand,
It is a spot of drowsy dreams;
But somehow, blown across the land
From far, far off, there comes to me
The great green magic of the sea.

Mountains with peaks of dazzling white
That rear themselves against the sky
Wake in my heart a brave delight;
Forests of pine trees towering high
Stir me with wonder and with awe,
And desert stretches hold a thrall
Of color, barbarous and raw;
But there's a spell beyond them all,
A lure of space and mystery,
The great green magic of the sea!

The sea, the cruel, tender sea
Eternal, yet forever strange,
Restless and turbulent and free.
With mighty moods that shift and change
From rage to calm, from love to hate;
The sea that surges round the world,
Calling to high empires and great,
Where long waves roar and tides are swirled;
Oh, glamor that man may not flee—
The great green magic of the sea!

As to Large Ballots

It is alleged that the size of the ballot at the primaries will confuse the voters. Well, if it does, what will happen the poor voters when they have to deal with the blanket ballot in a national election?

Take, for example, the ballot for the presidential and state election in 1896. A sample ballot was published in the old Sun, and it appears that there were no less than seven distinct tickets in the field for president and vice president. It is well understood, of course, that nobody votes directly for president or vice president, but for the electors representing them. There were thirteen electors on each ticket and then there was a blank space on which the voter could write in the names of different electors if he did not wish to vote for any or all of those on the ticket of his choice.

The electoral vote of a state equals the number of its congressmen and its two United States senators. In 1896 the electoral vote of Massachusetts was 15, but in 1920 it was 18. If we get one or two more congressmen on the basis of population as shown by the last census, then the electoral vote of the state will be increased accordingly.

The ballot used in the election of 1896 was about the size of half a page of The Sun. Here were the principal tickets from which the people were to select:

Bryan and Sewall, democratic.

Bryan and Sewall, democratic nomination papers.

Bryan and Watson, people's party.

Lovering and Johnson, prohibition.

Matchet and Maguire, socialist labor.

McKinley and Hobart, republican.

Palmer and Buckner, democratic national nomination paper.

Then came the same number of party tickets for state officials.

For governor, lieutenant governor, treasurer, secretary of state, auditor, and attorney general the same parties made their appeal and then came the list of state, senatorial and representative candidates, embracing about ten contests in all, with two or more candidates in each.

In addition to this, there were three referenda questions. One was whether the voters should decide in favor of biennial elections for state officers and another, whether there should be biennial elections of members of the general court.

The third was the question of amending the city charter of Lowell. This was adopted and the two preceding were defeated.

Election Excitement

On the Saturday night preceding election in 1895, the city was decorated for the great street parades of both parties. Of this the old Sun said:

"The city is literally covered with the national colors. From hundreds of housetops, from the flag poles on city hall and all the public buildings Old Glory floats.

"Even horses are decked with the Stars and Stripes, which are also seen on vehicles of all kinds.

"Ladies have miniature flags pinned on the lapel of their jackets, and the display of flags from the windows of private residences is really surprisingly large. Business men, irrespective of party, have dressed the exterior of their establishment in flags, big and little."

Then followed a list of the leading stores on Merrimack and Central streets as having elaborate decorations.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt

In the old Sun I find the following tribute to Herman Eckhardt who a generation ago was prominent in social circles in this city:

H. V. Huse writes an interesting story of Prof. Eckhardt, musician, now passed away, whose fame was transcontinental and who was known to every lover of music in Lowell.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt was a native of Saxony and was in fact a born musician. He began his musical training in the celebrated Leipsic university, studying the violin and mastering it with remarkable ease.

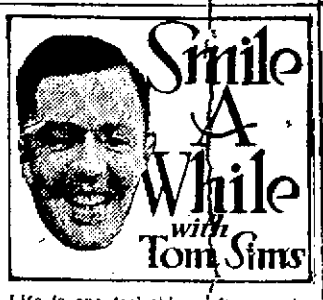

When only 11 years old he became the pupil of the world famous Weintustein and later joined a military orchestra, playing the French horn and associating with the most prominent musicians of the day, coming to America in 1810 with an orchestra of talented musicians.

Prof. Eckhardt and his orchestra played in all the larger cities previous to 1847. In 1850 Prof. Eckhardt took the position of leader of the Lowell Museum orchestra, and after his marriage he toured this country and Europe. In connection with the Boston Museum orchestra he produced many excellent concerts from the classical operas.

In 1869 he was offered the position of musical instructor in the public schools of Columbus, Ohio, and in that city for nearly 30 years he had rounded out his busy life as the leading musician of the community and one of the foremost in America.

By N.E.A. Service

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 5.—Could you practically live on a race track and never bet a singe cent?

Could you develop and sell race horses and never bet a cent to back them up?

Could you race a race horse and still never bet on him?

It is not impossible. John Edward Madden, the most famous and leading breeder and racer of thoroughbred race horses on the American continent, does all of this, and still more.

He has a farm at Lexington, Ky., 2000 acres of the finest blue grass land. He has other large interests and possesses a large fortune—but not one cent of this has ever been made through betting on race horses, notwithstanding horses he himself had bred for winning.

Madden as a boy turned his early fancy to the trotting horse. He came to Lexington in 1883 and from that time to this he has been the leader of the trotting and thoroughbred ovals.

His first "big" buy was in 1889 when he paid $10,100 for Sulsin, trotting mare, and in 1890 he paid $33,250 for Robert McGregor, famous trotting sire.

Madden has a lot of sentiment for his horses. He heard that Nancy Hanks, trotting mare, was for sale. He immediately bought her and gave her a home on the blue grass of his farm and the day she arrived Madden issued invitations to numerous friends for a reception in honor of Nancy Hanks.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged within a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments to Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added luster to the annals of the turf.

Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals, but selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him, but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

DOBBIN IS COMING TO THE FRONT AGAIN

Old-time horsemen in and about Lowell read with interest The Sun story of the long record of Silas A. Shattuck of West Fourth street, who for 60 years has been a blacksmith and horseshoer. A visit to some of the other best known business places run by blacksmiths and expert horsemen for many years in various parts of Lowell resulted in uncovering some readable facts about the industry in this city.

One of the best known "old-time" shoeing stables in Lowell, popular with horsemen old and young, and still doing business up a small side street far from the busy thoroughfares, is the establishment of Henry Reynolds, horseman, race track follower and golf player.

A Sun man visited the Reynolds place at 42 Cushing street this morning and found that the old buildings have been running wide open for horseshoeing for more than 60 years. Reynolds has been in the game about 25 years, and of course does not consider himself an old-timer.

Reynolds has been a little slow about getting enthusiastic over Golden Cove racing, he told a Sun man today. He drew the writer over to an old desk cabinet on which his billheads, pictures of horses of every age and color, race score cards and sale announcements.

"Look at this!" he exclaimed, handing the reporter a large race card. It was one of the summer Grand Circuit fliers, and Reynolds admitted that he "followed the big wheel horses." He has the records of every circuit horse on his tongue's end. He can tell you the speed of Arion or Croesus, or Single G or Natalie. He shot them out like a catapult this morning and told stories gleaned from his recent visits to the big stables owned by Cox, Geers and all the rest. You can talk grand circuit all day with Henry and not go home tired of listening to his chatter. He told a few this morning that would go big in a horse journal.

Just around the corner on Fletcher street is another old-time stable and horseshoeing establishment, and run by George Ahearn. This man has a fine line of work, and the shop is an old one, but George isn't old and so doesn't want to be classed with the historic boys of the anvil chorus.

"Let me take my hat off to Brother Shattuck instead," said Ahearn genially, this morning. "He's a fine old gentleman and a good horseshoer. Put that in The Sun. I want him to know it!" That is Ahearn all over—with a good trade and no fault to find with the advent of the automobile. "I have all I can do, and besides, you will please set it down that horses are coming back, my boy!" he said as he turned back to his fireplace and tossed in another new shoe for shaping.

At other stables in that vicinity the belief was current that horses were on their way "back to the front." Some horseshoers say many large trucking concerns are finding horse power cheaper in the long run and more profitable in every way. The sentiment in the stables over beyond Central street and over in Centralville, too, is that more horses are being used for general business purposes than was the case when the trucking craze reached its climax a few seasons ago.

ANOTHER GILROY ON GRIDIRON

Another member of the famous Gilroy family of Haverhill is slowly stepping along in the athletic line. The last and youngest of this famous athlete family entered Haverhill high last fall and is now on the Haverhill football squad. Whether or not he will be able to follow in his two older brothers' footsteps time alone will tell. His two brothers, Ralph and Johnny, have nation-wide reputations as college football players. Johnny scintillated at Georgetown a few years back and later with Jim Thorpe's pro team out in the west. Ralph has been starring at Princeton for the past two years and is one of the most brilliant defensive backs in the country. Bill Broderick, the Haverhill high coach, has a great reputation for developing raw material into stars so it won't be much of a surprise to hear in a year or so of another Gilroy cutting his name into the athletic hall of fame.

GAVE SHEPARD AWARD

Mob of Fight Fans Threatened Joe McCarthy Who Refereed Nashua Bout

NASHUA, N. H., Nov. 5.—The police had to escort Joseph McCarthy of Boston, a Massachusetts referee, to the state line early yesterday, to save him from a mob of fight fans because of his award last night, to Johnny Shepad of Woburn, Mass., in the bout with Doddy O'Neill.

The two judges announced that both voted for a draw. McCarthy, however, gave the decision to Shepard.

The demonstration was so bitter and persistent that an escort to the state line was deemed advisable.

Chief Goodwin is to investigate a statement attributed to McCarthy that he could not declare a draw under Massachusetts rules.

THE STORY THAT HELPED McGRAW

There's a new business yarn called "The Go-Getter"—and appropriately subtitled: "A Story That Tells You How to Be One"—which is in size one of the smallest books of the year, and in the enthusiasm it has aroused among business men and other go-getters, one of the biggest. It's a moderately short story in book form, by Peter B. Kyne, and in New York the following story about it is going the rounds among baseball fans.

"Things were looking dark for John McGraw and his champion troupe of horse-hide maulers. Then an admirer sent him a mysterious brown package. At first McGraw was going to soak same in water because certain Yank fans stop at nothing, but with characteristic bravery, the baseball Napoleon threw discretion to the four winds. The package, however, disclosed nothing more alarming than books—twenty copies of "The Go-Getter"—about a Yankee who was beaten a dozen times but didn't know it. McGraw took half an hour off to read the story and decided there was a new 'Message to Garcia' in it. His opponents were absent and he'd even stoop to psychology to win. Wherefor he distributed the extra copies of the book among his disciples. That the Giants won the next three games, and, of course, the pennant, is a mere matter of history. Now the Yanks, who were defeated, are wondering if they hadn't better include a course in reading in their training schedule next spring."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM GOES TO WOBURN

The high school football team journeyed to Woburn this afternoon and played the strong high school team of that town. Although a hard battle was looked for Coach Eddie Cawley's charges were confident of adding the Woburn team to their list of victims. That the Lowell boys were up against a tough team was evidenced by the fact that Woburn so far this year had won every game. Woburn is noted for the star athletes that it turns out and it was in view of this fact that Coach Cawley started his strongest lineup in today's game.

The high school team today was ordered by Coach Cawley to confine all its efforts to straight football. If, however, the ball is in scoring position and the backs are unable to gain Willard or Condon, who has come along fast as a drop kicker in the past few days, will be called on to boot over a drop kick. Coach Cawley is lucky in having two such clever kickers as this pair.

At the final practice yesterday afternoon the coach devoted most of his time in teaching his new guards, Bailey and Brosnan the fundamentals of guard play. Both boys proved apt learners and in the scrimmage against the second team threw back all attempts to gain through their positions. A shift was made in the backfield by the return of Pete Sheehan to eligibility. Sheehan was one of the sensations of the early games and his return to the team at this time will greatly strengthen it. In the Lowell backfield today there was no star plunger as both Ideton and Normandin were out of the lineup. Coach Cawley, however has groomed Taplin, the husky tackle, to fill in the position of fullback and he was expected to see service at that place today. The lineup at the start of today's game was probably as follows: King, Gleason, ends; Rowlandson, Sullivan, tackles; Bailey, Brosnan, guards; Dodge, center; Sweeney, quarter, Willard, Hilton, halves; Sheehan, fullback.

GREB BEATS WEINERT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harry Greb, Pittsburgh heavyweight, last night defeated Charles Weinert, Newark, receiving the judges' decision after a 15-round bout.

TEXTILE AND WORCESTER TECH IN BIG GAME

This afternoon on the Moody street gridiron Lowell Textile played its most important football game of the season when it took on the Worcester Polytechnical Institute eleven.

Both teams appeared to be in fine condition for the game and made a snappy appearance before the largest crowd of the season. The visitors, clad in their red and gray uniforms, took the field first and after exchanging punts and trying out passes went through a rapid signal drill. While not a heavy team, the Engineers presented a well balanced outfit.

Textile took the field shortly after and went through its preliminary work. All of the regulars were in the lineup and the manner in which the local team went through its warming up stunts indicated it was out to lift a Worcester scalp.

A high wind was blowing which made the handling of punts and long passes difficult. Shortly before 2.45 the rival captains met in the center of the field and tossed for the choice of goals.

CASTLES AND BURKE IN CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

An announcement of considerable importance to boxing followers in Lawrence and Lowell was made today, when C. P. Dodge of the Moody club issued a statement that he had succeeded in matching Barney Burke and Mike Castles for a 10-round bout on next Thursday night to settle the claims of both to the featherweight championship of Lawrence.

It was originally planned to put Castles against Chick Hayes here next week, but when the local promoter found that he could land the Castles-Burke battle, he immediately cancelled the Hayes' end and signed up the rival Lawrencians.

COMMUNICATIONS

Sporting Editor, Dear Sir:

A few weeks ago there appeared in the Lowell papers, a statement which was signed by the manager of the Greek tug of war team, stating that his team had been treated unfair on Columbus day and he also issued a challenge to the Billerica shop team to pull for a purse of $500. Now immediately afterwards, we, the Boilermakers tug of war team, accepted the challenge to pull the Greek team or any other team for a suitable prize but not for money. Then along come the officers of one of the few clubs in the city of Lowell who are trying to boost sports in the city (namely the Lowell Driving club) and arrange to put on the contest between the two teams for a suitable prize and it was all set for October 22nd at the Golden Cove park but after the driving club committee had gone to the expense and trouble of arranging the contest and the Boilermakers' team had trained faithfully for same, along comes (Mr. Andremeteas, Greek Manager) at the last minute and notifies the committee that they are not going to pull.

Now we stated in our letter of acceptance that we would pull any team any time or anywhere and that we did not believe in (hot air sports) that we were willing to beat but it is too bad for a good club like the Lowell Driving club whose members are doing all within their power to put Lowell on the map as a clean and real sporting city and are doing all that human beings can do to give the city a good athletic field by their hard labor and many sacrifices that this kind of a trick should be pulled over on them. There should be some way or rules to handle such poor sportsmanship as pulled off by the Greek team and we hope in the future when anything is agreed to, that all concerned will live up to the agreement. There is one thing we would say, that the Driving club has used us people as real gentlemanly sportsmen and we expect at all times to treat and help them in the same manner.

We also have a basketball team which we would be only too glad to enter into any games or league if possible. We are not champions at anything yet but we are here to be beaten. So let's help the clubs that are trying to help the city and sports.

Hoping that you will see your way to print this in your valuable papers and thanking you for past favors, we remain,

EDW. MacMILLAN, Manager.

CRIMSON AND TIGER SQUARE OFF IN ANNUAL FOOTBALL STRUGGLE

Both Teams Enter Game With All Regulars in Form---Army Meets Notre Dame at West Point---Other Important College Clashes on Today's Card

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harvard, recovered from the jolt given her last Saturday by Centre college, was the guest of Princeton today in the east's feature gridiron affair. The clashes of Army and Notre Dame at West Point; Nebraska at Pittsburgh; Lafayette at Pennsylvania; Maryland at Yale, and Cornell at Columbia, also shared considerable interest.

Both Princeton and Harvard went to today's game with their strongest elevens ready for the fray.

Princeton has defeated Harvard 11 out of 22 games played since 1877, and tied her three times, one of the ties being the 14-14 game at Cambridge last year. Since 1911, however, when football relations were renewed between the colleges after a lapse of 15 years, the Crimson has won five of eight games played and tied two. Princeton last beat Harvard in 1911, 8 to 6.

The Army eleven, according to reports from West Point, was stronger today in a point of attack than it was against Yale, and expects to avenge the defeat administered by Notre Dame last year. French, Army's backfield star, is out with an injury, it was announced.

Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh squad, one of the strongest of eastern teams, was expecting its hardest tussle of the the year against the Nebraskans. University of Pennsylvania, with several new faces in its line, had the dashing Lafayette eleven as its opponent.

Yale had its first string backfield men and a substitute rush line ready for Maryland. Captain Aldrich was slated for the left half position. O'Hearn and Blair, two of the bull dog's strongest regulars, were suffering from slight injuries and could not play. Coach Jones said he would give about 25 substitutes a chance in the game.

The Ithacans buoyed by their great victory over Dartmouth last Saturday met Columbia at the Polo Grounds here. It will be the ninth engagement of Columbia and Cornell elevens since 1890. Columbia had an entirely new combination to present against Cornell and Coach O'Neill said he believed he had strengthened the eleven's defensive powers a great deal.

Big Games in West

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Three of the four undefeated teams in the big ten were in action today, two of them playing each other. The Buckeyes invaded the Maroon's territory and big 10 fans throughout the conference territory eagerly watched this game.

Chicago is Ohio's strong remaining opponent for the conference title, while on the other hand, victory by Chicago would leave her with but one more serious contender in the championship race, Wisconsin, on Nov. 19, and a season of notable victories headed by that over Princeton.

Iowa appeared at Minneapolis for the game with Minnesota with 40 players from Iowa City, including the scrubs.

Northwestern and Purdue, tailenders, were to fight it out for cellar honors today at Lafayette, Ind.

Northwestern has three crippled stars and previous showing of the teams would indicate a victory for Purdue.

Nodtre Dame vs. Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Uncle Sam's cadets were called upon to face today one of the most dangerous football teams on the gridiron—Notre Dame. The Indiana team promised to carry the battle to the army through the medium of the forward pass, which has always been a keen rapier in the hands of Coach Rockne's men. Army was expected to rely largely on line plunges and end runs.

International Game

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—McGill university's football squad, having switched from Canadian to American college football in two weeks today meets Syracuse in the Memorial stadium. It was the first game scheduled between a United States and Canadian college football team in 41 years.

U. of Pittsburgh vs. Nebraska

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5.—The University of Pittsburgh football team looked for a tough tussle today, with the Nebraska team when they met in the first intersectional game in Pittsburgh this season. At the opening kickoff, Pitt was to go into the game without Quarterback Holloran and two others of its first string men—Bowser and McLean.

Marietta Plays B. C.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The elevens of Marietta and Boston college met at Braves Field today. Coach Griffiths of the Ohioans said he felt confident that Marietta would reverse the result of last year's game. The local collegians took the field crippled by casualties of earlier games.

Yale and Maryland Play

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Second string men predominated in the lineup of Yale in its contest today with Maryland university. The reserve strength will be test in the opening of the game but regulars are expected to have a hand in the battle before it is over. Clear, cold weather and a brisk wind greeted fans and players this morning.

The probable lineup:

YALE		MARYLAND
Hulman, le.		le. Young
Hidden lt.		lt, Nesbitt
McKay, lg.		lg. Brewer
Norris, c.		c. Tallock
Cross, rg.		rg, Gundry
Esselstyn, rt.		rt, Burger
Sturm, re.		re. Branner
Becket, q.		q. Groves
Adrich, lhb.		lhb, Plassing
Spieden, rhb.		rhb, B. Brewer
Mallory, f.		f. Patnucci

FOR REORGANIZATION OF RACE COMMITTEE

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 5.—Reorganization of the American race committee which had charge of the selection of the Elsie, unsuccessful defender of the International fishing vessel championship cup is demanded by Mayor Percy Wheeler. The present members should resign, he thinks. "Men who know the bowsprit of a schooner from its stern" should hold their places, and ports other than Gloucester should be represented, the mayor asserts.

His views, announced at a meeting last night, will be pressed, he said today until a new order of things is obtained. The mayor declared: "We want no more Mayflower episodes," referring to the fact that the Mayflower of Boston, nominated as the American defender was disbarred. "This race should be open to all. The committee should be composed of master mariners and vessel owners with representation for Provincetown and Boston."

NEPONSET A. A. TO PLAY INDIANS

Boston, Mass.,
November 4, 1921.

Dear Sir:

Will you kindly insert the following:

The Neponset A.A. which will play the Indians on the Lowell Fair grounds Sunday is managed by Jay Sweeney and he has in his lineup some familiar faces who have performed in the past in Lowell.

Among them are McDonald, Carlson and Gorman of Y.D. fame, Thorson and Foster of Fordham, McLaughlin and Ferris of the South Boston K. of C. team of last year, Haggerty, last year's all-interscholastic quarter-back, Devine and Gormley of high school fame and others.

The Neponset Wanderers have refused to play this club in spite of persistent challenges for the reason that the Neponset A.A. is considered one of the strongest clubs in Greater Boston.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
RAYMOND L. SWEENEY.
Mgr. Neponset A.A.

This game was arranged as a benefit to Owen Nerney.

CADETS PLAY SHARP'S NOBLES

Tomorrow afternoon the O. M. I. Cadets will buck up against the strong Sharf's Nobles on the North common. "Jack" Vaughn, Arthur White, "Jake" Cullen, Gigger Rogers and several other grid stars will be seen wearing Sharf's uniforms.

During the past week the Cadets have been drilling on some of Georgia Tech's famous hidden ball plays and aerial attacks. If these prove successful the "Nobles" will find the going very hard.

The game starts at 3 p. m.

Germany is the only country which has formally abolished tipping.

LOWELL HORSEMEN BUY SOME NEW ONES

Lowell horsemen made some excellent buys at the speed sale held under the management of George McKinney, Charles Lockwood and Daniel McKinney at the Readville track. Not for 12 years have so many good ones been under the hammer. Fully 20 Lowell followers of the driving game attended the auction, and numerous purchases were clinched.

Some of the buys came to Lowell this morning, two more are due tonight or Sunday, and on Tuesday morning, if a certain deal is put through in the meantime, one of the best little "ladies" that ever traveled without hopples will arrive in Lowell with a mark of 2.13¼ or near there.

Ray Frost of Roxbury, formerly of Lowell and one of the judges at the last Golden Cove meet, has bought Bertolini, 2.14¾, a bay gelding nine years old, by Bertini. Frost also picked up Rita C., a bay mare. Bertolini cost $270 and Rita C. went under the hammer for $110.

A handsome bay colt about a year old, by Justice Brooks, also went to Frost to fill out his string. A half-century bought this one.

Clinton Cofiin of Dracut came home with a fine animal, said to have cost him but little and one with a good pedigree.

Dan Fay purchased Monana, 2.25, aged four years, a bay gelding by Moko, the price being only $170. Fay brought him through Lowell last night stabling him in Nashua where he has winter quarters.

Alton G. Titus, the real estate man, brings home the bacon with Anna Donna, a brown filly two years old, by Peter O'Donna, $170 being top price.

R. L. Clark got Helen Mortain, a bay mare, 7 years, by Earl of Chatham, for a $55 check.

Dr. H. H. Watson of Haverhill paid $220 for Lady Harvester, bay filly, 3 years old, by The Harvester.

Oscar Dewel and Isaac E. Wotton also made good purchases. Oscar going "half" with another buyer on a fancy horse with a fair record.

POLO NOTES

Going up.

Lowell's victory over Worcester last night pushed the club up a peg in the league standing.

Bob Griffith of the Lawrence team was a spectator at last night's game. He said he was doing a little scouting, as Lowell plays in the down-river city tonight.

Owner Cronin of the Worcester team and Owner Daniels of Portland were at the game. Cronin came over with his team, but Daniels made the trip to call on Bob Hart, who has been laid up with a severe cold for the past week. He found Hart recovering and hopes to have him back in the lineup next week.

The playing of all members of the Lowell team was of a classy variety, and a continuance of such work will bring the team well up the ladder.

BOXING

well as in all other branches of sports is more productive of interest than the importation of out-of-town men, regardless of their class. This fact has been clearly demonstrated here during the past few weeks and the policy it is announced, will be continued.

The supporters of Benny Nelson, Billy Murphy, Johnny Avila and the other local boys turned out in large numbers the other night and the enthusiasm manifested was the most spontaneous here in many a day.

Lowell is certainly developing some artistic mitt wielders. Avila, Murphy and Nelson are truly promising performers. Nelson's defeat by Murphy while a setback was no disgrace. It was not because of Nelson being a poor fighter that he lost, but because Murphy is a much better workman. Both are bound to go higher on the pugilistic ladder.

Avila also showed superfine boxing ability. He resembles Benny Valger in action. Valger is noted as one of the country's leading defensive fighters. He always lets the other fellow do the leading, invariably sidestepping and popping his man as he comes forth. Avila, while not as finished as the New Yorker, has the same style. When the opening comes Avila, like Valger, is like a flash to grasp the opportunity and when he does go on the offensive he can launch a terrific attack.

Frank O'Dowd of the Acre would like nothing better than a match with Billy Murphy for the championship of the Acre. O'Dowd informed The Sun through his manager, Dan O'Heir, that he would meet Murphy at any place and any time. Manager O'Heir would like to meet the manager of Murphy at the latter's earliest convenience.

Perry who was defeated by Avila is a crafty ring general, using his head at all times. Only for his fine generalship he might have gone out early in the fray. He exercises good judgment and even in defeat he made a splendid impression.

LOWELL IN FINE FORM

Plays Championship Polo and Defeats Worcester by 11 to 5 Score

For two periods last night's Lowell-Worcester polo game at the Crescent rink was a closely fought contest but in the final stanza local goals were rained by Goal Tend Jette and when the hickories were tucked away for the night the count stood 11 to 5, with Lowell on the long end.

Lowell turned in its best performance of the season. Each and every member played real championship polo, with Davies and Alexander coordinating to perfection on the rush line, Quigley in mid-season form on the offense and defense at centre, Morrison like a stone wall before Thompson and Taylor, and Blount turning in one of his characteristic games at goal.

But Lowell had to cut loose for the visiting lineup is of the all-star variety. Lee Taylor and "Legs" Thompson are a fast and hard driving pair of rushes. Hardy and Donnelly are strong blockers and Jette plays a good goal.

It was through no inferiority on Worcester's part that Lowell won; rather it was due to the superior play of the home crew. Many thrills were witnessed during the game, Thompson hooked the ball out of the air and into the net for a peachy goal. Alexandar and Davies also turned in some artistic shots.

The first period brought Lowell three goals and Worcester one. Davies getting two and Alexander and Thompson one apiece. Thompson opened the second session with one for Worcester. Davies got it back a little later. Then Taylor got his first and last of the night and the session ended 4 to 3. Alexander launched a splendid attack as the final session got underway, scoring three in a row. Thompson then broke the monotony with one. Alex. landed another, and Thompson came back with a beaut. Quigley came up on the rush line and hammered through a brace and Davies landed another for good measure. They were coming thick and fast, but the big horn ended further scoring. The lineup:

The Living Room in This Home Gets Sunlight From Three Sides

There is a fireplace in the dining room of this model home plan, furnished The Sun by the Curtis Service Bureau, of Clinton, Ia.

There are seven rooms in this captivating little house, although it doesn't look it, and they are larger than average rooms, at that. The most important one—the living room—is 12 feet by 20 feet and occupies an entire end of the first floor, so that its grouped casements capture sunshine from three sides.

This room follows the English tradition in its panelled walls. Machine production places wall panelling within the reach of the builder of even a modest cottage. The Elizabethan type, such as is used in this little home, may be called the standard English panelling.

Plenty of Wall Space

In the middle of the outside wall of this room, the simple fireplace, with panelling for its over-piece, is flanked by pairs of casements. A long wall space opposite invites piano or davenport. The far end of the room consists of two permanent bookcases, with a built-in seat connecting them, under the casements.

The same excellent planning is evidenced in every room in the house. There is the desirable vestibule, the indispensable coat closet; the main stair hall, accessible from the kitchen directly, and communicating by means of the French doors with the living room on one side and dining room on the other.

The dining room has front location, with groups of casements on two sides. Its pleasing shape—a long rectangle with all four corners cut across, is due to built-in corner china cupboards at each side of the front pair of casements, a fireplace in a third corner, and the kitchen door in the fourth.

Provides an Alcove

The cutting off of this fourth corner makes a little alcove between kitchen and dining room that serves the same purpose as a pantry in eliminating noises and odors. One of the built-in dressers is in this location, equally convenient to kitchen and dining room.

There is an ironing board in a wall cabinet among the kitchen conveniences, also, and besides ample space for sink, drainboard, range, boiler and worktable, a folding breakfast table might be included. Only a cased opening separates the kitchen from the rear entry, an excellent place for the refrigerator and for receiving deliveries, and which is also the means of access to the basement. The small rear porch occupies a corner, so would require screening on only two sides to make it an outdoor workroom.

Four Bedrooms

There are four bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs. Besides the linen closet in the hall, each bedroom has its clothes closet. In the largest, a regular interior door—really a built-in chiffonier. A mirror door is an added convenience in one room, that hints of spring sewing as well. Each bedroom has a pleasant corner location, and promises cheerfulness and healthfulness in abundance of casements. Notice the pretty dormer in one room.

PAINT AND POWDER CLUB MEETING

The annual meeting of the Paint and Powder club was held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Meigs. Disappointment was expressed by the members when Miss Louise Jennison, the president of the club, who managed the vaudeville performance given last April, resigned her office. Miss Jennison gave a great deal of her time to the club last winter and used to advantage her experience gained as a member of the Idler club at Radcliffe. The club elected Mrs. James Abbott president for the coming year. As Miss Elizabeth Meigs resigned her position as secretary, Miss Leslie Hylan was given that office. Miss Margery Stover was re-elected treasurer.

To give a theatrical performance each year, the proceeds of which will be devoted to some worthy charity, is the aim of the club. After the performance last spring the Paint and Powder club was able to give $700 to the Lowell guild.

Crossly, 68 Humphrey street is the next meeting place.

LOOKS LIKE A MOVIE BUT IT ISN'T

THE LAST WORD IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

"Cancer Week" comes to an end tonight, but physicians and surgeons hope that the campaign will bear fruit in the weeks to come. A last-minute recital of pertinent facts in relation to the dangerous character of flesh wounds and sores is issued today by local physicians, who have been acting in conjunction with members of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, the statement reading as follows:

Any lump, especially in the breast.
Any irregular bleeding or discharge.
Any sore that does not heal—particularly about the tongue, mouth or lips.
Persistent indigestion with loss of weight.
Go immediately to a hospital or to a reputable physician if any of these signals are displayed and insist upon a thorough examination.
Don't wait to see if the condition will go away of itself.
Don't use patent medicines.
Don't allow advertising "Cancer Specialists" and "Quack Doctors" to treat you.
Don't be guided by anybody except a thoroughly competent physician.
Don't be ashamed to talk cancer. The right way is the only safe way.

WEEK DAY FAIR CLOSES TONIGHT

A supper and entertainment tonight brings to a close the three days' fair which has been conducted at the Y. M. C. A. by the ladies auxiliary. The supper tonight will be served from 5.30 until 7.

The sale yesterday afternoon and evening was reported as very brisk, in many instances it being necessary to rush fresh supplies to the various booths.

A musical program under the direction of Mrs. Rufus Corlew featured last night. Vocal selections by Miss Hazel Tuthill, readings by Miss Doris Yorke of Westford and piano selections and duets by Miss Charlotte Corlew and Clayton Cruthers were included.

This afternoon will be children's afternoon at which special features such as grab-bags, games and the like will be prominent. A special sale of dolls and children's toys at the Wednesday booth has been arranged. Piano selections by Beatrice Warner and Irma Carp, and a farce entitled "Kid Carlers" by four boys of the Middlesex county training school will be among the many numbers.

ARREST OF LOWELL BOYS IN NASHUA

Among the defendants who will appear before Judge Enright at the juvenile session of the district court next Friday are three boys, arrested yesterday, two charged with breaking and entering and larceny, and the other with larceny. Wilfred Giguere, 14 years old, of Hall street, and Sylvio Corignan, aged 14, of Moody street, were arrested at the railroad station in Nashua last night by Officer Ouellette at the request of the Tyngsboro police, who had sent reports of a break and a description of the youths to nearby cities and towns. It is alleged that the boys broke into the Tyngsboro cash market at Tyngsboro yesterday afternoon and stole a small sum of money and a quantity of various articles.

Much of the loot was found on their persons, the Nashua police say. The boys also admitted the break, according to the police of the New Hampshire city. They were returned to this city last night in charge of Officer Holt of Tyngsboro and Agent Richardson, of the Humane society, who is juvenile probation officer, was notified. He took custody of the youths until Friday.

The other boy who will face juvenile arraignment is George L. Fennell, aged 16, of Princeton street. He is alleged to have stolen a bicycle, the property of another boy, about two weeks ago. Since then Lieut. Maher and Sergt. Dwyer have been investigating the theft and yesterday afternoon took Fennell in custody.

More Liquor Imported

These government statistics of imports of liquors and wines reveal the ease with which booze can be withdrawn from bonded warehouses and the low prices give an idea of tremendous profits of bootleggers: how much was legally used for medicinal purposes is problematical:

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PLANS TO CUT DOWN REPUBLICAN MAJORITY

Aim of Chairman Hull---Senator Walsh Sounded Keynote of Democratic Policy in New York---Mysterious Rumors Concerning Ex-President Wilson

(Special to The Sun.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—The democratic effort to cut down the big republican majority in house and senate is one of the topics of the day at the capitol. The meeting of the democratic national committee in St. Louis this week has brought the matter to the front and senators and members of congress are giving much thought and attention to the probable outcome of that conference.

The headquarters of the party in Washington are to be enlarged and will be the center of political activities. The democrats believe the landslide victory for republicans last year resulted largely from a vigorous campaign begun long before the country at large realized a campaign was under way. Now the democrats propose to pursue the same tactics and begin the work of the 1922 campaign this fall. The slowness of a republican congress to make good its promises, opposition to the policies advanced by the republicans in congress, and a general clamor against the way that party has conducted a national program, but not fulfilled its pledges will be a target for the opening guns. It is understood here that the democrats are hopeful of cutting down the majority in senate and house and that the congressional committee will take a big part in the preliminary campaign soon to be inaugurated, and that the hope of regaining governors in many states, that last year went to the republican fold, though formerly democratic or close, is even stronger in the democratic breast of the national committee. Anyhow, Washington is keenly alive to the fact that the election is but a year away, and that primaries loom up in the more immediate future. "Be prepared" is the slogan of that party at this moment, and little groups of democratic congressmen can be seen daily, discussing the best methods to pursue.

Senator Walsh as Democratic Leader

It will be recalled that Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a leader of the democratic side of the senate was selected by New York democrats last June to make the leading address, when theories, methods and a general outline of the democratic policy for 1922 was the topic under discussion. In fact, it was the Massachusetts senator who was selected by the New York City club to set the pace for the great campaign of 1922.

It was a significant move on the part of the influential New York club, to select a northern democrat as its chief spokesman, and was at that time regarded as a move to make converts in New England and the east. Moreover it put in the foreground of the nation's stage a powerful democratic senator who bitterly opposed the League of Nations, and many other of the so called Wilson policies. Still more notable was the fact that Mr. Walsh, although progressive to a marked degree, preached old fashioned Jeffersonian democracy. He is a devout Catholic and devoted to the cause of Ireland, the land of his immediate ancestors. Mr. Walsh is an orator of powerful arguments and eloquence. In talking in New York last June, he advocated clinging to the original precepts of the democratic party, and not be led into untried by-paths. He pleaded for straight old fashioned democracy. His keynote speech was received with tremendous favor by the club, and it's safe to say Mr. Walsh will be one of the leaders in framing a party policy for the coming campaign. At this moment all his time is given over to the tax bill now before the senate and to which, he as a member of the finance committee, has suggested numerous amendments, which though they failed adoption, under his name—republicans preferring to frame a bill with republican amendments only—have met with very general favor from the senate regardless of partisanship. Even now it may be possible a Walsh amendment will be adopted at the eleventh hour.

Chairman Hull in Favor

The selection of Cordell Hull of Tennessee as chairman of the national committee meets with favor here. Judge Hull served long in congress but went down to defeat in the landslide in 1920. He is the author of the income tax bill and was high in rank on the ways and means committee when he went out of office. Those of us who knew him well personally have great confidence in his ability and integrity. He is a quiet man who talks little but works much. A reader and thinker who cares but little for social affairs or club life. How the judge will enjoy the bustling life of a committee chairman is a matter of doubt, but there seems to be no doubt here in the minds of congressmen who served with him in the house, that he will devote his time and energy to the task put before him. Since his defeat for congress he has spent much time abroad studying the condition in Europe, and it has been counted a foregone conclusion among his former colleagues that he intended to run for re-election to his old seat in the house, when the 1922 campaign opens.

Wilson a Man of Mystery

The condition of former President Wilson is once more shrouded in mystery. Bulletins, or perhaps statements, would better describe them, have this week been issued by his physician Dr. Grayson, to the effect that although still confined to his bed, Mr. Wilson "is improving rapidly."

Not until Marshal Foch called at the Wilson home to pay his respects was it known to the outside world that Mr. Wilson had suffered another ill turn. But the marshal was informed, when he called that Mr. Wilson was ill, and under the order of his physician could receive no visitors, so the marshal left his card with messages of condolence.

But right on the back of that statement jumps the one that Mr. Wilson is expected to attend the opening of the disarmament conference and also take part in the memorial ceremonies at Arlington cemetery on Armistice Day, November 11th. Statements are likewise buzzing through the air to the effect that Mr. Wilson will soon break his long silence on political and international affairs, and will again come to the front in the approaching campaign.

In fact there are as many contradictory statements flying through the air at this moment, regarding Mr. Wilson's health and purposes, as there were a year ago, while he was still in office, but remaining invisible to the leaders of his party and the people of Washington in general.

Many Foreigners in Capital

Tourists visiting Washington just now are treated to unusual sights. For instance, shortly before the house adjourned yesterday, a long string of big automobiles coursed slowly through the capitol grounds, and peering from them with eager faces, were half a hundred or more Chinese delegates, attaches and secretaries who have just reached the city. They were chattering rapidly in their own language, pointing out buildings or views that attracted their attention, and laughing among themselves in a very amiable fashion. They were dressed in conventional manner after the fashion of this country, and I could but recall how short a time ago it was when Minister Wu Ting Fang and Madame Wu were familiar figures on the streets of the city dressed in native costumes of rare silk, heavy brocades and wearing little round caps, richly jeweled. In fact, the Japanese, Koreans, and Chinese members of the diplomatic corps, were, a few years ago, the "observed of all observers" at state reception, on the street and at their own official functions, for they carried out to the fullest degree possible here, the court rules and costumes of their own nations.

Now passers by see them riding through the city street with much freedom and attracting but little notice, unless in large groups.

The opening of the armament conference will bring together a motley assembly, with the white and the yellow races sharing all ceremony and influence on a fifty-fifty basis.

Congressman Rogers' Duties

On the broad shoulders of the Hon. John Jacob Rogers, of Lowell, member of congress from the 5th district, will fall the responsibilities of the house committee on foreign affairs through the approaching conference. Mr. Rogers is ranking member of that committee and will thus become its acting chairman in the absence of Chairman Porter, who will be one of the American advisors by appointment of President Harding.

RICHARDS.

Why Dread Old Age?

It don't make much difference how old you are if you only keep in good health and are active. Many people appear older at 50 than others do at 70, to keep looking young you have got to enjoy good health, and do as little worrying as possible. Backaches, swollen joints and legs, disturbed sleep by being compelled to arise one or more times during the night are sure symptoms of kidney trouble, and should have immediate attention to avoid serious consequences. SEVEN BARKS, nature's remedy of roots and herbs, is one of the best remedies to take not only for affected kidneys, but for liver, stomach and heart troubles.

Middle-aged people realize that they cannot perform their work or move around as fast as formerly. The intestinal organs feel the effect of age and do not perform their work properly. The heart palpitates on the slightest exertion and the back aches after a day's work. The muscles and flesh get flabby, and the blood thinner than formerly, it is then you need a good tonic and bowel regulator—you cannot find a more reliable and efficient remedy for these conditions than SEVEN BARKS.

If you want to enjoy life, recover some of your youthful vigor and have the glow of health, get SEVEN BARKS of your druggist. Do not accept a substitute.—Adv.

Trading in rails was trivial some of the leaders not being quoted. The closing was irregular. Sales amounted to 750,000 shares. The bond market was fairly active, some of the Liberty issues continuing their recent general advance to new high records.

ON FEDERAL ROADS

New Feature of Highway Act Differs From Act of 1916

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Requirements as to how each state shall select its federal aid roads constitute the principal new feature of the federal highway act, enactment of which has just been completed, as differentiating from the federal aid act of 1916, according to an analysis of the bill today, by the Federal Farm Bureau federation.

To secure part or all of its allotment of the $75,000,000 of federal funds appropriated for road construction for the remainder of the fiscal year, a state must select a connected road system not exceeding 7 per cent of its entire road mileage for improvement with federal aid. This system is to be divided into two classes of roads, one consisting of interstate roads, which shall not exceed three-sevenths of the system selected and upon which not more than 60 per cent of the state's allotment can be expended without the joint approval of the secretary of agriculture, as administrator of the act and the state highway department. The other class, consisting of inter-county roads, will compose the balance of the system and receive the remainder of the allotment.

The amount of federal aid received on any project, however, is not to exceed 50 per cent of the estimated cost, except in states where more than five per cent of the area is unappropriated public land, this latter provision increasing the percentage in ten states, ranging up to 77 per cent for Utah. Where any state fails to properly maintain a federal aid highway the secretary of agriculture, after 90 days notice, will maintain it out of the state's allotment and refuse approval of new projects until reimbursement is made by the state.

As in the preceding bill, the federal fund is apportioned among the state by division into three parts, one apportioned on a basis of population, one on a basis of area and the other according to mileage of rural and star mail routes. A new feature, however, stipulating that no state shall receive less than one-half of one per cent of the funds, increases the allotments to Delaware, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont to $365,624 each.

CHURCHMEN DENOUNCE BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—Prohibition agents, in the opinion of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, of the Methodist Episcopal church, "should be instructed to remember their wives, children and the people of the United States when their lives are placed in danger by bootleggers and moonshiners," the board said in a statement issued today.

"Bootleggers are the worst kind of criminals, frequently ex-convicts and cruel killers. They are dangerous in the extreme. When a bootlegger draws a gun, he should be fired upon and that quickly. They (prohibition officers) owe it to themselves, to their wives, to their children and above all to the majesty of the law to do so."

REPARATIONS BODY TO VISIT BERLIN

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The entire reparations commission, including Roland W. Boyden, the unofficial member for the United States, will leave for Berlin next Monday or Tuesday. The commission will remain in the German capital two or three weeks to investigate measures by which Germany may procure the necessary fund to meet the payment of 500,000,000 gold marks due to the allies on Jan. 15, 1922. It will also investigate the causes for the recent depreciation in value of the German mark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—German marks today fell to the lowest level in history—.3925 cents.

PLACED ON PROBATION

William C. Johnson, recently sentenced to the house of correction for non-support of his wife and two children, after he had declared to Judge Enright his desire to go to jail rather than give money to his wife, was placed on probation in the district court today after he had promised the court and his wife that he would be a different man from now on.

Johnson, on the night of the day he made his outburst to the court here, wrote a letter from the house of correction to Judge Enright apologizing for his act and asking that he reconsider his conviction. The judge as well as Probation Officer Cronin further investigated the case and at a recent appeal of Johnson's wife he was withdrawn from the Cambridge institution. Judge Enright stated today he personally went to the master of the house of correction yesterday to inquire about Johnson's conduct. The court gave the defendant a few sound instructions after which he told him he would be under the protective wing of the probation officer, his sentence being suspended.

FRANK O'HARE'S "COLONEL" DEAD

Agent Frank O'Hare, of the board of health, is mourning the loss of a dear friend, the "Colonel" with whom he had been associated in business for a great many years. The "Colonel" was none other than the stately Kentucky horse driven for years by Mr. O'Hare in the health department. The animal was a great pet and was treated in the most kindly manner by Mr. O'Hare on all occasions. The "colonel" was 27 years old, and of late showed symptoms of indigestion, and it was probably an acute attack of this disease from which he died a few days ago despite the efforts of a veterinary doctor to prolong his life.

Upon entering, so he claims, he saw a strange man near one of the tables. He grabbed a chair and chased the intruder, but the latter made his escape through a rear window. The police are investigating.

He had given it up to a man who demanded it, thinking he was a jail official, but it was Kimmel, who presented it to the doorkeeper and won his liberty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Retirement of Secretary Mellon as "the fiscal head of the government" was demanded in the senate today by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, because of the attitude which the Wisconsin senator said the treasury held toward "the taxation of wealth." MOORE FIGHTS IN SACCO CASE

Armed Guards Resumed at Dedham Courthouse as Hearing Proceeds

Defense Counsel Cites Instances of Court Action in This State

DEDHAM, Nov. 5.—The hearing before Judge Webster Thayer of the superior court on petitions of a new trial of Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was continued at the courthouse here today. Counsel for the men, who were convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree for a double killing in connection with a payroll robbery at South Braintree in April, 1920, resumed the arguments in their behalf begun last Saturday.

The extra guard of state constabulary and state, county and local police, was again on duty. Officers armed with repeating rifles and sidearms patrolled the vicinity of the courthouse, and searched all persons who entered.

Attorney Moore Argues

Fred H. Moore, of counsel for the defense, cited what he said were authorities to permit the setting aside of a jury verdict on the grounds of insufficient evidence. Mr. Moore said that the bulk of the cases he cited were beyond the jurisdiction of Massachusetts but said he could show that the supreme court of Massachusetts had recognized the right to set aside a jury verdict. The court said he particularly desired instances wherein Massachusetts jury verdicts had been set aside, saying that the Massachusetts courts were not usually influenced by the action of courts in other states.

Arguing on the evidence upon which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted, Moore said that not one witness had placed Venzetti at the actual scene of the shooting. Two witnesses had said they saw him in an automobile after the crime and two witnesses had said they saw him somewhere near South Braintree, several hours before the crime.

"Grant by a stretch of the imagination," said Mr. Moore, "that there was sufficient evidence to convict Sacco, where is there evidence to convict Vanzetti? And if there was not sufficient evidence to convict Vanzetti, then the fact of the verdict of guilty for both of them is a challenge to the court against the conviction of the defendant Sacco."

Court Has Power

"Not only these defendants but the administration of justice in Massachusetts is on trial here," said Mr. Moore. "Conditions over which no human being could have control, have made this case of more than national interest. The power lies in this court to right this wrong and grant the defendants a new trial, which simply gives the men another day in court."

Mr. Moore reviewed the evidence in the case stressing the clean cut manner in which the murder and $15,000 payroll robbery were executed. "To say these are the men who planned and committed that crime," Mr. Moore said, "you must recognize them as supermen. Not a single dollar, not a single pay envelope stolen at the time, has been found since and there has been nothing tangible upon which to base their conviction," he said.

"Without the evidence as to consciousness of guilt, as Your Honor allowed it to go into the records, where would there be any evidence to convict?" he asked.

The jury utterly disregarded the alibi evidence of Sacco and Vanzetti, counsel added.

GRATEFUL FOR LOAN OF CHAIRS

The firm of C. H. Molloy's Sons, the well known Market street undertakers, made a notable contribution to the success of the cancer lecture at city hall on Thursday evening. Mayor Thompson stated today that the unexpectedly large crowd found those in charge of the building totally unprepared for seating accommodations, and they were obliged to secure extra seats in a hurry. On going to the Molloy establishment, it was learned that a large number of the chairs which are used by undertakers were available and were loaned to the committee in charge of the lecture free of charge. The mayor believes that this generous act deserves special mention and has expressed his thanks to the firm on behalf of the committee and himself.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Louise Leonard Thursday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. Corson, 90 Agawam street, when about 75 of her friends gathered and presented her many valuable and useful gifts, including cut glass, silver and linen, etc. Although taken wholly by surprise, Miss Leonard responded in a fitting manner. After a musical program, during which many of the young ladies took part, refreshments were served. Those in charge of the affair were the Misses Anna Smith, Margaret McHugh, Kittie Duffy, Catherine Kane, Anna O'Neill and Belle Leonard. The party left at a reasonable hour, wishing the bride-to-be the best of luck and happiness.

STORY OF POWDER HORN FOUND HERE ALMOST A CENTURY AGO

JOHN A. KELLEY, HOLDING POWDER HORN

Reading The Sun is something more than a pastime with a great many Lowell citizens. John A. Kelley, well known resident of West Third street, for many years an expert house painter and interior decorator, now retired from active work, is a daily reader of Sun items classed as "unusual"—items that, perhaps, arouse curiosity and excite more than ordinary attention. Mr. Kelley, always gets rare enjoyment, he says, from "something out of the ordinary."

The ex-painter was reading his favorite evening newspaper at his home, No. 54 a few nights ago when his quest for something "unusual" led him to this little item tucked away in The Man About Town column:

"I am trying to locate an old-time family by the name of Farwell, that lived at one time near what is now Lowell. Who was Olive, wife of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford, prior to 1640?"

Mr. Kelley read and re-read the little item, and slowly spelled out the name "Farwell." His memory is excellent, and the name seemed somehow very familiar.

"Farwell!" he exclaimed, as he laid down The Sun and walked over to the mantel-piece.

"William Farwell, Ye 1775."

Mr. Kelley believes that this man Farwell, who undoubtedly once owned the horn, may be some relative of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford. He is anxious to find out if some member of the old family is still living, and would like to meet anyone at his home on West Third street, any day who can trace the ancestry of the Farwell family back to the days when William carved his name in this powder horn.

Story of the Horn

The history of this quaintly carved horn has never been told before, and is most interesting indeed, having to do with the early lives of settlers in this part of Massachusetts and especially those around the so-called "Fort Hill section" of what is now a great residential section of the City of Spindles.

John A. Kelley was born on old Market street, Lowell, just 83 years ago. He has been a painter all his life, and has done much work for large local corporations, notably the Merrimack mills. His record as an interior decorator and painter is also filled with remarkable works. He has painted the inside of St. Patrick's and St. Michael's churches. He was one of the very first to work on old St. Peter's church, when the venerable and greatly beloved Father Cruddon was leader of that parish.

Mr. Kelley's wife died some 16 years ago. No children are living, and Mr. Kelley resides with his two nephews, John and Charles Kelley, of the firm of Kelley Brothers, West Third street.

The story of the finding of the old powder horn is told with much descriptive detail by Mr. Kelley. His wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Duffy, went one fine morning nearly 100 years ago for a walk into the country. At that time Fort Hill territory was nothing but woods and pastures. As the couple climbed the hill, and about half way from the bottom, they nearly stumbled over an object that lay partially hidden amid tall grass, leaves and old sticks of wood. It was the old powder horn and it was in a fine state of preservation. Despite the fact that it must have lain on Fort Hill since the revolutionary war period, no part of it had suffered deterioration from the elements.

Wonderfully Carved

The horn today is a great curiosity in every way. It is covered with hand carvings, excellently done by someone well trained in drawing figures. There are carvings of Indians, fishes, rabbits, deer, eel, birds, frogs and fish on the bone. The largest drawing is that of an Indian entirely naked except for a breech cloth and a small set of feathers.

Upraised arm, tomahawk, expression of ferocity—all are there quaintly carved on the horn bone. Pictures of human hearts, square-shaped figures of remote origin, round objects meant for something not known in these days of "something new," appear before the eyes as the horn is slowly turned around in the hands. It is an object without doubt of great antiquity and historic value.

Mr. Kelley has no idea as to where the powder carrier might have come from, neither does he know how it came to be lying on the ground on the side of old Fort Hill, but he earnestly believes that some day it will be proved that the horn was carried by its owner, William Farwell, possibly during some of the skirmishes with Indians who frequented Fort Hill in days of yore.

The West Third street painter will be glad to show his interesting relic to any antiquarian interested in it, and repeat the story of its recovery from the wilds of the historic hillside.

"Children's Book Week" will be observed at the Lowell city library from Monday, Nov. 14 to Saturday, Nov. 19. All parents are urged to visit the library during the week.

In the upper room will be held an exhibition of the latest recommended children's books and attractive editions of the classics.

New quarters have just been arranged in the library basement for the bound volumes of Lowell newspapers, covering almost 100 years of publication. Library employes have been at work all the week getting the big room ready and placing shelves and large frames for the scores of bound volumes. Today the quarters were in shape for visitation, and all of the newspaper volumes were arranged in good order for quick finding. This room will undoubtedly be a popular place for those who like to "dig" back into old newspaper files.

The newspapers now on the shelves are numerous, indicating Lowell's progress from "four pages to twenty-two" and sometimes more. The names of most of the newspapers are familiar to present day readers, but there are some on the shelves almost forgotten in the rapid advance of time.

There are, for instance, excellent volumes of old copies of the Lowell Morning Times, the Advertiser, Le Supplement, the old Evening Star, Lowell Daily Journal and Courier (volumes 1849-1856), Daily Citizen & News, Morning and Evening Mail, The Courier, The Experiment, (volumes 1832-1833), published by Horatio H. Weld; Evening Democrat, Morning Herald (volumes of 1885), Morning Herald, issues of 1844; Daily News, Daily Courier, La Revell, La Revue de Lowell, La Republique, Le Journal, Saturday Free Press, N. E. Greek Messenger, La Verite, Daily Telegram, Sunday Telegram, L'Etoile, Sunday News, Centralville Sunday News and complete files of the Lowell Sun.

JOHN CONWAY DEAD

Well Known Patrolman Passed Away This Morning

John E. Conway, for many years a well known and respected officer of the Lowell police department, died this morning at St. John's hospital, after a lingering illness, aged 51 years. Patrolman Conway was born in this city Oct. 23, 1869, and received his education in the local schools. He was appointed a supernumerary officer Nov. 13, 1897, and was promoted to regular Oct. 23, 1899. During the past few years he had been patrolling the so-called "Flats" district on the day shift. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, Mrs. Della (Ryan) Conway; four daughters, Mrs. Alice Deporcher, Misses Elizabeth, Annabelle and Marion Conway, and two sons, William and John Conway. He was an esteemed member of the Massachusetts Police Protective association; Lowell Aerie, No. 223, F.O.E., and the U. S. Bunting club. The remains were removed to his late home, 4 Billerica street, by Undertakers O'Connell & Fay.

THE DRUNKEN MOTORIST

Question of Dealing With Drunken Auto Drivers Discussed by Judges

The question of dealing with drunken operators of motor vehicles and the establishment of a penalty to fit the crime will be introduced by Judge Enright of this city at the meeting of the Massachusetts district court judges at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, this afternoon.

The local judge stated from the bench at the district session this morning that he hoped this all-important question would be settled in some decisive form at the session this afternoon. Judge Enright had previously stated he recently interviewed the assistant district attorney of Middlesex county and obtained from him the views regarding this particular offense maintained by Judge Brown of the superior court at Cambridge.

Judge Brown, the local justice was told, does not impose a direct sentence in cases where it is the first offense and there is no danger, either to property or to person caused.

Judge Enright did not appear satisfied with the superior court justice's opinion and stated: "Of course Judge Brown is entitled to his opinion and I'm entitled to mine. Campaigns are being launched by newspapers seeking jail conviction for these menaces to the highways and the commission has repeatedly asked us to impose direct sentence. Many licenses are being revoked for this very offense. A drunken auto driver is a menace to the public on one hand. However, on the other hand, if he is a good, reputable citizen and it is his first offense a direct sentence would be somewhat drastic. Anyway, I'm going to find out this afternoon how the other judges of district courts feel about it."

The judge then stated he would be away next week and ordered the case of Philias Rochette, charged with drunkenness and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, continued to Nov. 19 so that he may be back on the bench to deal with this particular case which the court continued last week, that he might interview the district attorney.

SEC. FALL SENDS A SUPERPOWER REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

Gigantic Scheme for Consolidating the Generation and Distribution of Electric Power in Region Between Boston and Washington

Secretary of the Interior Fall is transmitting today to President Harding the completed report of what has been popularly called the superpower survey, an engineering study conducted by the United States geological survey. The appropriation act under which congress provided for this work refers to it as "the special investigation of the possible economy of fuel, labor and material resulting from the use in the Boston-Washington region of a comprehensive system for generating and distributing electricity to transportation lines and industries." Congress expected this intensive study to be completed within the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, and in compliance with this expectation the manuscript report was in the hands of the director of the geological survey on July 1. The published report, with its wealth of technical information in the form of statistical tables, text figures and maps, has now been issued from the government press—a record of promptness that is gratifying to the public.

The superpower project makes its appeal to the general public as a means of saving coal and of increasing the productivity of labor. The nation's business demands greater and cheaper production and better and cheaper transportation, and the electrification of industries and railroads is the answer to that demand. To connect all the large generating plants —both steam and water power—in one great system means more and cheaper electric current, because each ton of coal will be used to the best advantage and our idle rivers will be made to turn wheels, especially in the regions farthest removed from the coal fields.

Looking ahead to 1930, with the increased demand for power that can then be reasonably expected, the total coal saved annually under the unified system will be 50 million tons. Under motor operation the industries could save $190,000,000 annually in their power bill and could make a greater output of product. The ordinary citizen also ought to profit directly by the superpower system because it promises a reduction of one cent a kilowatt hour in the first cost of the current as put on the transmission lines. Cheaper electricity and more of it will bring comfort to the home as well as efficiency to the workshop, even though the reader may search this engineering report in vain for any basis whatever for the pleasant vision of electric-heated homes throughout our land. Superpower does not stand for the impossible but only for the wider application of practical engineering and sound economics.

The North Atlantic coast region to which it is proposed to supply more and cheaper electric current was selected for this study because its industries and railroads have the maximum requirements for power. Unfortunately, this region is not blessed with the abundance of water power that is possessed by the Pacific coast states, so that the plan of power production includes large steam plants at tidewater or on rivers large enough to furnish sufficient condensing water and hydro-electric power plants wherever they can be economically built on the rivers within the zone or within transmission distance. After 1930 cheap power from the proposed St. Lawrence improvement and from additional capacity at Niagara falls may be available for western New England and New York state, which will benefit greatly by the development of these new sources of energy.

ANOTHER NEW DISEASE

Man in District Court Was Suffering From "Food Smelling Sickness"

Sick of smelling food while working in a local restaurant, a man, yet young in years but apparently aged due to neglect and force of circumstances, faced the bench in district court this morning and told Judge Enright he had not eaten for four days. He had been picked up on Middlesex street early this morning and taken to the station as a suspicious person, the police alleged. He was a window cleaner by trade, he told the court, but had recently worked in a local restaurant where he contracted this supposed "food smelling sickness." And not only did he relate his sad hunger plight to the court but he also told of a man for whom he recently worked stealing $50 from him, all the money in the world he possessed. The judge was very much impressed with the man's story and called a lawyer to the bench asking him to look into the case. The attorney promised to aid him and told him to go to his office where he could tell him all the particulars regarding the alleged theft.

Then ways and means of giving the suspicious person something to eat were being devised when the same attorney withdrew a dollar bill from his pocket and handed it to a court officer instructing him to get the man something to eat and then accompany him to his office. The lawyer's kind act elicited much favorable comment.

STILL INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF DEATH

How Edward J. Dillon, machinist, and 50 years old, lately a resident at 41 Rock street, met injuries that caused his death at St. John's hospital Thursday night, has not yet been determined by the police. However, the inspectors investigating the case, called to the attention of the police by Medical Examiner Dr. Thomas R. Smith yesterday, have learned several facts that lead them to believe Dillon sustained his fatal injuries when he fell down a flight of stairs at the Rock street address last Sunday night.

He was unconscious when removed in the ambulance from the house to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness, hospital attaches state.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the many friends and neighbors, also the employes of the Lawrence hosiery, who with their many acts of kindness, flowers and spiritual bouquets, helped to lighten my sorrow during the sickness and death of my sister, Sabina Mooney.

CRAIG CONFERS WITH BRITISH

Ulster Premier in Conference With Lloyd George and Commons Leader

Claims Nothing Will be Settled Behind Backs of Ulstermen

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, had a long interview with Prime Minister Lloyd George at the latter's official residence soon after his arrival today. Austen Chamberlain, government leader in the house of commons, also was present.

After Sir James left the prime minister's residence, he was quoted by a representative of the Belfast Telegraph as stating that he had called on Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer, as a result of an invitation received today. Sir James, according to the newspaper representative's version, added:

"I have arranged that if and when Ulster's interests are reached in the Irish conference, all the Ulster representatives will be asked to attend. In the meantime nothing will be settled behind our backs."

It was announced that the week-end party at Chequers Court, Mr. Lloyd George's country home, would consist only of the immediate members of his family, since he was extremely tired after a very busy week.

IRELAND AS AN ASSOCIATE NATION

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—Desmond Fitzgerald today contradicted several reports emanating from London relative to the basis of agreement said to have been reached at the London conference.

It is estimated in these quarters, however, that a formula has been agreed upon, bridging that difficulty, whereby Ireland would not be designated as a British dominion but as an "associate nation." It is further stated that a solution of the Ulster problem must come, if it comes at all, through Ulster's recognition of the principle of unity in Ireland.

It developed today that the report made public yesterday from Belfast to the effect that all the Sinn Fein prisoners in the Ballykinlar internment camp near that city, numbering about 1700, had been released was erroneous. The giving out of the report, it seems, was based on the release of a number of prisoners from this camp owing to congestion there, but no general freeing of the interned men at Ballykinlar occurred.

GREAT ACTIVITY TODAY AT ELECTION BOARD'S OFFICE AT CITY HALL

The election commissioners' office was a busy place in the late morning hours today, when 19 of the candidates at the coming primary appeared to file their papers, among them Samuel Scott, candidate for mayor. When the office closed at 12.30, 108 candidates had filed, four for mayor, 36 for councilor at large, 48 for ward councilor and 20 for school committee.

Three new candidates took out papers today, all for councilor at large, Tyler A. Stevens, Park street, who will be remembered as a prominent member of the city government under the old form of charter, being at one time president of the common council, and who has always taken a keen interest in public affairs, was one of the number. Edward F. Purcell, the contractor, residing at 250 Fairmount street, and John J. McAuliffe of 87 Linden street, a young man of prominence in fraternal circles, also entered the contest.

Late yesterday afternoon James J. Roddy, 19 Chestnut square, took out papers for councilor in ward 3, and Dr. Patrick J. Meehan, 282 Appleton street registered for school committee.

Those who have filed papers since the list was published are as follows:

For mayor, Samuel Scott.

Councilor at large—James J. Gallagher, Patrick H. Grady, James J. Flanagan, Albert Bergeron, Michael F. O'Brien, 3r., John J. Townsend, and Stewart C. Guline.

Ward 3—Ward councilor—Louis W. Richard, Louis J. Lord, Donald M. Cameron; ward 4, Fred A. Sadlier; ward 5, Joseph C. Clark; ward 6, Robert J. Laird; ward 7, George T. Hobden, Arthur Genest, Cornelius F. Crowlin; ward 9, George Tyrrell.

School committee—Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Howard D. Smith, Matthew D. Doyle and William H. Rigby.

Lots of New Talent

In glancing over the lineup for the municipal primaries it would seem that the advent of the new form of charter not only has reawakened the political aspirations of many of our old-timers but has brought forth a considerable flock of new talent from which selections might be made that would, with the leavening influence of a few of the more experienced candidates, give us a city government calculated to satisfy the public demand for a different sort of administration of the city's affairs; a demand which seemed to find emphasis in the recent overthrow of the commission form of government.

Passing over the mayoralty list for the moment, we find in the councilor groups a number of young men who have already demonstrated some ability in public affairs or have the training and other qualifications necessary for successful tenure of public office. Many of the older candidates rendered capable service in past city governments and may be considered strong candidates for public favor in the present instance. Doubtless a large proportion of the candidates will conduct active outdoor campaigns as the primary date approaches and others will work along other lines. The public is certain to have an opportunity of judging their fitness before the votes are cast.

Only two members of the present school board are candidates at the coming primary, as far as can be learned at the present time. There are plenty of others, though, who are willing to attempt the administration of the school department, and it seems that in this case, also, it will be possible to choose

Edward L. Fickett is Charged With Larceny From Lowell Men

Edward L. Fickett of Lincoln, formerly treasurer of the Automobile Finance and Sales company, agents for the Kenworthy motor cars, with headquarters on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, was held for the grand jury by Judge Enright in the district court today, on a charge of larceny, His bail, which was furnished, was set at $5000. The case was heard in the local court last Monday. The trial as a lengthy and complicated one and the court at the time reserved decision until today. The larceny charge had arisen from a loan obtained in this city last February.

Fickett, as treasurer of the company, it is alleged, borrowed $11,753.54 from David W. Dewar, a local business man, on a promissory note, the latter obtaining the money from the Old Lowell National bank. As collateral, a bill of sale for six automobiles was given. During the trial it was shown that three of the cars named on the bill of sale given the local bank were also included among automobiles named in a bill of sale given the Metropolitan Trust company of Boston, when a loan was obtained from that institution shortly after. The judge today stated he had thoroughly investigated the case and felt satisfied a fault had been committed.

It is said diamonds have been discovered in fallen meteors.

VOTE AGAINST TUFTS

Bar Association Would Disbar Him as Result of Supreme Court Decision

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The council of the Middlesex Bar association voted today to bring disbarment proceedings against Nathan A. Tufts, who was removed from office as district attorney of Middlesex county by the supreme court recently. The grievance committee which had unanimously recommended action against Tufts was instructed by the council to bring a petition for disbarment and was given full powers in the matter.

The question of disbarment proceedings was considered by the grievance committee soon after the supreme court found Tufts guilty of using his office for improper purposes. Several meetings were held at which Tufts and his counsel were heard. Later Attorney General J. Weston Allen, who instituted the removal proceedings in the supreme court, was heard.

TOKIO ADVISES U. S. DELEGATES

Official Word of Hara's Death Received in Washington by Jap Embassy

Murderer is Son of Prominent Soldier—Slayer Was Political Fanatic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Takashi Hara, premier of Japan, was stabbed at 7.25 yesterday and died soon afterward, the Japanese embassy here was advised today by the Tokio foreign office, in the first word of the assassination to reach Washington from the Japanese government.

All Japanese social functions attendant on the forthcoming conference, however, have been postponed.

Whether the death of the Japanese premier might affect plans for the armament within the Japanese delegation or otherwise, was a question to which an answer was looked for today.

The embassy communication said Viscount Uchida, foreign minister in the Hara cabinet, had been made acting premier but gave no details as to the assassination.

The message was received in uncoded form, but its filing time indicated that it had experienced considerable delay.

Nations Express Horror

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination yesterday of Takashi Hara, the premier, poured into Tokio today from the capitals of virtually all nations. The attack on M. Hara was made by a demented youth, and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in the political rancor which actuated bitter assaults upon M. Hara and his government in the recent past.

Viscount Uchida, former Japanese minister to the United States and foreign minister in M. Hara's cabinet since 1918, has assumed the post of acting premier, pending a possible reconstruction of the government.

THE WORCESTER AND LOWELL GAME

A pretty drop kick by Marble, the fleet-footed quarterback of Lowell Textile, enabled the local school to draw first blood in the annual clash with Worcester Tech this afternoon at Textile field.

Standing on Worcester's 35-yard line in the first period, Marble dropped the ball over the bar in pretty fashion for the only score of the first half of the contest.

In the second period Marble again tried to score another three points by similar tactics but the wind carried the pigskin to one side.

The Textile line withstood the attack of the Worcester invaders in fine style and during the first half the visitors were only able to make three first downs against seven for Lowell. Macher twice drew the crowd to its feet by pulling off long runs, once for 35 yards and later for 20, but was stopped before he could cross the opposing goal line. In the second period the Lowell team had the ball on Worcester's 20-yard line but a 10-yard penalty spoiled all chances for a touchdown.

Spur, Worcester's right guard, was put out of the game for slugging. A fight with Lowell players was narrowly averted, other players stepping in.

The third period was scoreless, with the ball being carried back and forth, first by one side and then the other. In the fourth period Textile had the ball on Worcester's ten-yard line and lost it in an attempted forward pass which fell to the ground. Walker displayed some good football in the latter part of the game. Farwell was continually pulled back from tackle to rush the ball. With the game practically over, the score was still unchanged.

174 CENTRAL STREET

PALMER STADIUM, Nov. 5.—Princeton defeated Harvard, 10 to 3 here this afternoon. All the scoring was done in the final period. Owen kicked a field goal for Harvard, making the score 3 to 0. Gilroy then scored a touchdown for princeton. Keck kicked the goal. Keck then kicked a field goal.

The Crimson men were followed a few minutes later by the Princeton team, who were given a wild cheer as they came on the field.

Princeton won the toss and elected to defend the north goal with a gale of wind at its back. This forced Harvard to kick off and Hubbard drove the ball to Princeton's 10-yard line where Lourie ran it back to his 37-yard line before he was run out of bounds.

Princeton in three attacks on Harvard's line gained but six yards and Lourie punted, the wind carrying the ball for a touchback. The Crimson put the ball in play on its 20-yard line. Owen made two yards through Baker Owen picked up another two yards at centre. On the third down, Fitts punted out of bounds, at midfield. The stiff wind held the Harvard back's drive to a minimum gain. On Princeton's first lineup, Cleves broke through the line for a five-yard gain and Garrity made it first down for Princeton on Harvard's 36-yard line. Garrity again split between Brown and Clark for a three-yard gain, but offside play caused imposition of a five-yard penalty. Cleves failed to gain in an end run at Macomber's position.

Accident Prevents Score

On the next line up, a forward pass, Lourie to Snively, brought the ball to Harvard's 30-yard line. Cleves gained for Princeton and it was declared a first down on the Crimson 20-yard mark. The Crimson eleven spread out across the field and Lourie hurled a long forward pass which was caught by Stinson a foot from the Crimson line. As the latter turned to run for a touchdown, he crashed into the goal post directly at his back and the force of the collision made him drop the ball, which rolled over the line. The play thus developed into an incompleted forward pass behind the goal line and Harvard put the ball in play on her 20-yard line.

Harvard in a relayed pass made two yards around Stinson's end, gained two more in a line plunge and then Fitts punted out of bounds and near midfield. The ball was brought back, however, and Princeton penalized for roughing the punter. Harvard got a first down on its own 34-yard line. Gilroy twisted his ankle in the play and the game was delayed while he received medical attention.

Tigers Penalized

From a fake formation Buell pierced Princeton's center for a yard and a repetition of the formation Fitts made it first down in a broken field run between Baker and Hooper on Harvard's 45-yard line. For the third time the deception formation was used Fitts gaining four yards between Morgan and Keck. Gilroy pulled down Fitts after the latter had gained three yards more on the same play. Buell plunged through Princeton's center for another yard. Owen made it first down over Wittmer on Princeton's 45-yard line.

Stinson spilled F[illegible] the latter's che[illegible] at [illegible] the Tiger line. [illegible]rined 10 A[illegible] [illegible]e field [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]of tacklers. Owen made a yard gain through the middle of the Princeton line. Owen on a delayed pass, was spilled by Baker without gain. From the 25-yard line Buell tried a drop kick but the wind carried it to one side of the goal posts and the Tigers opened an attack from their own 20-yard line. Garrity gained a yard in a line plunge and Princeton was again penalized five yards for offside play. Garrity regained the five yards.

First Period No Score

Garrity again knocked out three yards, Lourie punted and Buell made a fair catch on Harvard's 36-yard mark. A Harvard line plunge gained three yards and then Buell shot a forward pass to Fitts, who ran to mid-field before he was upset by Gilroy. Owen made two yards through Captain Keck, but lost five yards for offside play. Buell took Owen's quick forward pass, but was forced out of bounds with a gain of but a yard. Wittmer driving the Harvard catcher over the sideline. Fitts, aided by excellent interference, swept around Princeton's right end to Princeton's 42-yard line.

Owen made it first down for Harvard on Princeton's 35-yard line with a smash between Keck and Morgan, and the first period ended with this play. Score, end first period: Harvard 0; Princeton 0.

Second Period

Owen gained three yards before Morgan stopped his plunge. A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, on which the latter ran 12 yards before he was forced out of bounds, gave the Crimson a first down on Princeton's 20-yard line. Owen made four yards before Wittmer stopped him from a forward pass formation. Again the Crimson lined up with its deceptive triple threat formation and after what appeared to be a misunderstanding of signals, Owen, aided by a fine line charge, swept past Hooper for a first down on Princeton's five-yard line. He appeared to be on the way to a touchdown when Wittmer and Garrity smashed him with a double tackle. Owen was so badly shaken by the play that he was obliged to leave the game, temporarily at least.

Centre Wittmer of Princeton also was injured in the terrific clash of the two teams, but finally limped to his place at centre. Jenkins took Owens' place in the Harvard backfield and with a first down on Princeton's five-yard line, the ball was fumbled and Fitts finally recovered it on the Tigers' 15-yard line. Jenkins, in a run across the field, failed to gain at Stinson's end. Buell attempted a forward pass which was knocked down by Captain Keck. On the fourth down, Buell, standing on Princeton's 25-yard line, prepared to kick a field goal. After holding the ball several seconds he hurled a long forward pass which fell dead behind the Princeton line and it was Princeton's ball on her own 20-yard line. Lourie, in a sweeping end run around Crocker, made it first down on Princeton's 33-yard line at the edge of the field.

Garrity was forced out of bounds for a yard gain. Lourie then attempted an end run at Macomber but he was smothered for a loss of a yard. Cleaves cut through the right side of the Harvard line for three yards. He was hurt in the melee and required the attention of the Princeton trainer.

When play was resumed, it was fourth down and a yard to gain on Princeton's forty yard line. Lourie punted to Buell, who made a fair catch on Harvard's 25-yard line. Jenkins fumbled the pass on the Crimson first line up and lost a yard in an attempted end run. Fitts then got off a looming punt to Princeton's 25-yard line where Lourie caught and ran it back 13 yards before being forced out of bounds.

From a tandem formation, Cleaves failed to gain at the right side of the Harvard line. Garrity pierced Captain Kane for four yards and on a repetition of the play at the other side of the line, made it first down for Princeton at exactly mid-field. Lourie slipped through Tierney for four yards before Coburn pulled him down.

Cleaves, in an off tackle drive, made a first down on Harvard's 35-yard line, being run out of bounds by Buell and Jenkins. Cleaves then hammered out three yards at Harvard's right tackle. Centre Wittmer of Princeton was again knocked out and required attention. He was finally patched up and went into the game again.

Princeton was penalized two yards for extra time out as a result of the delay. Cleaves lost two more when he was tackled before he could make a forward pass. Crocker spilled Lourie after the latter had made seven yards and it was the Tigers' ball with two yards to gain on the Harvard 25-yard line. Baker dropped back to Harvard's 39-yard line and tried for a field goal. The ball rolled over the Crimson goal line and the Crimson put it play on her 20-yard line.

Fitts fumbled the ball on the first lineup and after a wild scramble, Garrity secured the ball for Princeton on Harvard's 23-yard line.

Lourie tried a cross field run and lost a yard in the experiment. Macomber knocked down Lourie's forward pass. Cleaves made three yards past Kane, and Baker on the fourth down, standing on Harvard's 35-yard line, again failed at a field goal. Harvard resumed play from her 20-yard line. Coburn carrying the ball, netted two yards. A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, made it third down with a foot to gain after Captain Keck, with a vicious tackle, spoiled what appeared to be the beginning of a long run. A second forward pass, Buell to Kane, made it first down on Harvard's 40-yard mark. A line plunge was good for one yard.

Time was taken out again for Wittmer. He resumed play, however. A third forward pass, Buell to Fitts made it first down for Harvard on Princeton's 45-yard line. Gilroy broke up another forward pass by crashing into the Harvard receiver as he was about to pick the ball out of the air. Buell then hurled a 30-yard forward pass which went as uncompleted when it sailed beyond Croker's reach.

A forward pass, Buell to Jenkins, fell to the ground dead, Gilroy upsetting the Crimson catcher. Fitts then punted over the Princeton goal line and the Tigers put the ball in play from their 20-yard line. Garrity hurled himself into the centre of the Crimson line and was hurled back. Lourie was run out of bounds by Macomber after a four-yard gain. From a tandem formation Cleaves tried the other end of the Harvard line and he, too, was run out of bounds with a gain of only a yard. Lourie punted to Harvard's 42-yard line where Jenkins made a fair catch for the Crimson. Buell tried to skirt Stinson's end and lost two yards just as the second period ended. Score: Harvard 0, Princeton 0.

Third Period

When the teams lined for the third period Owen was back in the Harvard lineup. Buell caught the ball on the kickoff. On the first lineup, Harvard made seven yards in an end run and around left end. Princeton on top of these gains for Harvard was penalized five yards for unnecessary roughness, giving Harvard a first down on the Tigers' 45-yard line. Failing to gain by line plunges, Buell punted over Princeton's goal line.

It was Princeton's ball on her 20-yard line. Grew here replaced Hubbard in the Harvard line. Cleaves gained a yard at Harvard's centre and Lourie skirted Crocker for three more. From a wide spread formation indicating an overhead play, Garrity tried a centre plunge and was hurled back without gain. Lourie punted to Harvard's 45-yard line where the ball was permitted to fall dead. Owen was upset by Baker without gain. Ladd here replaced Tierney at left tackle for Harvard.

A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, gained 15 yards, but the ball was called back on a double offside penalty.

A concealed ball play gained a yard for Harvard and it was third down with nine yards to gain. Hooper smeared Buell's attempted forward pass. The latter, standing on his own 35-yard line, punted to Garrity on the Princeton 20-yard line where he ran it back to the 37-yard line. Lourie skirted Macomber for five yards. Cleaves and Garrity made it first down on Princeton's 40-yard line and then Lourie hurled a long forward pass which was intercepted by Owen, the latter being hurled to the earth on Harvard's 47-yard line.

Gilroy Intercepts Pass

A delayed double pass was good for six yards at Princeton's right tackle. Coburn dove through the Princeton center for three yards and a split off tackle by Owen made it first down for Harvard on Princeton's 39-yard mark. Hooper stopped Fitts' charge without gain and Keck broke up Buell's forward pass. Gilroy picked Buell's forward pass out of the air, and sprinted to Harvard's 35-yard line before he was forced out of bounds. Garrity failed in a plunge at Kane.

Snively then shot a 30-yard forward pass which was knocked down by Owen. It was third down for Princeton, nine yards to gain on Harvard's 30-yard line.

Lourie swept around Crocker's end and appeared to be on the way to a touchdown when Owen hurled him out of bounds on Harvard's 25-yard line. Garrity gained five yards between Kane and Macomber. Coburn was hurt in the drive. He went back to his position, however. Garrity gained a yard in a drive outside of Macomber. Here Gratwick replaced Coburn at left half for Harvard.

Snively hurled a forward pass to Garrity, who was run out bounds on Harvard's five-yard line. Cleaves hutted two yards between Clark and Brown. Garrity slipped past Kane for a yard. Garrity again charged at Grew's position and it was Princeton's ball, fourth down and two feet to go. Garrity made the final plunge and the ball was found to be Harvard's about two inches from her goal line.

Fitts punted to Lourie on Harvard's 45-yard line. But the third quarter had ended and Harvard was forced to put the ball in play on virtually her own goal line at the other end of the field. The shift gave Princeton a strong wind at her back and forced Buell to punt again. The pass was low and Buell was unable to kick. He tried to run it out but was forced out of bounds behind his goal line. Princeton was offside and it was Harvard's ball on her five-yard line.

Harvard gained a yard and then Fitts punted to Garrity, who was downed on Harvard's 38-yard line. A forward pass, Lourie to Garrity, was knocked down by Gratwick. Lourie was run out of bounds for a five yard gain in an attempt to skirt Macomber. Snively's forward pass to Gilroy was fumbled by the latter. Captain Keck moved back to Harvard's 40-yard line. Lourie prepared to hold the ball for a placement kick. Keck's kick was partly blocked, rolling to Harvard's 10-yard line and ran it back 13 yards. A fake double pass completely deceived the Princeton line and Owen slipped through their line on a first down.

Makes First Down

The same play again was good for a gain of nine yards. Gratwick smashed through between Keck and Morgan for first down on Harvard's 46-yard line.

A forward pass, Buell to Fitts, hurled from a concealed ball formation gained seven yards and moved the ball into Tiger territory. Owen dodged his way past Baker for a first down on Princeton's 42-yard line, the secondary defense getting him.

Gratwick in an old fashioned mass on centre smashed out three yards and then a poor pass to Fitts was fumbled by the latter, the ball rolling back to Harvard's 40-yard line before he could fall on it. It was a disastrous break for Harvard.

A lateral pass, Owen to Buell to Fitts, was good for five yards and Fitts punted to Lourie on Princeton's 15-yard line and the latter after dodging fire one way and then another went down under a swarm of Crimson sweaters on Princeton's 30-yard line.

Cleaves was hurled back by Macomber without gain. Lourie fumbled the ball when it was sent to him, but recovered on his own 13-yard line and it was third down and 15 yards to gain. Lourie punted to Buell, who made a fair catch on Harvard's 47-yard line.

Harvard attempted a free kick for field goal following a fair catch and the Princeton players lined up 10 yards back. With Buell holding the ball and Owen prepared to kick the actual distance was 53 yards to the goal line in the face of a strong wind. Owen made his try, the ball veering and landing on Princeton's 20-yard line and bounded back to Princeton's 30-yard line. After it had touched a Tiger player it was recovered by Harvard on Princeton's 30-yard line.

Owen made a yard along the side line. Gratwick was good for three yards in a center plunge and a forward pass Buell to Owen grounded.

Standing on Princeton's 35-yard line, Owen kicked a perfect field goal, giving Harvard three points and a lead in the game. The wind from Harvard's standpoint lulled at the moment Owen kicked. Harvard kicked off from her 40-yard line to Cleaves on Princeton's 15-yard line and the latter regained 15 before he was downed. Lourie in a sprint across the field, picked up six yards before run out of bounds by Owen.

In the gathering twilight, Princeton kicked off, again, and Harvard put the ball in play on her 20-yard line after Owen fumbled and recovered the kick.

Before the ball was put into play Owen was helped off the field, his place being taken by Lee. Buell tried an end run and was spilled for a loss of a yard by Stinson. Gratwick made three yards through the center of the Princeton line and knocked out by the tackle. Janin replaced Crocker at right end for Harvard.

Keck then made Princeton's score 10 by kicking a field goal from the 43-yd. line. The game ended shortly after.

THE SHOOTING OF LOUIS SINASIS

An inquest into the circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting of Louis Sinasis by Officer William L. Keegan in a Dummer street coffee house Saturday night, Oct. 8, during what was said to be a row among card players, was held by Judge Fisher in the district court building today. Among the witnesses who testified was Dr. Thos. B. Smith, local medical examiner. It will be remembered Officer Keegan shot Sinasis after the latter refused to heed the policeman's commands to drop a revolver he was holding pointed at the officer.

ANOTHER BIG REAL ESTATE TRANSFER

Another big real estate transaction took place in this city during the past week, when Adolphe Lamontagne, the Merrimack street furniture dealer, sold his property numbered 646 Merrimack street, to Adolphe Delisle, of the Lowell pharmacy.

The property consists of a four-tenement building with a large store on the street floor, and 3235 square feet of land. The building is assessed for $6500, while the assessment on the land is $11,550, making a total assessment of $18,450.

Fines for Dry Law Infractions Tip the Financial Scales at $500

Fines aggregating $500 were imposed by Judge Enright in district court today on alleged violators of the prohibition act. They were the result of recent raids made by the police liquor squad headed by Sergeant Michael Winn.

Peter Andrews, said by Deputy Downey to have been a second offender, having paid a $100 fine two years ago for liquor keeping, was fined $150. He appealed and was held in $300 bail. The police testified to having purchased a bottle of Jamaica ginger from his store on Broadway two weeks ago. The fluid had been analyzed and found to be intoxicating, a certificate showed. Counsel for the defendant argued that Jamaica ginger is not necessarily intoxicating but the court stated he was satisfied the analysis had proved otherwise.

George Marcas, of Cross street, for keeping liquor with the intent to sell it, was fined $150. He paid. Sergeant Winn stated that a still, and a small quantity of moonshine was confiscated on his premises last month.

A plea of guilty was entered by Joseph Freitas, of West Union street, to a charge of keeping. About two weeks ago moonshine was seized here, the police asserted. He paid a fine of $100.

The next to feel the teeth of the law was Joseph Nadoly, a Fayette street storekeeper. Officer Keaney testified that here they seized a gallon and a quart of moonshine cleverly hidden in a hole in the wall. Nadoly was fined $100 and although it took him considerable time to decide whether he would appeal or not, he finally paid. Mrs. Nadoly testified the moonshine was for personal use.

Following the seizure of several cases of home brew in a house on Aiken street a few days ago, Joseph N. Bedard was arraigned for liquor keeping. Pending the usual analysis he was held in $300 bail to November 19.

Tokio Advises U. S. Delegates

at first regarding the identity of the youth at whose hands Premier Hara fell but it became known today that the assassin was a son of a former member of the samurai, or soldier class constituting the lower nobility under the Japanese feudal system, who had been a man of importance during the restoration period. The son, it appears, was of an erratic nature and is regarded as a political fanatic. He was arrested immediately after the stabbing. Detective Tsunajima, who was escorting Premier Hara, was badly cut on the arm and hands in disarming the assassin.

To Elect New Premier

It was generally assumed that the designation of Viscount Uchida as premier, was only a temporary expedient in the emergency and considerable speculation as to the probable new premier is voiced in today's Tokio newspapers. The probabilities, according to the newspaper views, appeared to point to Baron Kenjiro Den, governor general of Formosa, as the selection for the premiership.

Meanwhile the elder statesmen are likely to hold a conference shortly to consider the policy to be pursued as a result of the tragedy, the Asahi Shimbun says today. It is known that Marquis Saionji is on his way to Tokio from Kioto, possibly in this connection. The Nichi Nichi Shimbun says it understands the cabinet will continue to function pending its reorganization probably calling a cabinet council for Nov. 7, the date previously arranged for consideration of the budget for the fiscal year.

Unfortunate, Says London

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Public interest in the assassination of Premier Hara of Japan was intensified in London by consideration of the influence his removal might have upon Japan's attitude toward the Washington conference. Details of the crime are meagre.

The tragedy was described by the Daily Mail as "a grave misfortune on the very eve of a conference where it was believed M. Hara's steadying influence would be on the side of conciliation and peace."

ARMAND FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT

That he enlisted in the Canadian army five years ago and did not return to Lowell until about a year ago and since then had forgotten all about paying twenty-eight dollars restitution in an alleged larceny case, was the story told Judge Enright today by Armand Robillard, arrested last night on a capias. The probation officer stated that the defendant was found guilty of larceny in 1916 and ordered to pay $28 for restitution and expenses. This he failed to do. The court exercised leniency and told Robillard he could have a month or more if he wanted to pay the money. The defendant said he was eager to settle.

John Szewiczyk, in a continued non-support case, was placed on probation for six months.

A drunken offender was given a two months' suspended sentence to the house of correction, while another was given three months when the court learned he was already on probation from the superior court.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—The Maryland Jockey club's new feature event, the Pimlico futurity, will be run at Pimlico this afternoon, with 13 of the greatest two-year-olds of the season, contesting for the rich purse of $40,000 over the one mile course.

Continuance of the sharp, clear weather of the past few days presaged a fast track and a record attendance.

FIRE ALARMS

A telephone alarm was sent in at 8.42 o'clock this morning for a chimney fire at 130 Westford street. At 11.56 o'clock an alarm was sounded from box 125 for a slight blaze in back of the stove in a flat at 372 Market street.

a very acceptable body. What is worrying many of the male candidates is the sentiment expressed in many quarters that it would not be a bad plan to elect some of the women who have entered, the argument being that the women are very much interested in the schools, and that affairs might be handled more satisfactorily if a little womanly influence were felt occasionally. However that may be, every woman elected means one less place for a man's occupancy, and some are inclined to resent the encroachment, as they regard it.

Of course the mayoralty campaign is of necessity the most interesting feature of the election, and more discussion is devoted to that than to any of the other offices. All the avowed candidates are getting into action as rapidly as possible, and it promises to be a hot campaign. It is doubtful if any new campaign stunt can be invented for about everything possible has been tried in the past with varying success, but the public may rest assured that its appetite for politics will be satiated before the January inaugural.

The list of candidates who have already entered the fray is as follows:

POET McCARTHY SPEAKS IN LOWELL

Dennis J. McCarthy, well known poet, addressed the students and faculty of Notre Dame Academy yesterday at their regular monthly lecture.

Mr. McCarthy gave a short but very interesting lecture upon poetry in general touching some of the high lights of literature. He read several exquisite poems of his own composition, all of which were highly enjoyed by his audience.

While in the city Mr. McCarthy was the guest of Mr. Henry T. Gilday, 32 Varney street.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MISS SPELLACY

Miss Spellacy, a member of the St. Elizabeth branch of the Irish National Foresters, was given a great send off at A.O.H. hall Thursday evening when she was presented a certificate of passage to Ireland and a purse of gold. She came here to relatives nearly a year ago, after enduring the hardships of the rebellion in the County Clare. The presentation was made by Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan. The committee in charge included Miss Mary Dillon, Miss Maria Markham, Miss Bergen and J. L. Handley, chief ranger of the O'Neil Crowley branch. Refreshments and an entertainment followed the presentation.

MISS McPHERSON HONORED

A very pretty shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox on Chambers street, in honor of the coming marriage of her sister, Miss Marion McPherson, who is soon to become the bride of Mr. George Lyons, a popular employe of the Saco-Lowell shop. The bride-to-be was presented a beautiful mahogany library table. The feature of the evening was the "mock marriage," the Misses Tarpy and Bray as bride and groom and Kitty Towey and Mrs. Lillian McPherson Fox as witnesses. The train-bearer for the bride was Miss Zeta Dowd. There were piano selections by Misses Marion Caskman and Zeta Dowd and Master "Buddee" Fox. Solos were sung by the Misses Alice Spillane, Mayhel Lyons and Anna Mahan. Kitty Reardon, who has just returned from Mecca, did her new oriental dance. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the bride-to-be the best of luck in her coming marriage.

TEWKSBURY BOY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Harold C. Greenough, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Greenough of Tewksbury, was instantly killed last evening in an automobile accident, which occurred in South Tewksbury, while Daniel O'Neil, son of the owner of the car, who was at the wheel; Richard O'Neil and Clifford and Charles Greenough, who were also in the car, escaped with slight injuries.

The accident occurred on South street at a point near Silver lake, while the boys were delivering milk in a touring car owned by Police Officer Patrick O'Neil of the town. According to the boys' story, Daniel O'Neil, who was at the wheel, swung his car to the edge of the road in order to avoid striking a dog, and when the machine struck the gravel surface, it turned turtle, pinning the driver in the ground. Witnesses of the accident say that the machine was not going at an excessive rate of speed when it turned over. Dr. William A. Buck of Wilmington gave first aid to the injured, while the body of O'Neil was being removed to a morgue in Wilmington, where it was viewed later by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith.

HANDSOME GAVEL FOR COMMANDER

Commander John J. Garvey of Chelmsford post, 212, American Legion, was presented a handsome gavel, trimmed with the national colors, by the Ladies' auxiliary to the post at a reception given by the women to the legionaires in Chelmsford town hall Thursday evening. The presentation was made by Mrs. John Vinal, president of the auxiliary. The boys of the post first attended the business meeting of the ladies and later sat as their guests at a supper served in the basement of the hall. There were speeches after the supper by Commander Garvey, Vice Commander Leo McEnaney, Adjt. John Johnson, and Past Commander Sidney Perham. Co-operation between the post and the auxiliary was the keynote in the commander's remarks, and he also urged the women to redouble their efforts in securing new members. The Honey Boys quartet of Lowell offered a number of selections, as did little Doris York of Graniteville. The latter also contributed a series of readings. Community singing and "The Star Spangled Banner" brought the affair to a close. Mrs. Sidney Ferguson sat at the piano. The committee in charge of the reception consisted of: Mrs. Harriett Sweetser, chairman; Mrs. Hazel Silk, Mrs. Addie Carl, Mrs. Marion Johnson, Mrs. Alice Robarge, Mrs. Dorothy Russell, Mrs. Luella Lakin and Miss Mary Garvey. They were assisted by Mrs. Jennie Murphy, Mrs. Bessie Robinson, Mrs. Isabelle Young, Mrs. Elizabeth Miner and Misses Anna Bishop, Ethel Booth, Frances Young, Margaret Queen, Anna Murphy, Grace Cummings and Alice Butler.

Women Under Twenty-One

There is a form of anemia called chlorosis that most frequently attacks young women. It is most common between thirteen and twenty-one. The symptoms are pallor, debility, breathlessness and palpitation of the heart. It is a disease which easily runs into a fatal form of anemia unless it is corrected in time.

Chlorosis yields readily to proper treatment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended together with a proper diet and plenty of sunlight and fresh air. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood. When they do this they tone up every nerve in the body. They strengthen the stomach and make digestion thorough and comfortable.

"Building Up the Blood" is a booklet full of useful information. Every mother and every growing girl should have one. It is free on request.

CAMBRIDGE POLICE OFFICER DISCHARGED

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 5—Captain Herbert Gordon of the local police, suspended because of alleged irregularities in connection with his duties at the Middlesex district attorney's office, was discharged for using his office for improper purposes today. Chief of Police John J. McBride in announcing his action, said it would give Gordon an opportunity to demand a public hearing within three days and that it would be granted. The charges against Gordon were based on testimony at the trial of Nathan A. Tufts which resulted in the latter's removal as district attorney.

WILSON DEMOCRACY FAVORS ARMS PARLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Hamilton Holt, president of the Woodrow Wilson democracy, made public yesterday a statement expressing the organization's attitude toward the coming Washington conference on limitation of armaments.

The statement, authorized by the executive committee, follows:

"The very timely request of Secretary Hughes that the American people should place confidence in the American delegation and that those who are most interested in the objects to be attained will permit us to endeavor to attain them and to perform our important work without unnecessary embarrassment has prompted the publication of the following declaration of the Woodrow Wilson democracy:

"The Woodrow Wilson democracy, by its executive committee, takes this occasion to state publicly that it regards the disarmament conference as an event of great importance, and as such that this organization will lend whole-hearted support to the efforts of the administration to bring about the limitation of armament by international agreement. We would seriously question the patriotism and loyalty of any individual or group who might seek to embarrass and make more difficult the constructive efforts of the American conferees.

"We believe that this conference is constructive in purpose; that it was called together not only to find a solution of the armament problem but to bring about international harmony and accord.

"The League of Nations is organized for the same general purposes, and we shall expect the president and the secretary of state to rebuke any effort to belittle or discredit the League of Nations or make more difficult its program for reducing armaments."

Atty. Gen. Allen Appoints Trio to Prosecute Dist. Atty. Pelletier

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Appointment of Robert G. Dodge, James J. McCarthy and Andrew Marshall to assist General J. Weston Allen in prosecuting proceedings in the supreme court for the removal from office of District Attorney J. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, was favored today by the council of the Boston Bar association. The council sent word to the attorney general that it would be pleased if he saw fit to select the three men to work with him. The same men have been named as prosecutors in disbarment proceedings which Attorney General Allen has brought against Daniel H. Coakley, William J. Corcoran and Daniel V. Melsaac.

The council also voted to oppose the petition of Corcoran a former district attorney of Middlesex county for permission of the supreme court to resign from the Massachusetts bar. Corcoran asked the right to resign on the ground that he was no longer a resident of the state, having removed to Portchester, N. Y.

Oppose Approval of Treaty With U. S.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 5.—Opposition to approval of the treaty between Colombia and the United States has arisen in the chamber of deputies. The senate has already approved the pact, by which $25,000,000 would be paid this country by the United States in settlement of the controversy resulting from the establishment of the Panaman republic. It is pointed out by opponents of the treaty that, as it stands, it does not guarantee any compromise obtained by Colombia.

Judge and Jurors Have Busy Session in the Superior Court

Stevens, J. A. Eames, J. S. Greig, E. Champagne, J. A. Tarbell, J. A. Chesborough, J. W. Claffy, W. H. Livingston, T. H. Geary.

It is rather an unusual state of affairs to have three juries working at the same time as was the case in superior court yesterday with Judge Bishop presiding. Two juries were sent out in the forenoon while a third was impanelled and heard a case. Findings were made by all three before the day's work had been completed. Legal machinery seemed to be well oiled yesterday and moved with a rapidity that is unusual, considering the calibre of the cases.

The first jury to go out was the one sitting in the case of Doonan vs. the inhabitants of Littleton. The action was one of tort for $5000 brought by Jeanne Doonan of Malden through her father, Owen P., to recover for alleged personal injuries when she was struck by an auto in Mill street, Littleton. In the case the jury charge was started late Thursday afternoon. Yesterday morning Judge Bishop completed the charge and sent the jury out. Shortly before court adjourned for the day Judge Bishop called the jury in and impressed upon it a verdict was important inasmuch as this was the second trial. The jury retired and returned a sealed verdict later.

The cases of Murdock and Grace M. McKinnon vs. the Massachusetts street railway were heard and verdicts for the plaintiffs of $200 and $400 respectively were brought in. Judge Bishop set the verdicts aside and will report to the supreme court.

The case of Alexander Duncan vs. J. J. Doyle to recover $3000, the result of a real estate transaction was tried. During the trial the judge and attorneys went into a conference after which the court ordered the jury to make a decision for the defendant. The decision will be reported to the supreme court. If the decision of the superior court is upheld, the case will be ended. If not, counsel will have agreed upon a settlement of $400 rather than take the case to the supreme court.

ALLEN NOW SEEKS TO DISBAR PELLETIER

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Petition for disbarment of Dist. Atty. Jos. C. Pelletier of Suffolk county, proceedings for whose removal from office are pending was filed with the supreme court by Atty. Gen. Allen late yesterday.

Thirty-two allegations charging Mr. Pelletier with deceit, malpractice, gross misconduct, conspiracy to distort and corruptly aiding and abetting to extort were included in the attorney general's petition.

William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex county, now claiming residence in Portchester, N. Y., and Daniel H. Coakley, both of whom face disbarment proceedings already filed here are named in the attorney general's petition, on the ground that Mr. Pelletier conspired with each and both in efforts to extort.

The petition for disbarment of Mr. Pelletier closely follows that filed last week by Mr. Allen asking the court to remove him as district attorney for alleged misfeasance, non-feasance and malfeasance in office. Announcement of Mr. Pelletier's candidacy for mayor of Boston came shortly before that, but after the Boston Bar association had asked the attorney general to seek the district attorney's removal.

DRY CHIEF PAYS TRIBUTE TO FIELD STAFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The field staff of the prohibition enforcement force comprises "men of character and calibre who serve from the motive of patriotism," Federal Commissioner Haynes declared today in a statement published as a tribute to these workers.

"These men have faced death, scorn and temptation," the statement said. "They are sleepless in vigilance, unswerving in loyalty and fearless in doing their daily tasks in the same manner in which the English sing of their men who advanced in Flanders: 'They go as heroes and gentlemen.'"

Mr. Haynes said the illicit liquor traffic embraced "unscrupulous men of unlimited means" as well as common crooks. He made a list of casualties recently sustained by the prohibition forces showing that five men met their death and two others had narrow escapes.

BIG BARGAINS AT LEMKIN STORE SALE

The interest shown in the wonderful bargains offered to the public at the great sale of The Lemkin store's entire stock by the women of Lowell and vicinity almost beggars description. The buyers have been coming since the opening of the store Friday morning and in such large numbers that even the extra staff of salespeople were unable at times to take care of everybody.

Many who made purchases openly expressed their surprise that a store of Lemkin's reputation for quality in goods, could afford to make the sacrifices in prices that are being made at this slashing price sale.

The stock consists of the best in women's outer wearing apparel including dresses, coats, skirts and wraps, and the sale will continue until closing time tonight.

The marshal and his party were taken in automobiles to Grant park, where Governor Small, Mayor Thompson, and a party of state officials were to give him an official welcome, while the first field artillery, Illinois National Guard, greeted him with a salute of 19 guns.

PARIS CADILLAC SERVICE

To accommodate owners of Cadillac cars who anticipate touring the battlefields of Europe, a new headquarters for Cadillac service, known as the American Service station, has been established in the centre of the automobile district in Paris, at No. 36 Rue Marboeuf. Here, for the first time, cars from Los Angeles and New Orleans and Boston will rub fenders with former standard 7-passenger army Cadillacs that a few months back shook to the thunder of heavy guns at St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

A good many of these cars were turned over to the French government at the close of the war. Some of them the French resold to civilians, some they put into service with their own army, while others were retained as official cars of the French government. Not a few of them bear marks of shrapnel and high explosives, which have been skillfully covered up by their new owners. All of them will come from time to time to this centre of Cadillac service, and American visitors will hear at first hand the adventures of some of these veteran army Cadillacs and the part they played in the war.

"Alf's Button" Is an English Comic With a Novel Plot

"STRIKE ME PINK!" EXCLAIMED A BRITISH TOMMY WHEN A GENIE APPEARED AFTER HE HAD RUBBED A BUTTON ON HIS BLOUSE. THE GENIE DID, FOR HE WAS THE REINCARNATION OF ALADDIN'S SLAVE. THIS, IN A FIRST NATIONAL FILM.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—"Alf's Button," a film comic, offers a subtle exposition of the British sense of humor. This movie is the best from the standpoint of story interest and evolution of plot yet made by English producers.

A British Tommy is surprised by the appearance of a genie ready to do his bidding when he rubs the second button on his tunic. The button had been cast from the metal of Aladdin's lamp.

"Strike me pink!" the cockney soldier exclaimed when he regained his breath. The genie accommodated him and then disappeared.

Threatened with quarantine, Alf rubbed the button and bade the genie return him to his former state.

Alf confided his secret to a skeptical sergeant. When the sergeant demanded beer as proof the genie deposited two foamy goblets upon the trench floor.

Alf longed to see his girl. He wished for the most beautiful girl in England. The genie brought the captain's fiancee. Matters were sadly complicated when the captain met her in the trench. And more so when the genie at Alf's bidding whisked the girl from his arms and restored her to England.

The sergeant was overcome with nostalgia. Alf rubbed the button. Presto! Alf and the sergeant were back in blighty.

The genie provided Alf's girl with wholesale lots of finery and Alf with a suit of "fish and soup" design. Riches did not bring happiness to either. With all that the genie could do for Alf he could not lift him above his wonted place in the social scale.

Such a story offers a tremendous field for the play of the author's imagination. The English producer employed it for seven reels. It ended with Alf's wife wishing for a boy and returning the magical button to the genie.

The genie did things in a wholesale way. He brought Alf and Mrs. Alf three sons.

English Technique

The English technique in photography and direction has not advanced beyond the nickelodeon era in America. Some scenes of "Alf's Button" are in blue and brown, after the manner of sun prints made by photographers in 1899. Others have the quality of tintypes.

Anachronism

In "Alf's Button," a girl is writing with a pen on note paper. A close-up shows a typewritten telegram she is supposed to be sending. The flashback shows her still writing with a pen. I have not seen such a slip-up in American pictures in many months.

If Americans Made It

"Alf's Button" is a better comic than the ordinary run of American comedies. However, one wonders what an American producer would have evolved from the same story idea. Chaplin would have made a greater picture of it than "The Kid" and that picture is a far better comedy than "Alf's Button" as the English filmed it.

Buster Keaton or Harold Lloyd also might well covet the idea. Their version probably would have been reduced to three reels with all the action of the seven-reel British comic retained.

Therein lies the distinction between English and American wit. The American comedian makes you laugh uproariously and before you have had time to rest your risibles stirs you to mirth again. The English comedian lays a trail to his joke, like a long fuse to a powder can. After that explosion of humor he laboriously contrives another situation to provoke merriment.

THE MOVIETORIUM

"The Vermilion Pencil" is Sessue Hayakawa's next.

The studio orchestra plays "Mother Macree" to make Bessie Love cry.

Eva Novak plays opposite Tom Mix in "Around the World in Nothing Flat." Some speed!

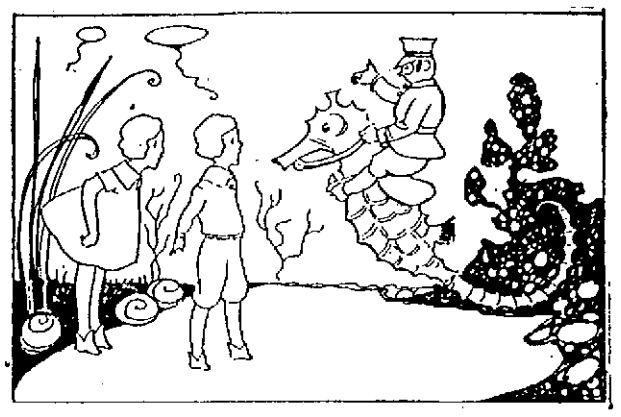

Milton Sills and Florence Vidor are featured in "Skin Deep," a Thomas H. Ince picture.

Prince Ferdinando Pignapelli of Italy acted as cameraman for one scene of Marshall Neilan's production of "Penrod."

Leave it to D. W. Griffith to pull something new. He has taken out a $25,000 insurance policy to guarantee a snowfall for "The Two Orphans" before Nov. 20.

Adventures of The Twins

MISSING WIVES

"YOU RUN ON, KIDDIES," SAID CAP'N PENNYWINKLE

One day Cap'n Pennywinkle sent Nancy and Nick over toward the shore to see what in the world was the matter. "I just got a telephone message from Mr. Fifteen-Fin Stickleback that his missus has been gone all day and isn't back yet," said the captain. "And Mr. Corkwing sent word by old Daddy Lasher that Mrs. Corkwing hadn't showed up since daybreak. And daddy said that as he passed by, he heard Mr. Blenny call over to Mr. Goby and ask if he knew where his wife was, and Mr. Goby called back that indeed 'n' he didn't and he was just wondering what had become of his own."

"You run on, kiddies," went on Cap'n Pennywinkle, "and see if you can find all the missing fish ladies. I won't be likely to learn anything about them away out here at the cross roads for these are all little fish, you know, and do their housekeeping near to the shore. Besides if they'd show up out here, land love us, wouldn't Mr. Cod and Mr. Sturgeon and Mr. Haddock and all the big fellows have a feast!"

"We'll go at once and hunt them," replied Nancy obligingly. "But how shall we know them? How do they dress?"

Cap'n Pennywinkle had to laugh before he answered. "Dress! Well, just wait until you see them. You'll know 'em all right. Just pick out anybody you see with stripes and polka dots and dresses like Christmas tree ornaments and you'll know it's one of the missing wives. It's just the same on the water as it on the land, my dear, the ladies who like to dress the gayest are usually the ones who leave all the housework to their husbands. All these people, Mrs. Goby, Mrs. Rock-Fish and all the others, are gay dressers. Very!"

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Next Week's Bill One of All-Star Quality—Three Local Singers Tomorrow

For tomorrow's special bill at the B. F. Keith theatre three Lowell singers will be accorded the leading position. They are John J. Hartnett, Joseph M. Reilly and Jas. King, singers of excellent training, who are known as "Lowell's Caruso, Scott and McCormack." Other acts on this bill will be those of Patricola, Richard Kean, Fields & Fink, and Ed. Boyle and daughter and Hal Stack.

Val and Ernie Stanton, who describe themselves as "The English Boys from America," will top the coming week's bill at the B. F. Keith theatre, giving their inimitable satire on English as it is not spoken. Wherever the vaudeville stage is popular there will be found the Stantons, who are prime favorites.

The Five Musical MacLarens are Scottish, but why make such a superfluous statement? They have the hur-r-r in their voices, the bagpipes in their arms and the thistle in their appearance, and, of course, they are garbed in kilts. Kilts aren't as much in evidence in the heather as they are on the stage but they are a picturesque attire, and they give this act a splendid bit of costuming.

Loraine Howard and Verna Sadler will offer a harmonious songalog which they call "Wedding Bells." They are a pair of girls, who don't make any particular attempt to hide their ages. But they are wonderfully refreshing in other particulars. Their act is said to be one scream of laughter from beginning to end.

William Newell and Elsa Most are a very young couple who have known the theatre since they were but tots. In the years they have been "on" they have done many things, sang, played, danced and acted. Their present sketch is called "On the Lawn," which is touched up with wit and good music.

Shapiro and Jordan are two girls, who do all that they attempt in superfine manner. They entertain mostly at the piano, and their song numbers invariably turn out to be hits. Archie and Gertie Falls have an act that will take away the breath. Incidentally Gertie is a modern Venus. Two Dancing Frenchmen are Gold and Edward, who do some amazingly clever stepping.

RIALTO THEATRE

Triple Feature Attraction at the Rialto For the First Three Days of the Week

An all star program far in excess even of the productions that have adorned its screen for the past two or three weeks, will appear at the Rialto theatre this coming week, according to the announcement of Manager Prager.

For the first three days of the week will come a triple feature attraction introducing Charles Ray, well known star in "The Midnight Bell," Buster Keaton in his latest comedy, "The Goat," Peter Morrison in a thrilling western drama, "Crossing Trails" and the Kinograms.

For the last three days of the week there will be a famous James Oliver Curwood production, "The Golden Snare," also Bessie Love in "Penny of Top Hill Trail," a snappy comedy and the Kinograms. It is truly a program of exceptional merit and should meet with the approval of crowded houses every afternoon and evening.

In speaking of the leading feature of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday we find Charles Ray in a story of adventure and hair raising experiences rarely to be found in small towns or metropolitan centres. Charles is seen as "Martin Tripp," a traveling salesman for a large city concern and he finds his way into a small town where the inhabitants are up in terror because of the persistent ghosts who are to be found in the abandoned village church. In reality these ghosts are nothing more than a quintet of crooks who have been attracted to the town by its rich bank and who make the church their headquarters in digging a tunnel to the basement of the bank. Of course our friend Martin did not believe in ghosts and so he spent a night in the church waiting for the weird hour of "The Midnight Bell." He is discovered, and though bound and gagged, he manages to ring the bell himself and thus, becomes the hero of the place.

In James Oliver Curwood's story shown the latter part of the week, we again find the well known author lives up to the reputation which he established in "The River's End," "Back to God's Own Country," and "Nomads of the North." It is a story of the Northwest Mounted Police in a desperate search for a much wanted fugitive from Justice and it carries an absorbing love story which balances delightfully.

The Sunday program at the Rialto theatre will introduce Robert Warwick and Douglas McLean in two excellent productions, also four acts of high class vaudeville.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Love Bandit," a Play of Society and the Great Northwest to Be Presented by the Lowell Players.

The Armistice Week offering at the Opera House by the new Lowell Players will be Charles E. Blaney and Norman Houston's realistic romance of society and the Canadian Woods, called "The Love Bandit." Stories of the Great Northwest are invariably unusually strong in all of the pleasing elements that go in the making of a high-grade stock offering, and "The Love Bandit" is no exception to the rule. You will like it and you will admire and enjoy the various characterizations by the members of the company. It's a combat between blue blood and red and intermingling in sufficient good humor to properly balance the whole thing. Jim Blazes, a young millionaire, is in love with his stenographer, a descendant of one of New York's oldest families. Her family has lost its wealth and the girl, believing that blood and not money tells, scorns his offer of marriage. Then the girl's brother is caught stealing money with which he plays the races. It belongs to the young man and he threatens to send the thief to jail when the girl promises to marry him. They are married, and after having stood all things from her, he decided to return to his logging camp. There he works out the redemption of the wife's brother. During this process the young wife realizes that the man she has married has real strength of character to him and directs her course to his side. In the meantime a conflict arises between river logging camps and the opposition, on hearing of the coming of the girl, tries to capture her. From then to the close of the play one sees really thrilling situations. Miss Magrath, as the young wife, will find greater opportunity for the reflection of dramatic ability than ever before. The other characters will be in good hands and the scenic effects and stage accessories will be up to the usual high standard of the past.

The retirement of pickets about the entrance of the theatre during the past week has relieved the situation there very materially. Tickets for the coming week are selling fast. Tel. 261. Down-town office at the Prince-Walter Shop.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Ladies Must Live" and Kubinoff, Russian Concert Violinist, Features for Next Week

"The Isle of Destiny," a romantic feature with an all-star cast, and "Common Sense," another entertaining production featuring Edgar Lewis, will be the chief attractions of the Sunday program at the Merrimack Square theatre. The usual excellent surrounding program will be carried out.

Declared to be a screen masterpiece, equal, if not superior, to his enormously successful production of "The Miracle Man," George Loane Tucker's last picture production, "Ladies Must Live" will be the feature attraction for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Betty Compson, who made a great hit in "The Miracle Man," in which she played opposite Thomas Meighan, is the featured player. The picture has been produced along artistic lines and there are many thrilling moments in the action. The support is excellent.

Another big feature at the Merrimack Square theatre will be Kubinoff, the noted Russian concert violinist, who will appear in person at every performance during the entire week of November 7. Kubinoff is one of the most talented artists of the concert stage and his visit to Lowell will undoubtedly attract hundreds of music lovers.

A Fox comedy and the International News will complete the bill.

STRAND THEATRE

"Life's Darn Funny" and "The Shark Master" Attractions for the First Three Days in the Week

Another series of big picture productions are scheduled for presentation at the Strand, for the coming week. During the first three days of the week Viola Dana, in "Life's Darn Funny," and Frank Mayo in "The Shark Master," will be shown, and during the last three days of the week, the one and only Tom Mix in "A Ridin' Romeo" and Edith Roberts in "Luring Lips," will be the attraction. The usual comedy and weekly will be shown in connection with these bills. Sunday's sacred concert will be comprised of new pictures and an array of high grade vaudeville.

Viola Dana, the effervescent little star, in "Life's Darn Funny," should please everyone. Some queer or unusual experience stands out vividly in the minds of about everyone. See this picture and you will surely be reminded of something in your life that will reflect itself sharply. Miss Dana, in the role of little Zoe, finds herself in distress because of the lack of a gown, but her delight is unbounded when she runs into luck that brings about a realization of her fondest hopes. Gareth Hughes plays opposite the star and the remainder of the supporting cast is superb.

While Frank Mayo is seen in a wonderfully gripping photoplay of the one invariably gets at the Strand.

South sea islands. A huge liner burning in mid-ocean and then swallowed up in the waves; a tropic hurricane which lashes a schooner and threatens its destruction; a mutiny at sea; a terrific fight between the master of the vessel and a score of his seamen; a leap from a high cliff into the shark-infested waters of the South Pacific—there are but a few of the many interesting phases of "The Shark Master." A delightful love romance is also intermingled. You'll like it immensely.

The one and only Tom Mix in a new story of his own, "A Ridin' Romeo," will feature the program for the week-end, starting with matinee on Thursday. The daredevil star of many an exciting and thrilling western story, is seen in this play in an entirely new role that affords him wider and better opportunity for his unusual capabilities. In view of the fact that Tom wrote the story himself, it is quite natural to expect thrillers of an exceptional sort. And you won't be disappointed. He has written in all kinds of mischievous trouble and as for stunts—well, see them yourself and judge.

"Luring Lips," the feature in which Edith Roberts appears, is another of those gripping melodramatic creations of the screen that has everything that goes in the making of a high class offering. Miss Roberts finds rare opportunity to indicate her exceptional talent and the support accorded her is truly wonderful. It's a stirring story of how a beautiful girl's wits and wiles won back the man she loved and incidentally solved a great intrigue. The element of mystery and chance it contains is a phase that will please all. Miss Roberts brings to the role assigned to her all of the fire and feeling which characterizes her unusual screen personality.

Don't miss either program. They are the kind that helps maintain the high standard of film entertainment at the Strand.

Smith Girls—Dartmouth Boys To Debate

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 5.—The young women of Smith college and the young men of Dartmouth college having agreed to meet in joint debate, have now agreed on Dec. 10 as the date and recognition of the Russian soviet government by the United States as the question, it was announced today. The meeting will be the first in which either college has met a debating team of the other sex. The Smith negative debaters will present their arguments against Dartmouth's affirmative team at Hanover, N. H., and the Smith affirmative side will be presented against Dartmouth's negative at Northampton. Trials to determine the membership of the two Smith teams are now being held.

Sinn Feiners Raid Police Barracks

BELFAST, Nov. 5.—Sixteen Sinn Feiners raided the police barracks at Kesh, County Fermanagh, last night, overpowered the four constables in charge, seized all the rifles and ammunition and escaped. They took advantage of the absence of most of the garrison, the men having gone to Enniskillen to attend a boxing tournament. General Tudor, Irish police chief; Col. M. Wickam, Ulster divisional commissioner and other high police officials were at the tournament. Police were rushed to the scene of the raid, but the Sinn Feiners had made good their escape.

News and Suggestions of Interest to Women

THREE-PIECE SUIT IS ATTRACTIVE

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The three-piece suit has attained a degree of popularity this season which carried the mode into the most elegant of costumes.

Not only the practical and the conservative effects are achieved in this combination of gown and coat, but the most bizarre and gorgeous limits are reached.

A Poiret creation of silver and black brocade accentuates this gorgeousness. The coat is cut with a decided flare and is edged with monkey fur.

The big sleeves, with novel turned-back cuffs, are also edged in this jungle fur, while the closely fastened collar with revere extensions is of velvet.

The dress is a combination of black velvet and the brocade cut in straight lines.

An interesting tricorn hat with cascades of moire ribbon is worn with this smart costume.

A LONG WALK

Miss Theresa Tromp hiked 3000 miles from Ferndale, Wash., to New York to enter Columbia university. She cooked her own meals over campfires, hopped freight trains and slept with Indian squaws en route. She says it was fun.

MANKATO, Minn., Nov. 5—They're bread making champions—these three Mankato girls: Leona Peterson, Myra Jones and Evelyn Cuddy. Representing their school, the three girls first won the Blue Earth county championship and later took first prize in a southern Minnesota competition. Later they took first prize at the Minnesota state fair at St. Paul and finished by taking first honors at the interstate meet when bread makers of ten states were competing.

These three girls will represent the west in a contest to be held at Washington between the east and west.

NOVEL COSTUME HAS A SPANISH ACCENT

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—A Spanish comb doesn't necessarily make a Spanish costume, yet the green crepe cashmere trimmed in black and white fringe has a decidedly Spanish flavor.

Paul Poiret has draped a novel waist effect, the sleeves being merely pieces of the goods caught in such a manner as to fall in a cape-like effect in the back.

The skirt is richly embroidered in points, from which the fringe falls.

This novel costume, while it suggests the stage, is really a dinner gown, although its use extends to reception or afternoon functions.

Girl's Greatest Gifts All Belong To This Interesting Girl

By ALICE ROHE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—What is the greatest gift a girl may have—beauty, brains, youth, health, money, ancestry, family position, great genius?

What if one didn't have to choose, but had all of these!

Well, this is the lot of one of the most interesting young women in New York.

She is Marjorie Patterson, actress and author, the great-grandniece of Betsy Patterson, whose marriage to Jerome Bonaparte, young brother of Napoleon, started off international marriages with a romance that has made present-day alliances with reigning royal families quite commonplace by comparison.

But although Miss Patterson pours tea from an ancient silver tea set brought over from Ireland by Betsy Patterson's father, and sits in Betsy Patterson's chair, and sleeps in Betsy Patterson's bed, she thinks the real aim of life is giving expression to her creative force in the best way possible. So she has to her credit one of the most discussed and lauded literary achievements in bookdom—"A Woman's Man."

Two other books, "Fortunato," written in Rome when she was 19, and "Dust of the Road," written in England when she was a member of Sir Frank Benson's company, have attained best seller proportions.

"I believe that heredity plays an important part in life," says Miss Patterson, "but inherited tendencies, no matter how fine, do a minimum of good unless developed through individual power.

"If a man or a woman feels, that overpowering creative force calling for expression, it is the person's duty to follow the call. Some women feel it for domestic life and become great mothers; others feel it for professional life.

"Personally, the life of society means nothing to me."

Miss Patterson left the stage at the height of attainment as Pierot in "Pierre the Prodigal," to devote herself to writing.

"I am said to resemble Betsy Patterson," said the great-grandniece of Madame Bonaparte. "Perhaps I find my romance in work. At present I am finishing a play, 'Pan in Ambush' and am working on another drama. Yes, work is the great motive force in life."

There are more than 110,000 girl scouts in the United States.

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—"Open your churches! Open them all and invite the whole world to a half hour's prayer for those who lost their lives in the world war and for the best result from the disarmament conference!"

This is the message which the League of Women Voters, through its president, Mrs. Maud Wood Park, issues, particularly to women.

"There must be no more war—this is the conviction of the mothers of America," says Mrs. Park. "It has been crystallized within the past week as the disarmament conference draws near.

MRS. MAUD WOOD PARK

"Women know too well the tragic cost of war. They are the ones who should take the initiative in this question of limiting the nations in their effort to build greater armies and navies."

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser, limitation of armament chairman for the league, is appealing to the governor of every state to issue proclamations setting aside a thirty-minute prayer period on Armistice day.

Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn., director of the first region of the league, and Miss Christine Merriman of New York also a league official, called personally on President Harding and asked him to issue a national proclamation calling for special Armistice day services.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union is joining the league in its appeal.

There are five women house surgeons in English hospitals.

Value of a Newspaper

How many people ever stop to think, when reading the daily newspapers, which have become such a necessity to us, and which we take so much as a matter of course, that this is the cheapest commodity that enters into our everyday existence? Could the average person realize the immense amount of labor, both mental and physical, entailed in gathering the account of happenings of interest all over the world, as well as the obtaining of diversified special articles to contribute to the enjoyment of the reader, we would all agree that there is nothing else which furnishes us with so much value for our money, as the daily newspaper. I think it would be a splendid idea if the publishers of the various papers would give the public an opportunity of examining the workings of their plants, on the same basis as the recent telephonic exhibit, showing how the matter is received, handled, printed, etc. I am sure that it would prove of much interest, and would be appreciated by the public. We have come to expect absolute accuracy in reading printed matter, and if the people could see for themselves the rapidity with which the raw matter must be whipped into shape, they would be much more tenient, and ready to make allowance for any little error or discrepancy which may occur. I realize, however, that the newspaper cannot give any of its working time to the entertainment of visitors. Such an exhibition would have to come after the paper goes to press.

A Friend in Need

A lady coming into Lowell recently, arriving from Boston on a very early train, with best bib and tucker on, in a downpour of rain, went into the Middlesex station, and made the remark to the congenial young lady on the newspaper stand, that the B. & M. owed her about nine umbrellas which she had left on the trains at various times, and wished she could locate one of them for the time being. The clerk simply stooped down to a closet under the counter, and drew out a fine, big umbrella, and inquired if that would help out any. It certainly did fill the bill wonderfully, and the traveller was sent on her way rejoicing, with hearty thanks to the Good Samaritan behind the counter, and convinced that there are a lot of fine people in this old workaday world of ours, who are always doing little acts of kindness to brighten the way for others.

An Annoying Habit

Can any one tell why it is that at concerts, lectures, but more particularly church services, so many people have a habit of coughing, without making the least pretence of trying to smother it in any way? It certainly must be very annoying to a speaker, as well as to the audience or congregation, and while at times it may be unavoidable, in most cases it is simply a habit. Should you attend a first class drama, you will notice that there is absolutely no sound from the audience, and you can hardly believe that the same people generally attend service, in some church or other on Sunday, when one would imagine that 75 per cent. of the congregation were in the last stages of tuberculosis.

The Salvation Army

However much we may differ in point of creed from the Salvationists, fair-minded people cannot help admitting that in the matter of moral courage, they stand second to none. They hold their meetings in all kinds of weather, absolutely regardless of the derision which is often showered on them by thoughtless people. Almost everyone has a secret dread of ridicule, and try in every way to avoid it, but the members of the Salvation Army appear to be entirely impervious to either praise or blame.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

BUSINESS BETTER

Every week brings new evidence of improvement in business. The factories are calling in more hands, new departments are starting up and the stores find a greater demand for goods. This condition is not confined to Lowell but prevails all over the country, a sure sign that we are passing out of the gloom that has hung over business for the past two years.

THE VOTER'S DUTY

The time limit for filing nomination papers has now practically closed with the result that there is a fairly good list of candidates in the field from which the electorate by the exercise of good judgment can choose a very acceptable candidate for mayor, a thoroughly representative municipal council of 15 members and nine candidates qualified to conduct the affairs of the school board.

At first considerable misgiving was felt over the rush of candidates to take out nomination papers; but this has given way to a feeling of satisfaction that so many business men and other acceptable candidates have volunteered their services to the city for the next two years. From the list of candidates for the council both at large and from the wards, there can be chosen a municipal council that will reflect credit upon the city of Lowell. We mention this as one of the possibilities, although it is hardly to be expected that the most desirable candidates will be elected in all cases. With the general conflict among the candidates, the urgent claims made by some and the disposition of a great many voters to support the candidates with whom they are acquainted, whether the latter are qualified or not, will assuredly affect the result in a manner that may bring more or less disappointment to those who expected to see good judgment shown in the final analysis. However, we have confidence that the electorate will see the wisdom of overlooking the candidates who have no chance of election and voting for the stronger candidates in order that every vote may count in deciding the chief contests both at the primaries on Nov. 22 and at the final election on Dec. 13.

We sincerely hope that the voters will not leave themselves open to the charge that they do not want good government and that they will vote for weak candidates in preference to men of the highest integrity and long experience in business.

What is the supreme duty of the voters in this election? Simply to pick out the most decent and capable candidates for all the offices to be filled.

GUARD AGAINST CANCER

Cancer week should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by any citizen of Lowell, high or low, healthy or unhealthy. When a disease takes a toll of 90,000 lives in the United States in a single year, and when doctors everywhere admit that it is incurable unless taken in the early stage, surely every person who has any regard for his or her safety should heed the wise counsel offered in various newspaper articles and in lectures by surgeons and others who are well qualified to instruct the public on the symptoms and treatment of this dread disease.

What seems to be established beyond a doubt is, that the disease when external, usually starts with a painless growth or excrescence on the skin, causing but slight inconvenience until its roots sink into the flesh and, like the roots of a vine, spread over blood-vessels and muscular tissue. It is plain that the longer the roots be allowed to spread, the more radical will be the operation necessary to remove them.

When the disease is external and before the roots have sunk deeply into the flesh, the cancer may be removed entirely by a surgical operation and, it is claimed, in some cases by what is known as an arsenical plaster. Some years ago a man lived on Common street who had the recipe for such a plaster and used it successfully on several patients; but, of course, it was of no use in cases in which the roots had sunk deeply into the tissues. As to internal cancers, only the surgeon's knife is of any use and that, too, will fail unless applied before the roots of the growth have spread to vital organs.

What is to be remembered is that cancers come gently and at first are as painless as a wart or a wen, and for this reason they are liable to be neglected until too late. The advice of the cancer experts is to watch such growths and promptly consult a physician as to whether they are cancers.

If these simple precautions be followed, it is claimed that 50,000 of the 90,000 cancer victims in this country each year could be saved.

APPEALS TO PREJUDICE

Some men with political axes to grind seem to think it will help them to stir up class, racial and even religious prejudice in the coming election; but against the injection of any such spirit, we would enter a solemn protest. Such a course should be resented by sensible men as dangerous to the city and to all classes of citizens. Those who realize the baneful effects of such methods in the past, will dread the return of any such bitterness as they would a plague. The man who would widen the breach between labor and capital, who would stir up feeling against any reputable business organization, any class, any race or any religion is a menace to the community; and if he does so through a newspaper, so much the worse for the people and for Lowell.

What we need in approaching our city election is the spirit of patriotism shown by our people during the war when all united for a common cause with the result that for all time, this nation will be honored for the glory of their achievement. For the war, only the men who were physically fit were chosen. Let our new city government be chosen solely upon the ground of merit and evident fitness of each candidate for the proper discharge of the duties attached to the office to be filled. In that way and that alone can we improve our city government.

PAY THE BONUS

Simple justice demands that the men who offered their lives for the nation overseas shall be compensated in some measure—we do not believe they can ever be sufficiently repaid for the sacrifices they made and for the glory they brought to the United States by their heroism on the battlefields of France. Marshal Foch gave the American people a clearer idea of what our troops did than they ever had before; and he is the highest authority on the subject.

Having saved the allies from defeat, these service men who survived the conflict deserve well of the nation. It is also important and necessary that the allies pay their indebtedness to the United States in order that the money may be used to help compensate these men for their glorious achievements. Even the interest on the loans would come in handy now to enable the government at Washington to pay the soldiers the proposed bonus.

THE BIG TEXTILE SHOW

Nothing of the kind hitherto shown has equalled the International Textile Exhibition and National Power show held this week in Mechanics hall, Boston. It has presented the very latest inventions and the rarest products of loom and spindle, and in fine every phase of the textile art in all its related branches. It was certainly a wonderful exposition and it was fortunate that Lowell textile factories were so well represented in the exhibits. The special exhibit by the Saco-Lowell shops, the Merrimack Manufacturing company and several other Lowell concerns, in addition to the general exhibit of Textile fabrics produced by the Lowell mills and in charge of the Lowell chamber of commerce, were quite creditable. Indeed Lowell was the only city which had a general exhibit of this kind at the show.

PELLETIER

District Attorney Pelletier of Boston in his first speech in the mayoralty fight did not talk like a guilty man. Evidently he is not afraid of his enemies; and as for his opponent, Hon. John R. Murphy, he charges him with being allied to the clique that has been trying for years "to get Pelletier." But the present district attorney of Suffolk county acknowledges only one weakness—he has a heart susceptible to the appeals for pity and mercy, and he may have exercised both qualities to a greater extent than his accusers deem necessary or proper. But every district attorney is allowed wide latitude in such matters and the ends of justice are not always best served by enforcing the penal code with the rigor of a Lycurgus.

OUTLOOK FOR 1924

The statement is going the rounds of the press that the clash between Mr. McAdoo and ex-Governor Cox of Ohio at the meeting of the democratic national committee is likely to result in the nomination of former Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall for president in 1924. It is quite a while till 1924 and in the meantime conflicts such as occurred at the meeting of the committee may be smoothed over and the whole political situation changed, so that new candidates may come into the field and old pass out. It is too soon to predict who will be the democratic nominee in 1924.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL

Quail is more plentiful than for many years past according to the department of agriculture. That is good news for those who like quail on toast; and if the shooting of game were prohibited for a few years our American forests would abound with the birds that delight the heart of the hunter. But for the restraint imposed by law the game birds would soon be exterminated. It is well to have a hunting season, but that implies something to shoot.

New Bedford is getting a reputation as a seaport. The White Star liner "Cretic" will call at that city on Dec. 5 for the purpose of taking on passengers for the Azores, Madeira and Lisbon. This will be the fourth steamship running out of New Bedford as those of the Cunard, Fabre and Portuguese lines already make New Bedford a port of call. This seems to be placing New Bedford in a position of importance which she has not hitherto held.

The women's committee of the Anti-Saloon League comes out with a manifesto in favor of strict enforcement of the prohibition law. They very naturally and reasonably take the ground that this law, like every other, should be enforced and that if one law be ignored or scoffed at, others may soon be similarly disregarded.

Suppose the auditorium was finished and that all the candidates were brought upon the stage—oh yes, it will be big enough to hold them—in order that each might make his bow and offer some excuse for seeking office, wouldn't it be a great improvement upon present methods?

A Connecticut company reports being rushed with orders in its fish pole department and says it is receiving orders from Canada, England and France. In reference to the latter claim, we should like to apply to the company the short and ugly word that did good service in Roosevelt's day.

India may yet compete with the world in foreign trade. Cotton and jute manufacturing are leading industries there, and there is a growing development in steel manufacture, cement making and leather industries. Yet many people wonder why England wants to keep a tight grip on India.

"When the world meets in Washington" is a newly coined phrase that does very well for a catchy synonym, but the world may have to wait a long time before it gets all the news of that conference and gets the truth.

The quaintly furnished offices of some of the old-time stables in Lowell and vicinity still contain many aged habitues who follow horses and know them better than the average man.

China is reported as still firm on Shantung, but Japan is saying nothing. The Japanese have bought considerable land in and about Shantung. Who will cancel these purchases?

Mexican bandits have captured four Americans and ransom has been demanded and paid. Are we to return to the border again for watchful waiting?

Shoe manufacturers are swinging to lower grades, but if that will keep the factories busy, it will mean more money in circulation and better times for employes who have been idle.

They gave "Sailor" Ryan a fine reception at the American Legion convention in Kansas City. The "Sailor" was always popular.

Fish prices in Boston wholesale marts have dropped with a bang. That ought to help the Friday pocketbooks.

It is good policy for manufacturers to cater right now to the trade demanding pre-war prices. High prices without business get nowhere.

Very properly the American Legion demands action by congress on the bonus for soldiers without further equivocation or delay.

The exactions of the late war have not all been met, but some of its benefits have been realized in full.

The barefoot craze must be dying out. Lowell stocking mills report heavy orders for the fall and winter.

The delegates to the disarmament congress will sit at "a horseshoe table." Which way will the luck turn?

The large passenger lists on outgoing steamers Europe-bound are also signs of the times.

ARMISTICE DAY

Hon. Joseph Walker Will Speak at St. Anne's Church

Under the auspices of the local Federation of Churches, an Armistice day service will be held in St. Anne's church at 8 o'clock in the evening, with Hon. Joseph Walker, former speaker of the house of representatives, the principal speaker. Mr. Walker will deliver an address covering lines suggested by the day of observance and the disarmament conference. A feature of the service will be the singing of hymns by several vested choirs of the city.

Lowell Post No. 81, American Legion, has a notable program for the day's observance. Salutes will be fired in Monument square and there will be addresses by several well known citizens, including Mayor Perry D. Thompson.

Mayor Thompson has recommended the closing of all city departments on Armistice day. The schools will be closed and exercises will be held on Thursday, in most of the city schools.

PAIGE STREET CHURCH

The alterations at the Paige Street Baptist church and the installation of the new organ have been completed and the interior of the old church has taken an altogether different aspect. The alterations included the changing of the baptistry, an addition to the choir gallery and the addition of new dressing room. The new organ is of the largest type and was installed by Kimball & Frazer of Boston. It will be dedicated at the morning service at 10.30 o'clock, when a special musical program will be carried out and an appropriate sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. Cecil Hayes, whose topic will be, "The Importance of Music in a Church." In the evening, an organ recital will be given under the direction of Russell Fox.

CHELMSFORD H. S. BALL

The annual ball of the Chelmsford Centre High school was held last evening in the town hall. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and in the evening, a delightful entertainment program was given by Hoppe and his team of artists from Boston. The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Miss Ruth Emerson, chairman; Charles A. Ellis, Miss Mary Garvey, William Berg and Miss Ruth Monahan.

CHELMSFORD LEGION POST

Chelmsford Post, 212, American Legion, will hold its regular meeting in the town hall, Monday evening. Nominations for officers will be made and as competition between prospective candidates is keen, it is expected a large attendance will be on hand. The boys are talking about a minstrel show to be held after New Year's, and at this meeting some definite steps in this direction will be taken.

It isn't called Christian Hill by the autoist who tries to scale the heights on two cylinders.

Mark Twain could write a good story on that Worthen street month-old blockade over the canal.

Auto speeders have also found out that Patrolman Daly's other name on the bridge road signaling job is "early."

California hasn't had an earthquake for nearly two weeks and tourists are beginning to fear that the glamor is wearing off.

"To the manor born" was not meant for jazz artists and chicken-dinner fiends who frequent the imitation "manors" in the non-prohibition districts.

No Sick Animal

They were in a railroad train and were discussing Dickens. "Well," said one, "John puts 'Bleak House' first and 'Martin Chuzzlewit' second." "Excuse me, gentlemen," said a husky voice from the seats behind. "I don't know your pal, John, but you're being steered. There ain't no such horses runnin'."

Pusher Pushed

"Here, boy," said a wealthy motorist, "I want some gasoline, and please get a move on! You will never get anywhere in the world unless you have push. Push is essential. When I was young I pushed, and that was what got me where I am." "Well, mister," said the boy, "I reckon you'll have to push again, 'cause we ain't got a drop of gasoline in the place."

A Typical Case

The cripple thumped his crutch on the ground as he confronted his lawyer. "Heavens, man, your bill is outrageous!" he exclaimed. "You are taking four-fifths of my damages. I never heard of such extortion." "I furnished the skill and eloquence and the necessary legal learning for your case," said the lawyer coolly. "Yes," said the client, "but I furnished the case itself." "Bosh!" said the lawyer. "Anybody could fall down a coal hole."

Knees and Sir Harry

Sir Harry Lauder, among other things the author of "A Minstrel in France," is back again. He says it's the first of many farewell tours. As usual, he's in kilts. So, he observed on his first day in America, are many of the girls on Fifth avenue. "I saw one bonny lassie whose skir-r-t came down to just about where mine does," remarked Sir Harry. "And her stockings were rolled below the knee just about where mine are. And she showed just about as much knee as I do. But if I do say it as shouldn't, it was nicer knee."

The Wrong Words

The Chinaman could speak but little English and the Englishman could speak no Chinese, nevertheless the dinner went off agreeably. There was one dish that pleased the Englishman. It was a rich stew of onions, pork, mushrooms, and a dark, tender, well-flavored meat that tasted like duck. The Englishman ate heartily of this stew. Then he closed his eyes, lifted his hands, and shook his head with an air of ecstasy. After this compliment to the dish, he said interrogatively: "Quack, quack?"

"No, no," said the Chinaman. "Bow-wow."

Unusual Request

"Operator, will you please see that my telephone is put out of order?" This strange request came over the wire the other day from a Lynchburgh, Va. telephone subscriber, who explained that his bell had been ringing almost constantly for over five hours. He had, the man explained, inserted an advertisement in a local paper announcing that he desired to vacate an eight room residence, giving a telephone number for inquiries. So successful was the experiment that after the entire family had been worn out answering the telephone the householder begged that his line be disconnected for the night, in order that they might have an opportunity to recuperate.

Very Busy Man

One or two stories have been told of hustling American tourists "seeing the world." Here's another: A tourist dashed up to the British museum in a taxicab, ran up the steps, and said to the man in uniform at the door:

"Still got the Elgin marbles?"

"Yes, sir; of course, sir," replied the attendant.

"All right. How about the Assyrian-winged bulls near the lunchroom?"

"They're still there, sir."

"German air-raiders during the war didn't damage your fine mummy display upstairs, I hope?"

"No, sir; not at all, sir. But won't you step inside, and look around for yourself, sir?"

"No, thanks. I'll just take them as per catalogue," answered the tourist. "You see, I've got St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, the Tower, the South Kensington museum, the Wallace collection to do this morning, before I catch the Oxford train, give the college the once over and catch a connection with the Stratford express, so as to see Shakespeare's home before dinner."

On Your Toes

I knew a sprinter once who ran
Swifter than any other man
In all our school. And yet he could
(And not a comrade understood)
Not win a single open race,
But grew content with second place.

Our trainer was a wise old chap;
So he put on his thinking cap
And watched this fellow. On the mark
He poised as lightly as a lark
And got away at crack of gun;
But yet he never, never won.

Watching him one day near the finish
Our trainer saw his speed diminish.
He'd led the field by full a yard
Nor seemingly was running hard.
Then as a runner near him steals
Our man comes down upon his heels.

Trainer smiled and said: "I know
Why past the tape he does not go
Ahead of all the rest. Next race
He'll be accorded foremost place.
For lo I have discerned the lack
Which holds this wondrous sprinter back."

Next sprint our wonder started in
Our trainer with a knowing grin
Stood near the finish, with his eye
Upon the men as they went by.
And as this runner by him goes
The trainer yells: "Up on your toes!"

Up on his toes the sprinter went
And o'er the mark his feet he sent
A goodly distance ere the rest
Could reach it though they ran with zest
Now how to win this runner knows;
He simply stays up on his toes!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Now comes the season when the "dog cranks" have their inning. Horse fans are no more faithful to their hobby than the owners of blooded canines. And many a man and woman not owners of dogs of any description, may always be seen at the big shows, tramping through the aisles and inspecting the exhibition stalls where famous breeds are on exhibition, blue ribbons and everything. I learned today that the 30th annual specialty show of the Boston Terrier Club of America will be staged in Boston, Nov. 11 and 12, at the Mechanics building. Supt. Charles E. O'Connor reports that more than 300 dogs will be benched. This club is the parent of all Boston terrier clubs. Numerous crentors of this breed 30 years ago are still in the ring. Among the well known exhibitors this year, known to all Lowell owners of Bostons, are Dr. C. F. Sullivan, C. C. Kammerer, Frank Teeling and Frank Dondero. M. J. Donlon of Lynn will be this year's judge.

Despatches announce that Camp Devens, which was officially "abandoned" as a regular army base in orders issued by the war department last September, may continue to remain on the government books as a cantonment. It is said that the First division of the U. S. army may be assigned to Devens very soon. The First Corps area officials have the matter under consideration. At present, I am informed, there are about 200 soldiers at Ayer, a part of the famous 13th U. S. infantry. They are soon to be transferred to Fort Warren to join the remainder of the units of this splendid regiment.

Rare critics of the American army personnel—and there are critics even when it comes to our splendid military organization, I am sorry to say—have sometimes said that "many soldiers are foreigners." Let me tell the "harpers" something: A few weeks ago, I took a party of friends in a flivver to old Camp Devens. We wandered about the deserted barracks, hiked down the long military roads of wide macadam, sifted through deserted barracks and troop quarters, peeked into musty mess halls and cooking quarters and even trekked through former official "headquarters," the doors of which had been left unlocked. On sentry duty far down the area close to the foot of Telegraph Hill (remember that spot, boys?) I ran into a khaki-clad six-footer with a tanned face that resembled the color of a Pawnee Indian brave of the Custer-Buffalo Bill period. I spoke casually of the weather and the prospects of sunshine on the morrow. The voice that answered me did not belong to a Jugo-Slav. Said this husky in khaki:

"Naow, bruther, sah, you speak truthfully. The weather, sah, is sure going to be fine tomorrow, let me tell you."

Four more brothers in arms, all stalwarts of Uncle Sam's finest in every detail from tan shoes to peaked campaign hats, replied to my questions in the same, slow drawling voices, with courtesy in every response. Southerners they were and three out of the big four from good old Dixie land—Tennessee, sah! But not colored. In all there were 200 good American huskies there at that time.

"What's Wrong with the World?" is such a catchy topic that one can readily see the possibilities for an interesting discussion of its many points. Hence it is that Lowell people are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to hearing the noted lecturer, Peter W. Collins, on Wednesday evening next in Associate hall. Mr. Collins is a student of the economic and sociological problems, a man whose experiences fit him admirably to shine as a brilliant exponent of standards that make for ideal citizenship. Grand Knight John B. Hart of Lowell council, Knights of Columbus, under whose auspices the lecture is to be held, wants to emphasize the fact that the lecture is absolutely free and cordially invites the public to be on hand to hear an unrivalled presentation of facts about the present day problems affecting the civilized world.

Again yesterday it was conclusively proved that The Sun is a widely read newspaper. Thursday, Supt. of Police Redmond Welch appealed to this paper to publish a letter he had received from the postmaster of Mindoro, Wis., seeking relatives of one William O. Taplin, who recently died in that western town. The postmaster, F. J. Roland, told the local police head in his letter that Taplin was said to have relatives in Lowell or hereabouts, although very little else was known. A story and the letter were printed in Thursday's Sun. Yesterday afternoon a young man purporting to be a nephew of the deceased Mr. Taplin visited the local police station and informed the chief that he was related to the late Mindoro man and that Alden Taplin, an overseer in a Methuen mill, his father, was a brother of the dead man whose relatives were sought here. The story had been read in The Sun. It was stated, the day before. Supt. Welch furnished the Methuen man all the information he had, the latter being very anxious to communicate with the Mindoro authorities to learn more of his late brother's death.

Eminent Portuguese operatic artists recently arrived in this country from Paris and Lisbon, will give a lyric concert at the Lowell Opera house Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of well known Portuguese citizens, which should be enjoyable to all music lovers. The program will include selections from the operas of Rossini, Leoncavello, Puccini, Verdi, Ambroise, Thomas and Carvalho, and romantic folk lore ballads of France, Spain, Portugal and Italy, by Alice Pancado, soprano, Alfredo Mascarenhas, baritone, and instrumental solos by Alberto Sarto, maestro. Berton Braley's Daily Poem

The PRIMAL CLAMOR

There is a little lake I know,
A lake of azure, cool and clear,
Where slim canoes slip to and fro
With rippling music sweet to hear;
At night the silver moonlight gleams
On wavelets crinkling over sand,
It is a spot of drowsy dreams;
But somehow, blown, across the land
From far, far off, there comes to me
The great green magic of the sea.

Mountains with peaks of dazzling white
That rear themselves against the sky
Wake in my heart a brave delight;
Forests of pine trees towering high
Stir me with wonder and with awe.
And desert stretches hold a thrall
Of color, barbarous and raw;
But there's a spell beyond them all,
A lure of space and mystery,
The great green magic of the sea!

The sea, the cruel, tender sea
Eternal, yet forever strange,
Restless and turbulent and free.
With mighty moods that shift and change
From rage to calm, from love to hate;
The sea, that surges round the world,
Calling to high empires and great,
Where long waves roar and tides are swirled;
Oh, glamor that man may not flee—
The great green magic of the sea!

As to Large Ballots

It is alleged that the size of the ballot at the primaries will confuse the voters. Well, if it does, what will happen the poor voters when they have to deal with the blanket ballot in a national election?

Take, for example, the ballot for the presidential and state election in 1896. A sample ballot was published in the old Sun, and it appears that there were no less than seven distinct tickets in the field for president and vice president. It is well understood, of course, that nobody votes directly for president or vice president, but for the electors representing them. There were thirteen electors on each ticket and then there was a blank space on which the voter could write in the names of different electors if he did not wish to vote for any or all of those on the ticket of his choice.

The electoral vote of a state equals the number of its congressmen and its two United States senators. In 1896 the electoral vote of Massachusetts was 15, but in 1920 it was 18. If we get one or two more congressmen on the basis of population as shown by the last census, then the electoral vote of the state will be increased accordingly.

The ballot used in the election of 1896 was about the size of half a page of The Sun. Here were the principal tickets from which the people were to select:

Bryan and Sewall, democratic.

Bryan and Sewall, democratic nomination papers.

Bryan and Watson, people's party.

Lovering and Johnson, prohibition.

Matchet and Maguire, socialist labor.

McKinley and Hobart, republican.

Palmer and Buckner, democratic national nomination paper.

Then came the same number of party tickets for state officials.

For governor, lieutenant governor, treasurer, secretary of state, auditor, and attorney general the same parties made their appeal and then came the list of state, senatorial and representative candidates, embracing about ten contests in all, with two or more candidates in each.

In addition to this, there were three referenda questions. One was whether the voters should decide in favor of biennial elections for state officers and another, whether there should be biennial elections of members of the general court.

The third was the question of amending the city charter of Lowell. This was adopted and the two preceding were defeated.

Election Excitement

On the Saturday night preceding election in 1896, the city was decorated for the great street parades of both parties. Of this the old Sun said:

"The city is literally covered with the national colors. From hundreds of housetops, from the flag poles on city hall and all the public buildings Old Glory floats.

"Even horses are decked with the Stars and Stripes, which are also seen on vehicles of all kinds.

"Ladies have miniature flags pinned on the lapel of their jackets, and the display of flags from the windows of private residences is really surprisingly large. Business men, irrespective of party, have dressed the exterior of their establishment in flags, big and little."

Then followed a list of the leading stores on Merrimack and Central streets as having elaborate decorations.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt

In the old Sun I find the following tribute to Herman Eckhardt who a generation ago was prominent in social circles in this city:

H. V. Huse writes an interesting story of Prof. Eckhardt, musician, now passed away, whose fame was transcontinental and who was known to every lover of music in Lowell.

Prof. Herman Eckhardt was a native of Saxony and was in fact a born musician. He began his musical training in the celebrated Leipsic university, studying the violin and mastering it with remarkable ease.

When only 11 years old he became the pupil of the world famous Weintustein and later joined a military orchestra, playing the French horn and associating with the most prominent musicians of the day, coming to America in 1810 with an orchestra of talented musicians.

Prof. Eckhardt and his orchestra played in all the larger cities previous to 1847. In 1850 Prof. Eckhardt took the position of leader of the Lowell Museum orchestra, and after his marriage he toured this country and Europe. In connection with the Boston Museum orchestra he produced many excellent concerts from the classical operas.

In 1869 he was offered the position of musical instructor in the public schools of Columbus, Ohio, and in that city for nearly 30 years he had rounded out his busy life as the leading musician of the community and one of the foremost in America.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 5.—Could you practically live on a race track and never bet a singe cent?

Could you develop and sell race horses and never bet a cent to back them up?

Could you race a race horse and still never bet on him?

It is not impossible. John Edward Madden, the most famous and leading breeder and racer of thoroughbred race horses on the American continent, does all of this, and still more.

He has a farm at Lexington, Ky., 2000 acres of the finest blue grass land. He has other large interests and possesses a large fortune—but not one cent of this has ever been made through betting on race horses, notwithstanding horses he himself had bred for winning.

Madden as a boy turned his early fancy to the trotting horse. He came to Lexington in 1853 and from that time to this he has been the leader of the trotting and thoroughbred ovals.

His first "big" buy was in 1883 when he paid $10,100 for Suisin, trotting mare, and in 1890 he paid $33,250 for Robert McGregor, famous trotting sire.

Madden has a lot of sentiment for his horses. He heard that Nancy Hanks, trotting mare, was for sale. He immediately bought her and gave her a home on the blue grass of his farm and the day she arrived Madden ...sued invitations to numerous friends for a reception in honor of Nancy Hanks.

Madden has established a cemetery on his farm for horses that have belonged to him. It is arranged within a stone wall built in the form of a horseshoe.

Within the enclosure are monuments to Nancy Hanks, Hamburg and others whose deeds have added luster to the annals of the turf.

Madden always sells a horse when his price is met. He loves the fleet animals, but selling horses that he has developed is his business. He does not like to see them leave him, but as he has always said, "I had rather sell and regret than keep and regret."

He retains his interest in every line of sport and no event of unusual interest in sports has been missed by him in 40 years.

But still he will not bet on a race horse.

DOBBIN IS COMING TO THE FRONT AGAIN

Old-time horsemen in and about Lowell read with interest The Sun story of the long record of Silas A. Shattuck of West Fourth street, who for 60 years has been a blacksmith and horseshoer. A visit to some of the other best known business places run by blacksmiths and expert horsemen for many years in various parts of Lowell resulted in uncovering some readable facts about the industry in this city.

One of the best known "old-time" shoeing stables in Lowell, popular with horsemen old and young, and still doing business up a small side street far from the busy thoroughfares, is the establishment of Henry Reynolds, horseman, race track follower and golf player.

A Sun man visited the Reynolds place at 42 Cushing street this morning and found that the old buildings have been running wide open for horseshoeing for more than 50 years. Reynolds has been in the game about 25 years, and of course does not consider himself an old-timer.

Reynolds has been a little slow about getting enthusiastic over Golden Cove racing, he told a Sun man today. He drew the writer over to an old desk cabinet on which lay billheads, pictures of horses of every age and color, race score cards and sale announcements.

"Look at this!" he exclaimed, handing the reporter a large race card. It was one of the summer Grand Circuit fliers, and Reynolds admitted that he "followed the big wheel horses." He has the records of every circuit horse on his tongue's end. He can tell you the speed of Arion or Croesus, or Single G or Natalie. He shot them out like a catapult this morning and told stories gleaned from his recent visits to the big stables owned by Cox, Geers and all the rest. You can talk grand circuit all day with Henry and not go home tired of listening to his chatter. He told a few this morning that would go big in a horse journal.

Just around the corner on Fletcher street is another old-time stable and horseshoeing establishment, and run by George Ahearn. This man has a fine line of work, and the shop is an old one, but George isn't old and so doesn't want to be classed with the historic boys of the anvil chorus.

"Let me take my hat off to Brother Shattuck instead," said Ahearn genially, this morning. "He's a fine old gentleman and a good horseshoer. Put that in The Sun. I want him to know it!" That is Ahearn all over—with a good trade and no fault to find with the advent of the automobile. "I have all I can do, and besides, you will please set it down that horses are coming back, my boy!" he said as he turned back to his fireplace and tossed in another new shoe for shaping.

At other stables in that vicinity the belief was current that horses were on their way "back to the front." Some horseshoers say many large trucking concerns are finding horse power cheaper in the long run and more profitable in every way. The sentiment in the stables over beyond Central street and over in Centralville, too, is that more horses are being used for general business purposes than was the case when the trucking craze reached its climax a few seasons ago.

ANOTHER GILROY ON GRIDIRON

Another member of the famous Gilroy family of Haverhill is slowly stepping along in the athletic line. The last and youngest of this famous athletic family entered Haverhill high last fall and is now on the Haverhill football squad. Whether or not he will be able to follow in his two older brothers' footsteps time alone will tell. His two brothers, Ralph and Johnny, have nation-wide reputations as college football players. Johnny scintillated at Georgetown a few years back and later with Jim Thorpe's pro team out in the west. Ralph has been starring at Princeton for the past two years and is one of the most brilliant defensive backs in the country. Bill Broderick, the Haverhill high coach, has a great reputation for developing raw material into stars so it won't be much of a surprise to hear in a year or so of another Gilroy cutting his name into the athletic hall of fame.

GAVE SHEPARD AWARD

Mob of Fight Fans Threatened Joe McCarthy Who Refereed Nashua Bout

NASHUA, N. H., Nov. 5.—The police had to escort Joseph McCarthy of Boston, a Massachusetts referee, to the state line early yesterday, to save him from a mob of fight fans because of his award last night, to Johnny Shepad of Woburn, Mass., in the bout with Doddy O'Neill.

The two judges announced that both voted for a draw. McCarthy, however, gave the decision to Shepard.

The demonstration was so bitter and persistent that an escort to the state line was deemed advisable.

Chief Goodwin is to investigate a statement attributed to McCarthy that he could not declare a draw under Massachusetts rules.

THE STORY THAT HELPED McGRAW

There's a new business yarn called "The Go-Getter"—and appropriately subtitled: "A Story That Tells You How to Be One"—which is in size one of the smallest books of the year, and in the enthusiasm it has aroused among business men and other go-getters, one of the biggest. It's a moderately short story in book form, by Peter B. Kyne, and in New York the following story about it is going the rounds among baseball fans.

"Things were looking dark for John McGraw and his champion troupe of horse-hide maulers. Then an admirer sent him a mysterious brown package. At first McGraw was going to soak same in water because certain Yank fans stop at nothing, but with characteristic bravery, the baseball Napoleon threw discretion to the four winds. The package, however, disclosed nothing more alarming than books—twenty copies of "The Go-Getter"—about a Yankee who was beaten a dozen times but didn't know it. McGraw took half an hour off to read the story and decided there was a new 'Message to Garcia' in it. His opponents were ahead and he'd even stoop to psychology to win. Wherefor he distributed the extra copies of the book among his disciples. That the Giants won the next three games, and, of course, the pennant, is a mere matter of history. Now the Yanks, who were defeated, are wondering if they hadn't better include a course in reading in their training schedule next spring."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM GOES TO WOBURN

The high school football team journeyed to Woburn this afternoon and played the strong high school team of that town. Although a hard battle was looked for Coach Eddie Cawley's charges were confident of adding the Woburn team to their list of victims. That the Lowell boys were up against a tough team was evidenced by the fact that Woburn so far this year had won every game. Woburn is noted for the star athletes that it turns out and it was in view of this fact that Coach Cawley started his strongest lineup in today's game.

The high school team today was ordered by Coach Cawley to confine all its efforts to straight football. If, however, the ball is in scoring position and the backs are unable to gain Willard or Condon, who has come along fast as a drop kicker in the past few days, will be called on to boot over a drop kick. Coach Cawley is lucky in having two such clever kickers as this pair.

At the final practice yesterday afternoon the coach devoted most of his time in teaching his new guards, Bailey and Brosnan the fundamentals of guard play. Both boys proved apt learners and in the scrimmage against the second team threw back all attempts to gain through their positions. A shift was made in the backfield by the return of Pete Sheehan to eligibility. Sheehan was one of the sensations of the early games and his return to the team at this time will greatly strengthen it. In the Lowell backfield today there was no star plunger as both Litton and Normandin were out of the lineup. Coach Cawley, however has groomed Taplin, the husky tackle, to fill in the position of fullback and he was expected to see service at that place today. The lineup at the start of today's game was probably as follows: King, Gleason, ends; Rowlandson, Sullivan, tackles; Bailey, Brosnan, guards; Dodge, center; Sweeney, quarter, Willard, Hilton, halves; Sheehan, fullback.

GREB BEATS WEINERT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harry Greb Pittsburgh heavyweight, last night defeated Charles Weinert, Newark, receiving the judges' decision after a 15-round bout.

TEXTILE AND WORCESTER TECH IN BIG GAME

This afternoon on the Moody street gridiron Lowell Textile played its most important football game of the season when it took on the Worcester Polytechnical Institute eleven.

Both teams appeared to be in fine condition for the game and made a snappy appearance before the largest crowd of the season. The visitors, clad in their red and gray uniforms, took the field first and after exchanging punts and trying out passes went through a rapid signal drill. While not a heavy team, the Engineers presented a well balanced outfit.

Textile took the field shortly after and went through its preliminary work. All of the regulars were in the lineup and the manner in which the local team went through its warming up stunts indicated it was out to lift a Worcester scalp.

A high wind was blowing which made the handling of punts and long passes difficult. Shortly before 2.45 the rival captains met in the center of the field and tossed for the choice of goals.

CASTLES AND BURKE IN CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

An announcement of considerable importance to boxing followers in Lawrence and Lowell was made today, when C. P. Dodge of the Moody club issued a statement that he had succeeded in matching Barney Burke and Mike Castles for a 10-round bout on next Thursday night to settle the claims of both to the featherweight championship of Lawrence.

It was originally planned to put Castles against Chick Hayes here next week, but when the local promoter found that he could land the Castles-Burke battle, he immediately cancelled the Hayes' end and signed up the rival Lawrencians.

COMMUNICATIONS

Sporting Editor, Dear Sir:

A few weeks ago there appeared in the Lowell papers, a statement which was signed by the manager of the Greek tug of war team, stating that his team had been treated unfair on Columbus day and he also issued a challenge to the Billerica shop team to pull for a purse of $500. Now immediately afterwards, we, the Boilermakers tug of war team, accepted the challenge to pull the Greek team or any other team for a suitable prize but not for money. Then along come the officers of one of the few clubs in the city of Lowell who are trying to boost sports in the city (namely the Lowell Driving club) and arrange to put on the contest between the two teams for a suitable prize and it was all set for October 22nd at the Golden Cove park but after the driving club committee had gone to the expense and trouble of arranging the contest and the Boilermakers' team had trained faithfully for same, along comes (Mr. Andremeteas, Greek Manager) at the last minute and notifies the committee that they are not going to pull.

Now we stated in our letter of acceptance that we would pull any team any time or anywhere and that we did not believe in (hot air sports) that we were willing to beat but it is too bad for a good club like the Lowell Driving club whose members are doing all within their power to put Lowell on the map as a clean and real sporting city and are doing all that human beings can do to give the city a good athletic field by their hard labor and many sacrifices that this kind of a trick should be pulled over on them. There should be some way or rules to handle such poor sportsmanship as pulled off by the Greek team and we hope in the future when anything is agreed to, that all concerned will live up to the agreement. There is one thing we would say, that the Driving club has and has people as real gentlemanly sportsmen and we expect at all times to meet and help them in the same manner.

We also have a basketball team which we would be only too glad to enter into any games or league if possible. We are not champions at anything yet but we are here to be beaten. So let's help the clubs that are trying to help the city and sports.

Hoping that you will see your way to print this in your valuable papers and thanking you for past favors, we remain,

EDW. MacMILLAN, Manager.

CRIMSON AND TIGER SQUARE OFF IN ANNUAL FOOTBALL STRUGGLE

Both Teams Enter Game With All Regulars in Form---Army Meets Notre Dame at West Point---Other Important College Clashes on Today's Card

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Harvard, recovered from the jolt given her last Saturday by Centre college, was the guest of Princeton today in the east's feature gridiron affair. The clashes of Army and Notre Dame at West Point; Nebraska at Pittsburgh; Lafayette at Pennsylvania; Maryland at Yale, and Cornell at Columbia, also shared considerable interest.

Both Princeton and Harvard went to today's game with their strongest elevens ready for the fray.

Princeton has defeated Harvard 11 out of 22 games played since 1877, and tied her three times, one of the ties being the 11-14 game at Cambridge last year. Since 1911, however, when football relations were renewed between the colleges after a lapse of 15 years, the Crimson has won five of eight games played and tied two. Princeton last beat Harvard in 1911, 8 to 6.

The Army eleven, according to reports from West Point, was stronger today in a point of attack than it was against Yale, and expects to avenge the defeat administered by Notre Dame, last year. French, Army's backfield star, is out with an injury, it was announced.

Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh squad, one of the strongest of eastern teams, was expecting its hardest tussle of the the year against the Nebraskans. University of Pennsylvania, with several new faces in its line, had the dashing Lafayette eleven as its opponent.

Yale had its first string backfield men and a substitute rush line ready for Maryland. Captain Aldrich was slated for the left half position. O'Hearn and Blair, two of the bull dog's strongest regulars, were suffering from slight injuries and could not play. Coach Jones said he would give about 25 substitutes a chance in the game.

The Ithacans buoyed by their great victory over Dartmouth last Saturday met Columbia at the Polo Grounds here. It will be the ninth engagement of Columbia and Cornell elevens since 1890. Columbia had an entirely new combination to present against Cornell and Coach O'Neill said he believed he had strengthened the eleven's defensive powers a great deal.

Big Games in West

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Three of the four undefeated teams in the big ten were in action today, two of them playing each other. The Buckeyes invaded the Maroon's territory and big 10 fans throughout the conference territory eagerly watched this game.

Chicago is Ohio's strong remaining opponent for the conference title, while on the other hand, victory by Chicago would leave her with but one more serious contender in the championship race, Wisconsin, on Nov. 19, and a season of notable victories headed by that over Princeton.

Iowa appeared at Minneapolis for the game with Minnesota with 40 players from Iowa City, including the scrubs.

Northwestern and Purdue, tailenders, were to fight it out for cellar honors today at Lafayette, Ind.

Northwestern has three crippled stars and previous showing of the teams would indicate a victory for Purdue.

Notre Dame vs. Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Uncle Sam's cadets were called upon to face today one of the most dangerous football teams on the gridiron—Notre Dame. The Indiana team promised to carry the battle to the army through the medium of the forward pass, which has always been a keen rapier in the hands of Coach Rockne's men. Army was expected to rely largely on line plunges and end runs.

International Game

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—McGill university's football squad, having switched from Canadian to American college football in two weeks today meets Syracuse in the Memorial stadium. It was the first game scheduled between a United States and Canadian college football team in 41 years.

U. of Pittsburgh vs. Nebraska

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5.—The University of Pittsburgh football team looked for a tough tussle today, with the Nebraska team when they met in the first intersectional game in Pittsburgh this season. At the opening kickoff, Pitt was to go into the game without Quarterback Holloran and two others of its first string men—Bowser and McLean.

Marietta Plays B. C.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The elevens of Marietta and Boston college met at Braves Field today. Coach Griffiths of the Ohioans said he felt confident that Marietta would reverse the result of last year's game. The local collegians took the field crippled by casualties of earlier games.

Yale and Maryland Play

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Second string men predominated in the lineup of Yale in its contest today with Maryland university. The reserve strength will be test in the opening of the game but regulars are expected to have a hand in the battle before it is over. Clear, cold weather and a brisk wind greeted fans and players this morning.

The probable lineup:

YALE		MARYLAND
Hulman, le.		le, Young
Hidden, lt.		lt, Nesbitt
McKay, lg.		lg, Brewer
Norris, c.		c, Tallock
Cross, rg.		rg, Gundry
Esselstyn, rt.		rt, Burger
Sturm, re.		re, Branner
Becket, q.		q, Groves
Adrich, lhb.		lhb, Plassing
Spleden, rhb.		rhb, B. Brewer

FOR REORGANIZATION OF RACE COMMITTEE

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 5.—Reorganization of the American race committee which had charge of the selection of the Elsie, unsuccessful defender of the international fishing vessel championship cup is demanded by Mayor Percy Wheeler. The present members should resign, he thinks. "Men who know the bowsprit of a schooner from its stern" should hold their places, and ports other than Gloucester should be represented, the mayor asserts.

His views, announced at a meeting last night, will be pressed, he said today until a new order of things is obtained. The mayor declared: "We want no more Mayflower episodes," referring to the fact that the Mayflower of Boston, nominated as the American defender was disbarred. "This race should be open to all. The committee should be composed of master mariners and vessel owners with representation for Provincetown and Boston."

NEPONSET A. A. TO PLAY INDIANS

Boston, Mass.,
November 4, 1921.

Dear Sir:

Will you kindly insert the following:

The Neponset A.A. which will play the Indians on the Lowell Fair grounds Sunday is managed by Ray Sweeney and he has in his lineup some familiar faces who have performed in the past in Lowell.

Among them are McDonald, Carlson and Gorman of Y.D. fame, Thorson and Foster of Fordham, McLaughlin and Ferris of the South Boston K. of C. team of last year, Haggerty, last year's all-interscholastic quarter-back, Devine and Gormley of high school fame and others.

The Neponset Wanderers have refused to play this club in spite of persistent challenges for the reason that the Neponset A.A. is considered one of the strongest clubs in Greater Boston.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
RAYMOND L. SWEENEY.
Mgr. Neponset A.A.

This game was arranged as a benefit to Owen Nerney.

CADETS PLAY SHARF'S NOBLES

Tomorrow afternoon the O. M. I. Cadets will buck up against the strong Sharf's Nobles on the North common. "Jack" Vaughn, Arthur White, "Jake" Cullen, Gigger Rogers and several other grid stars will be seen wearing Sharf's uniforms.

During the past week the Cadets have been drilling on some of Georgia Tech's famous hidden ball plays and aerial attacks. If these prove successful the "Nobles" will find the going very hard.

The game starts at 3 p. m.

Germany is the only country which has formally abolished tipping.

LOWELL HORSEMEN BUY SOME NEW ONES

Lowell horsemen made some excellent buys at the speed sale held under the management of George McKinney, Charles Lockwood and Daniel McKinney at the Readville track. Not for 12 years have so many good ones been under the hammer. Fully 20 Lowell followers of the driving game attended the auction, and numerous purchases were clinched.

Some of the buys came to Lowell this morning, two more are due tonight or Sunday, and on Tuesday morning, if a certain deal is put through in the meantime, one of the best little "ladies" that ever traveled without hopples will arrive in Lowell with a mark of 2.13¼ or near there.

Ray Frost of Roxbury, formerly of Lowell and one of the judges at the last Golden Cove meet, has bought Bertolini, 2.14¾, a bay gelding nine years old, by Bertini. Frost also picked up Rita C., a bay mare. Bertolini cost $270 and Rita C. went under the hammer for $110.

A handsome bay colt about a year old, by Justice Brooks, also went to Frost to fill out his string. A half-century bought this one.

Clinton Coffin of Dracut came home with a fine animal, said to have cost him but little and one with a good pedigree.

Dan Fay purchased Monana, 2.25, aged four years, a bay gelding by Moko, the price being only $170. Fay brought him through Lowell last night stabling him in Nashua where he has winter quarters.

Afton G. Titus, the real estate man, brings home the bacon with Anna Donna, a brown filly two years old, by Peter O'Donna, $170 being top price.

R. L. Clark got Helen Morlain, a bay mare, 7 years, by Earl of Chatham, for a $55 check.

Dr. H. H. Watson of Haverhill paid $220 for Lady Harvester, bay filly, 3 years old, by The Harvester.

Oscar Dowel and Isaac E. Wotton also made good purchases, Oscar going "half" with another buyer on a fancy horse with a fair record.

POLO NOTES

Going up.

Lowell's victory over Worcester last night pushed the club up a peg in the league standing.

Bob Griffith of the Lawrence team was a spectator at last night's game. He said he was doing a little scouting, as Lowell plays in the down-river city tonight.

Owner Cronin of the Worcester team and Owner Daniels of Portland were at the game. Cronin came over with his team, but Daniels made the trip to call on Bob Hart, who has been laid up with a severe cold for the past week. He found Hart recovering and hopes to have him back in the lineup next week.

The playing of all members of the Lowell team was of a classy variety, and a continuance of such work will bring the team well up the ladder.

BOXING

well as in all other branches of sports is more productive of interest than the importation of out-of-town men, regardless of their class. This fact has been clearly demonstrated here during the past few weeks and the policy it is announced, will be continued.

The supporters of Benny Nelson, Billy Murphy, Johnny Avila and the other local boys turned out in large numbers the other night and the enthusiasm manifested was the most spontaneous here in many a day.

Lowell is certainly developing some artistic mitt wielders. Avila, Murphy and Nelson are truly promising performers. Nelson's defeat by Murphy while a setback was no disgrace. It was not because of Nelson being a poor fighter that he lost, but because Murphy is a much better workman. Both are bound to go higher on the pugilistic ladder.

Avila also showed superfine boxing ability. He resembles Benny Valger in action. Valger is noted as one of the country's leading defensive fighters. He always lets the other fellow do the leading, invariably sidestepping and popping his man as he comes forth. Avila, while not as finished as the New Yorker, has the same style. When the opening comes Avila, like Valger, is like a flash to grasp the opportunity and when he does go on the offensive he can launch a terrific attack.

Frank O'Dowd of the Acro would like nothing better than a match with Billy Murphy for the championship of the Acro. O'Dowd informed The Sun through his manager, Dan O'Hehe, that he would meet Murphy at any place and any time. Manager O'Hehe would like to meet the manager of Murphy at the latter's earliest convenience.

Perry who was defeated by Avila is a crafty ring general, using his head at all times. Only for his fine generalship he might have gone out early in the fray. He exercises good judgment and even in defeat he made a splendid impression.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN

BOSTON, Nov. 4—The New England amateur cross country championship was held today over the Franklin park course of six miles. The Boston Athletic association and the Dorchester and St. Alphonsus clubs were represented by teams. The winning team will be chosen to represent New England in the national cross country championships at Pittsburgh, on November 19.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Rangers' 115 pound team would like to play the Wanderers 115 pound team a series of five games starting Sunday, Nov. 6, 1921, for the championship of the city. Answer through this paper.

The Bulldogs and the Fenwick Stars' football teams will play on the North common Sunday on the small grounds. They are 50-65 pound teams.

LOWELL IN FINE FORM

Plays Championship Polo and Defeats Worcester by 11 to 5 Score

For two periods last night's Lowell-Worcester polo game at the Crescent rink was a closely fought contest but in the final stanza local goals were rained by Goal Tend Jette and when the hickories were tucked away for the night the count stood 11 to 6, with Lowell on the long end.

Lowell turned in its best performance of the season. Each and every member played real championship polo, with Davies and Alexander coordinating to perfection on the rush line, Quigley in mid-season form on the offense and defense at centre, Morrison like a stone wall before Thompson and Taylor, and Blount turning in one of his characteristic games at goal.

But Lowell had to cut loose for the visiting lineup is of the all-star variety. Lee Taylor and "Legs" Thompson are a fast and hard driving pair of rushes, Hardy and Donnelly are strong blockers and Jette plays a good goal.

It was through no inferiority on Worcester's part that Lowell won; rather it was due to the superior play of the home crew. Many thrills were witnessed during the game. Thompson hooked the ball out of the air and into the net for a pretty goal. Alexandar and Davies also turned in some artistic shots.

The first period brought Lowell three goals and Worcester one, Davies getting two and Alexander and Thompson one apiece. Thompson opened the second session with one for Worcester. Davies got it back a little later. Then Taylor got his first and last of the night and the session ended 4 to 3. Alexander launched a splendid attack as the final session got underway, scoring three in a row, Thompson then broke the monotony with one, Alex. landed another, and Thompson came back with a beaut. Quigley came up on the rush line and hammered through a brace and Davies landed another for good measure. They were coming thick and fast, but the big horn ended further scoring. The lineup:

The Living Room in This Home Gets Sunlight From Three Sides

There is a fireplace in the dining room of this model home plan, furnished The Sun, by the Curtis Service Bureau, of Clinton, Ia.

There are seven rooms in this captivating little house, although it doesn't look it, and they are larger than average rooms, at that. The most important one—the living room—is 12 feet by 20 feet and occupies an entire end of the first floor, so that its grouped casements capture sunshine from three sides.

This room follows the English tradition in its panelled walls. Machine production places wall panelling within the reach of the builder of even a modest cottage. The Elizabethan type, such as is used in this little home, may be called the standard English panelling.

Plenty of Wall Space

In the middle of the outside wall of this room, the simple fireplace, with panelling for its over-piece, is flanked by pairs of casements. A long wall space opposite invites piano or davenport. The far end of the room consists of two permanent bookcases with a built-in seat connecting them, under the casements.

The same excellent planning is evidenced in every room in the house. There is the desirable vestibule, the indispensable coat closet; the main stair hall, accessible from the kitchen directly, and communicating by means of the French doors with the living room on one side and dining room on the other.

The dining room has front location, with groups of casements on two sides. Its pleasing shape—a long rectangle with all four corners cut across, is due to built-in corner china cupboards at each side of the front pair of casements, a fireplace in a third corner, and the kitchen door in the fourth.

Provides an Alcove

The cutting off of this fourth corner makes a little alcove between kitchen and dining room that serves the same purpose as a pantry in eliminating noises and odors. One of the built-in dressers is in this location, equally convenient to kitchen and dining room.

There is an ironing board in a wall cabinet among the kitchen conveniences, also, and besides ample space for sink, drainboard, range, boiler and worktable, a folding breakfast table might be included. Only a cased opening separates the kitchen from the rear entry, an excellent place for the refrigerator and for receiving deliveries, and which in also the means of access to the basement. The small rear porch occupies a corner, so would require screening on only two sides to make it an outdoor workroom.

Four Bedrooms

There are four bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs. Besides the linen closet in the hall, each bedroom has its clothes closet. In the largest, a regular interior door—really a built-in chiffonier. A mirror door is an added convenience in one room, that hints of spring sewing as well. Each bedroom has a pleasant corner location, and promises cheerfulness and healthfulness in abundance of casements. Notice the pretty dormer in one room.

PAINT AND POWDER CLUB MEETING

The annual meeting of the Paint and Powder club was held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Meigs. Disappointment was expressed by the members when Miss Louise Jennison, the president of the club, who managed the vaudeville performance given last April, resigned her office. Miss Jennison gave a great deal of her time to the club last winter and used to advantage her experience gained as a member of the Idler club at Radcliffe. The club elected Mrs. James Abbott president for the coming year. As Miss Elizabeth Meigs resigned her position as secretary, Miss Leslie Hylan was given that office. Miss Margery Stover was re-elected treasurer.

To give a theatrical performance each year, the proceeds of which will be devoted to some worthy charity, is the aim of the club. After the performance last spring the Paint and Powder club was able to give $700 to the Lowell guild.

Crossly, 68 Humphrey street is the next meeting place.

LOOKS LIKE A MOVIE BUT IT ISN'T

THE LAST WORD IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

"Cancer Week" comes to an end tonight, but physicians and surgeons hope that the campaign will bear fruit in the weeks to come. A last-minute recital of pertinent facts in relation to the dangerous character of flesh wounds and sores is issued today by local physicians, who have been acting in conjunction with members of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, the statement reading as follows:

Any lump, especially in the breast.
Any irregular bleeding or discharge.
Any sore that does not heal—particularly about the tongue, mouth or lips.
Persistent indigestion with loss of weight.
Go immediately to a hospital or to a reputable physician if any of these signals are displayed and insist upon a thorough examination.
Don't wait to see if the condition will go away of itself.
Don't use patent medicines.
Don't allow advertising "Cancer Specialists" and "Quack Doctors" to treat you.
Don't be guided by anybody except a thoroughly competent physician.
Don't be ashamed to talk cancer. The right way is the only safe way.

WEEK DAY FAIR CLOSES TONIGHT

A supper and entertainment tonight brings to a close the three days' fair which has been conducted at the Y. M. C. A. by the ladies auxiliary. The supper tonight will be served from 5.30 until 7.

The sale yesterday afternoon and evening was reported as very brisk, in many instances it being necessary to rush fresh supplies to the various booths.

A musical program under the direction of Mrs. Rufus Corlew featured last night. Vocal selections by Miss Hazel Futhill, readings by Miss Doris Yorke of Westford and piano selections and duets by Miss Charlotte Corlew and Clayton Cruthers were included.

This afternoon will be children's afternoon at which special features such as grab-bags, games and the like will be prominent. A special sale of dolls and children's toys at the Wednesday booth has been arranged. Piano selections by Beatrice Warner and Irma Carp, and a farce entitled "Kid Curlers" by four boys of the Middlesex county training school will be among the many numbers.

ARREST OF LOWELL BOYS IN NASHUA

Among the defendants who will appear before Judge Enright at the juvenile session of the district court next Friday are three boys, arrested yesterday, two charged with breaking and entering and larceny, and the other with larceny. Wilfred Giguere, 14 years old, of Hall street, and Sylvio Corignan, aged 14, of Moody street, were arrested at the railroad station in Nashua last night by Officer Ouellette at the request of the Tyngsboro police, who had sent reports of a break and a description of the youths to nearby cities and towns. It is alleged that the boys broke into the Tyngsboro cash market at Tyngsboro yesterday afternoon and stole a small sum of money and a quantity of various articles.

Much of the loot was found on their persons, the Nashua police say. The boys also admitted the break, according to the police of the New Hampshire city. They were returned to this city last night in charge of Officer Holt of Tyngsboro and Agent Richardson, of the Humane society, who is juvenile probation officer, was notified. He took custody of the youths until Friday.

The other boy who will face juvenile arraignment is George L. Fennell, aged 18, of Princeton street. He is alleged to have stolen a bicycle, the property of another boy, about two weeks ago. Since then Lieut. Maher and Sergt. Dwyer have been investigating the theft and yesterday afternoon took Fennell in custody.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PLANS TO CUT DOWN REPUBLICAN MAJORITY

Aim of Chairman Hull---Senator Walsh Sounded Keynote of Democratic Policy in New York---Mysterious Rumors Concerning Ex-President Wilson

(Special to The Sun.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—The democratic effort to cut down the big republican majority in house and senate is one of the topics of the day at the capitol. The meeting of the democratic national committee in St. Louis this week has brought the matter to the front and senators and members of congress are giving much thought and attention to the probable outcome of that conference.

The headquarters of the party in Washington are to be enlarged and will be the center of political activities. The democrats believe the landslide victory for republicans last year resulted largely from a vigorous campaign begun long before the country at large realized a campaign was under way. Now the democrats propose to pursue the same tactics and begin the work of the 1922 campaign this fall. The slowness of a republican congress to make good its promises, opposition to the policies advanced by the republicans in congress, and a general clamor against the way that party has conducted a national program, but not fulfilled its pledges will be a target for the opening guns. It is understood here that the democrats are hopeful of cutting down the majority in senate and house and that the congressional committee will take a big part in the preliminary campaign soon to be inaugurated, and that the hope of regaining governors in many states, that last year went to the republican fold, though formerly democratic or close, is even stronger in the democratic breast of the national committee. Anyhow, Washington is keenly alive to the fact that the election is but a year away, and that primaries loom up in the more immediate future. "Be prepared" is the slogan of that party at this moment, and little groups of democratic congressmen can be seen daily, discussing the best methods to pursue.

Senator Walsh as Democratic Leader

It will be recalled that Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a leader of the democratic side of the senate was selected by New York democrats last June to make the leading address, when theories, methods and a general outline of the democratic policy for 1922 was the topic under discussion. In fact, it was the Massachusetts senator who was selected by the New York City club to set the pace for the great campaign of 1922.

It was a significant move on the part of the influential New York club, to select a northern democrat as its chief spokesman, and was at that time regarded as a move to make converts in New England and the east. Moreover it put in the foreground of the nation's stage a powerful democratic senator who bitterly opposed the League of Nations, and many other of the so called Wilson policies. Still more notable was the fact that Mr. Walsh, although progressive to a marked degree, preached old fashioned Jeffersonian democracy. He is a devout Catholic and devoted to the cause of Ireland, the land of his immediate ancestors. Mr. Walsh is an orator of powerful arguments and eloquence. In talking in New York last June, he advocated clinging to the original precepts of the democratic party, and not be led into untried by-paths. He pleaded for straight old fashioned democracy. His keynote speech was received with tremendous favor by the club, and it's safe to say Mr. Walsh will be one of the leaders in framing a party policy for the coming campaign. At this moment all his time is given over to the tax bill now before the senate and to which, he as a member of the finance committee, has suggested numerous amendments, which though they failed adoption, under his name—republicans preferring to frame a bill with republican amendments only—have met with very general favor from the senate regardless of partisanship. Even now it may be possible a Walsh amendment will be adopted at the eleventh hour.

Chairman Hull in Favor

The selection of Cordell Hull of Tennessee as chairman of the national committee meets with favor here. Judge Hull served long in congress but went down to defeat in the landslide in 1920. He is the author of the income tax bill and was high in rank on the ways and means committee when he went out of office. Those of us who knew him well personally have great confidence in his ability and integrity. He is a quiet man who talks little but works much. A reader and thinker who cares but little for social affairs or club life. How the judge will enjoy the hustling life of a committee chairmanship is a matter of doubt, but there seems to be no doubt here in the minds of congressmen who served with him in the house, that he will devote his time and energy to the task put before him. Since his defeat for congress he has spent much time abroad studying the condition in Europe, and it has been counted a foregone conclusion among his former colleagues that he intended to run for re-election to his old seat in the house, when the 1922 campaign opens.

Wilson a Man of Mystery

The condition of former President Wilson is once more shrouded in mystery. Bulletins, or perhaps statements, would better describe them, have this week been issued by his physician Dr. Grayson, to the effect that although still confined to his bed, Mr. Wilson "is improving rapidly."

Not until Marshal Foch called at the Wilson home to pay his respects was it known to the outside world that Mr. Wilson had suffered another ill turn. But the marshal was informed, when he called that Mr. Wilson was ill, and under the order of his physician could receive no visitors, so the marshal left his card with messages of condolence.

But right on the back of that statement jumps the one that Mr. Wilson is expected to attend the opening of the disarmament conference and also take part in the memorial ceremonies at Arlington cemetery on Armistice Day, November 11th. Statements are likewise buzzing through the air to the effect that Mr. Wilson will soon break his long silence on political and international affairs, and will again come to the front in the approaching campaign.

In fact there are as many contradictory statements flying through the air at this moment, regarding Mr. Wilson's health and purposes, as there were a year ago, while he was still in office, but remaining invisible to the leaders of his party and the people of Washington in general.

Many Foreigners in Capital

Tourists visiting Washington just now are treated to unusual sights. For instance, shortly before the house adjourned yesterday, a long string of big automobiles coursed slowly through the capitol grounds, and peering from them with eager faces, were half a hundred or more Chinese delegates, attaches and secretaries who have just reached the city. They were chattering rapidly in their own language, pointing out buildings or views that attracted their attention, and laughing among themselves in a very amiable fashion. They were dressed in conventional manner after the fashion of this country, and I could but recall how short a time ago it was when Minister Wu Ting Fang and Madame Wu were familiar figures on the streets of the city dressed in native costumes of rare silk, heavy brocades and wearing little round caps, richly jeweled. In fact, the Japanese, Koreans, and Chinese members of the diplomatic corps, were, a few years ago, the "observed of all observers" at state reception, on the street and at their own official functions, for they carried out to the fullest degree possible here, the court rules and costumes of their own nations.

Now passers by see them riding through the city street with much freedom and attracting but little notice, unless in large groups.

The opening of the armament conference will bring together a motley assembly, with the white and the yellow races sharing all ceremony and influence on a fifty-fifty basis.

Congressman Rogers' Duties

On the broad shoulders of the Hon. John Jacob Rogers, of Lowell, member of congress from the 5th district, will fall the responsibilities of the house committee on foreign affairs through the approaching conference. Mr. Rogers is ranking member of that committee and will thus become its acting chairman in the absence of Chairman Porter, who will be one of the American advisors by appointment of President Harding.

RICHARDS.

Why Dread Old Age?

It don't make much difference how old you are if you only keep in good health and are active. Many people appear older at 50 than others do at 70, to keep looking young you have got to enjoy good health, and do as little worrying as possible. Backaches, swollen joints and legs, disturbed sleep by being compelled to arise one or more times during the night are sure symptoms of kidney trouble, and should have immediate attention to avoid serious consequences. SEVEN BARKS, nature's remedy of roots and herbs, is one of the best remedies to take not only for affected kidneys, but for liver, stomach and heart troubles.

Middle-aged people realize that they cannot perform their work or move around as fast as formerly. The intestinal organs feel the effect of age and do not perform their work properly. The heart palpitates on the slightest exertion and the back aches after a day's work. The muscles and flesh get flabby, and the blood thinner than formerly, it is then you need a good tonic and bowel regulator—you cannot find a more reliable and efficient remedy for these conditions than SEVEN BARKS.

If you want to enjoy life, recover some of your youthful vigor and have the glow of health, get SEVEN BARKS of your druggist. Do not accept a substitute.—Adv.

CHURCHMEN DENOUNCE BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—Prohibition agents, in the opinion of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, of the Methodist Episcopal church, "should be instructed to remember their wives, children and the people of the United States when their lives are placed in danger by bootleggers and moonshiners," the board said in a statement issued today.

"Bootleggers are the worst kind of criminals, frequently ex-convicts and cruel killers. They are dangerous in the extreme. When a bootlegger draws a gun, he should be fired upon and that quickly. They (prohibition officers) owe it to themselves, to their wives, to their children and above all to the majesty of the law to do so."

REPARATIONS BODY TO VISIT BERLIN

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The entire reparations commission, including Roland W. Boyden, the unofficial member for the United States, will leave for Berlin next Monday or Tuesday. The commission will remain in the German capital two or three weeks to investigate measures by which Germany may procure the necessary fund to meet the payment of 500,000,000 gold marks due to the allies on Jan. 15, 1922. It will also investigate the causes for the recent depreciation in value of the German mark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—German marks today fell to the lowest level in history—.3925 cents.

PLACED ON PROBATION

William C. Johnson, recently sentenced to the house of correction for non-support of his wife and two children, after he had declared to Judge Enright his desire to go to jail rather than give money to his wife, was placed on probation in the district court today after he had promised the court and his wife that he would be a different man from now on.

Johnson, on the night of the day he made his outburst to the court here, wrote a letter from the house of correction to Judge Enright apologizing for his act and asking that he reconsider his conviction. The judge as well as Probation Officer Cronin further investigated the case and at a recent appeal of Johnson's wife he was withdrawn from the Cambridge institution. Judge Enright stated today he personally went to the master of the house of correction yesterday to inquire about Johnson's conduct. The court gave the defendant a few sound instructions after which he told him he would be under the protective wing of the probation officer, his sentence being suspended.

FRANK O'HARE'S "COLONEL" DEAD

Agent Frank O'Hare, of the board of health, is mourning the loss of a dear friend, the "Colonel" with whom he had been associated in business for a great many years. The "Colonel" was none other than the stately Kentucky horse driven for years by Mr. O'Hare in the health department. The animal was a great pet and was treated in the most kindly manner by Mr. O'Hare on all occasions. The "colonel" was 27 years old, and of late showed symptoms of indigestion, and it was probably an acute attack of this disease from which he died a few days ago despite the efforts of a veterinary doctor to prolong his life.

"JOE" KLEIN HIS OWN POLICEMAN

Joseph L. Klein, who maintains a pool room at 403 Middlesex street, has reported to the police that his place of business was broken into last Thursday night, but as far as he could see, nothing was taken.

Klein stated that he closed his establishment shortly before midnight Thursday, and upon reaching his home in Grand street, he had a premonition that there was something wrong at the pool room and he returned to the place. Upon entering, so he claims, he saw a strange man near one of the tables. He grabbed a chair and chased the intruder, but the latter made his escape through a rear window. The police are investigating.

He was taken to the county jail, but an hour later he walked out, smilingly said "Good-bye" to the doorkeeper and disappeared. Several hours later it was discovered that a visitor had no pass. He had given it up to a man who demanded it, thinking he was a jail official, but it was Kimmel, who presented it to the doorkeeper and won his liberty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Retirement of Secretary Mellon as "the fiscal head of the government" was demanded in the senate today by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, because of the attitude which the Wisconsin senator said the treasury held toward "the taxation of wealth." MOORE FIGHTS IN SACCO CASE

Defense Counsel Cites Instances of Court Action in This State

DEDHAM, Nov. 5.—The hearing before Judge Webster Thayer of the superior court on petitions of a new trial of Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was continued at the courthouse here today. Counsel for the men, who were convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree for a double killing in connection with a payroll robbery at South Braintree in April, 1920, resumed the arguments in their behalf begun last Saturday.

The extra guard of state constabulary and state, county and local police, was again on duty. Officers armed with repeating rifles and sidearms patrolled the vicinity of the courthouse, and searched all persons who entered.

Attorney Moore Argues

Fred H. Moore, of counsel for the defense, cited what he said were authorities to permit the setting aside of a jury verdict on the grounds of insufficient evidence. Mr. Moore said that the bulk of the cases he cited were beyond the jurisdiction of Massachusetts but said he could show that the supreme court of Massachusetts had recognized the right to set aside a jury verdict. The court said he particularly desired instances wherein Massachusetts jury verdicts had been set aside, saying that the Massachusetts courts were not usually influenced by the action of courts in other states.

Arguing on the evidence upon which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted, Moore said that not one witness had placed Vanzetti at the actual scene of the shooting. Two witnesses had said they saw him in an automobile after the crime and two witnesses had said they saw him somewhere near South Braintree, several hours before the crime.

"Grant by a stretch of the imagination," said Mr. Moore, "that there was sufficient evidence to convict Sacco, where is there evidence to convict Vanzetti? And if there was not sufficient evidence to convict Vanzetti, then the fact of the verdict of guilty for both of them is a challenge to the court against the conviction of the defendant Sacco."

Court Has Power

"Not only these defendants but the administration of justice in Massachusetts is on trial here," said Mr. Moore. "Conditions over which no human being could have control, have made this case of more than national interest. The power lies in this court to right this wrong and grant the defendants a new trial, which simply gives the men another day in court."

Mr. Moore reviewed the evidence in the case stressing the clean cut manner in which the murder and $15,000 payroll robbery were executed. "To say these are the men who planned and committed that crime," Mr. Moore said, "you must recognize them as supermen. Not a single dollar, not a single pay envelope stolen at the time, has been found since and there has been nothing tangible upon which to base their conviction," he said.

"Without the evidence as to consciousness of guilt, as Your Honor allowed it to go into the records, where would there be any evidence to convict?" he asked.

The jury utterly disregarded the alibi evidence of Sacco and Vanzetti, counsel added.

GRATEFUL FOR LOAN OF CHAIRS

The firm of C. H. Molloy's Sons, the well known Market street undertakers, made a notable contribution to the success of the cancer lecture at city hall, on Thursday evening. Mayor Thompson stated today that the unexpectedly large crowd found those in charge of the building totally unprepared for seating accommodations, and they were obliged to secure extra seats in a hurry. On going to the Molloy establishment, it was learned that a large number of the chairs which are used by undertakers were available and were loaned to the committee in charge of the lecture free of charge. The mayor believes that this generous act deserves special mention and has expressed his thanks to the firm on behalf of the committee and himself.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Louise Leonard Thursday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. Corson, 90 Agawam street, when about 75 of her friends gathered and presented her many valuable and useful gifts, including cut glass, silver and linen, etc. Although taken wholly by surprise, Miss Leonard responded in a fitting manner. After a musical program in which many of the young ladies took part, refreshments were served. Those in charge of the affair were the Misses Anna Smith, Margaret McHugh, Kittie Duffy, Catherine Kane, Anna O'Neill and Belle Leonard. The party left at a reasonable hour, wishing the bride-to-be the best of luck and happiness.

AFTERNOON FIRE ALARMS

The alarm from box 6 at 2.48 o'clock this afternoon was for a slight roof fire at 31 French street. At 2.57 o'clock a telephone alarm was sent in for a grass fire in the rear of 135 Varnum av.

Marriages in the United States this year are estimated at 1,500,000.

STORY OF POWDER HORN FOUND HERE ALMOST A CENTURY AGO

JOHN A. KELLEY, HOLDING POWDER HORN

Reading The Sun is something more than a pastime with a great many Lowell citizens. John A. Kelley, well known resident of West Third street, for many years an expert house painter and interior decorator, now retired from active work, is a daily reader of Sun items classed as "unusual"—items that, perhaps, arouse curiosity and excite more than ordinary attention. Mr. Kelley, always gets rare enjoyment, he says, from "something out of the ordinary."

The ex-painter was reading his favorite evening newspaper at his home, No. 54 a few nights ago when his quest for something "unusual" led him to this little item tucked away in The Man About Town column:

"I am trying to locate an old-time family by the name of Farwell, that lived at one time near what is now Lowell. Who was Olive, wife of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford, prior to 1640?"

Mr. Kelley read and re-read the little item, and slowly spelled out the name "Farwell." His memory is excellent, and the name seemed somehow very familiar.

"Farwell!" he exclaimed, as he laid down The Sun and walked over to the mantel-piece.

"William Farwell, Ye 1775."

Mr. Kelley believes that this man Farwell, who undoubtedly once owned the horn, may be some relative of Henry Farwell of Chelmsford. He is anxious to find out if some member of the old family is still living, and would like to meet anyone at his home on West Third street, any day who can trace the ancestry of the Farwell family back to the days when William carved his name in this powder horn.

Story of the Horn

The history of this quaintly carved horn has never been told before, and is most interesting indeed, having to do with the early lives of settlers in this part of Massachusetts and especially those around the so-called "Fort Hill section" of what is now a great residential section of the City of Spindles.

John A. Kelley was born on old Market street, Lowell, just 83 years ago. He has been a painter all his life, and has done much work for large local corporations, notably the Merrimack mills. His record as an interior decorator and painter is also filled with remarkable works. He has painted the inside of St. Patrick's and St. Michael's churches. He was one of the very first to work on old St. Peter's church, when the venerable and greatly beloved Father Crudden was leader of that parish.

Mr. Kelley's wife died some 16 years ago. No children are living, and Mr. Kelley resides with his two nephews, John and Charles Kelley, of the firm of Kelley Brothers, West Third street.

The story of the finding of the old powder horn is told with much descriptive detail by Mr. Kelley. His wife's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Duffy, went one fine morning nearly 100 years ago for a walk into the country. At that time Fort Hill territory was nothing but woods and pastures. As the couple climbed the hill, and about half way from the bottom, they nearly stumbled over an object that lay partially hidden amid tall grass, leaves and old sticks of wood. It was the old powder horn and it was in a fine state of preservation. Despite the fact that it must have lain on Fort Hill since the revolutionary war period, no part of it had suffered deterioration from the elements.

Wonderfully Carved

The horn today is a great curiosity in every way. It is covered with hand carvings, excellently done by someone well trained in drawing figures. There are carvings of Indians, fishes, rabbits, deer, eel, birds, frogs and fish on the bone. The largest drawing is that of an Indian entirely naked except for a breech cloth and a small set of feathers.

Upraised arm, tomahawk, expression of ferocity—all are there quaintly carved on the horn bone. Pictures of human hearts, square-shaped figures of remote origin, round objects meant for something not known in these days of "something new," appear before the eyes as the horn is slowly turned around in the hands. It is an object without doubt of great antiquity and historic value.

Mr. Kelley has no idea as to where the powder carrier might have come from, neither does he know how it came to be lying on the ground on the side of old Fort Hill, but he earnestly believes that some day it will be proved that the horn was carried by its owner, William Farwell, possibly during some of the skirmishes with Indians who frequented Fort Hill in days of yore.

The West Third street painter will be glad to show his interesting relic to any antiquarian interested in it, and repeat the story of its recovery from the wilds of the historic hillside.

LOWELL CITY LIBRARY

Plans for Children's Book Week—New Quarters for Newspaper Files

"Children's Book Week" will be observed at the Lowell city library from Monday, Nov. 14 to Saturday, Nov. 19. All parents are urged to visit the library during the week.

In the upper room will be held an exhibition of the latest recommended children's books and attractive editions of the classics.

New quarters have just been arranged in the library basement for the bound volumes of Lowell newspapers, covering almost 100 years of publication. Library employes have been at work all the week getting the big room ready and placing shelves and large frames for the scores of bound volumes. Today the quarters were in shape for visitation, and all of the newspaper volumes were arranged in good order for quick finding. This room will undoubtedly be a popular place for those who like to "dig" back into old newspaper files.

The newspapers now on the shelves are numerous, indicating Lowell's progress from "four pages to twenty-two" and sometimes more. The names of most of the newspapers are familiar to present day readers, but there are some on the shelves almost forgotten in the rapid advance of time.

There are, for instance, excellent volumes of old copies of the Lowell Morning Times, the Advertiser, Le Supplement, the old Evening Star, Lowell Daily Journal and Courier (volumes 1849-1856), Daily Citizen & News, Morning and Evening Mail, The Courier, The Experiment, (volumes 1832-1833), published by Horatio H. Weld; Evening Democrat, Morning Herald (volumes of 1883), Morning Herald, issues of 1844; Daily News, Daily Courier, La Revell, La Revue de Lowell, La Republique, Le Journal, Saturday Free Press, N. E. Greek Messenger, La Verite, Daily Telegram, Sunday Telegram, L'Etoile, Sunday News, Centralville Sunday News and complete files of the Lowell Sun.

JOHN CONWAY DEAD

Well Known Patrolman Passed Away This Morning

John E. Conway, for many years a well known and respected officer of the Lowell police department, died this morning at St. John's hospital, after a lingering illness, aged 51 years. Patrolman Conway was born in this city Oct. 23, 1869, and received his education in the local schools. He was appointed a supernumerary officer Nov. 13, 1897, and was promoted to regular Oct. 24, 1899. During the past few years he had been patrolling the so-called "Flats" district on the day shift. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, Mrs. Delia (Ryan) Conway; four daughters, Mrs. Alice Deporcher, Misses Elizabeth, Annabelle and Marion Conway, and two sons, William and John Conway. He was an esteemed member of the Massachusetts Police Protective association; Lowell Aerie, No. 223, F.O.E., and the U. S. Bunting club. The remains were removed to his late home, 4 Billerica street, by Undertakers O'Connell & Fay.

Burial took place in the family lot in Thompson's cemetery, Tyngsboro, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Matthews. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker William H. Temporary Shelter House Recommended for Shedd Park—Skating Plans

A vote by the park commission to recommend the purchase of Washington park for playground purposes was the result of a conference held last night with a committee from the Lower Highlands Improvement association. The association was represented by Thomas J. Fitzgerald; Rep. Adelard Berard and Louis J. Lord.

At a conference held last Saturday morning at which the municipal council, members of the park commission and a committee from the improvement association were present, the sentiment of the council seemed to be that the proper action in the matter was to await a recommendation from the park authorities. Although about a month ago the park commission deemed it inexpedient to secure any new playgrounds for the present they now say that circumstances have changed; hence their action last night.

A temporary shelter house, which could be used both as a dressing room and a refuge in bad weather, was recommended for Shedd park by Supt. Kernan. During the coming skating season one portion of the pond will be set off for a hockey rink and hockey will not be allowed elsewhere. This is a measure taken for the protection of ordinary skaters and for the convenience of all.

Knock-down bleachers for use on the baseball diamonds were also discussed and costs on these are being obtained. These can be taken down and put away during the winter season. They are now used by many colleges and athletic fields.

Three tree petitions were referred to the tree committee for consideration, as follows: Tree at 1 Allen street, petition of Lawrence Dziegiel; tree at 74 Dover street, petition of Walter D. Miller; tree at 95 West Sixth street, petition of J. A. Vincent. A tree at 71 Bowers street, request of Salome Riner, was referred to Supt. Kernan. Permission to remove a tree in Hovey street at his own expense was given J. A. Weinbeck, and Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, of the high school commission, was granted permission for the removal of a tree in Anne street on the ground that it interferes with the new high school. A tree in George street at the First Baptist church, which is considered dangerous, was ordered removed. A suggestion contained in a letter from Joseph Knopf that the commission build a suitable and ornamental building on the South common which he would lease for the sale of soft drinks and eatables, was not favorably acted upon by the commission on the ground that their policy in this direction is not yet defined.

THE DRUNKEN MOTORIST

Question of Dealing With Drunken Auto Drivers Discussed by Judges

The question of dealing with drunken operators of motor vehicles and the establishment of a penalty to fit the crime will be introduced by Judge Enright of this city at the meeting of the Massachusetts district court judges at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, this afternoon.

The local judge stated from the bench at the district session this morning that he hoped this all-important question would be settled in some decisive form at the session this afternoon. Judge Enright had previously stated he recently interviewed the assistant district attorney of Middlesex county and obtained from him the views regarding this particular offense maintained by Judge Brown of the superior court at Cambridge.

Judge Brown, the local justice was told, does not impose a direct sentence in cases where it is the first offense and there is no danger, either to property or to person caused.

Judge Enright did not appear satisfied with the superior court justice's opinion and stated: "Of course Judge Brown is entitled to his opinion and I'm entitled to mine. Campaigns are being launched by newspapers seeking jail conviction for these menaces to the highways and the commission has repeatedly asked us to impose direct sentence. Many licenses are being revoked for this very offense. A drunken auto driver is a menace to the public on one hand. However, on the other hand, if he is a good, reputable citizen and it is his first offense a direct sentence would be somewhat drastic. Anyway, I'm going to find out this afternoon how the other judges of district courts feel about it."

The judge then stated he would be away next week and ordered the case of Philias Rochette, charged with drunkenness and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, continued to Nov. 10 so that he may be back on the bench to deal with this particular case which the court continued last week, that he might interview the district attorney.

SEC. FALL SENDS A SUPERPOWER REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

Gigantic Scheme for Consolidating the Generation and Distribution of Electric Power in Region Between Boston and Washington

Secretary of the Interior Fall is transmitting today to President Harding the completed report of what has been popularly called the superpower survey, an engineering study conducted by the United States geological survey. The appropriation act under which congress provided for this work refers to it as "the special investigation of the possible economy of fuel, labor and material resulting from the use in the Boston-Washington region of a comprehensive system for generating and distributing electricity to transportation lines and industries." Congress expected this intensive study to be completed within the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921, and in compliance with this expectation the manuscript report was in the hands of the director of the geological survey on July 1. The published report, with its wealth of technical information in the form of statistical tables, text figures and maps, has now been issued from the government press—a record of promptness that is gratifying to the public.

The superpower project makes its appeal to the general public as a means of saving coal and of increasing the productivity of labor. The nation's business demands greater and cheaper production and better and cheaper transportation, and the electrification of industries and railroads is the answer to that demand. To connect all the large generating plants—both steam and water power—in one great system means more and cheaper electric current, because each ton of coal will be used to the best advantage and our idle rivers will be made to turn wheels, especially in the regions farthest removed from the coal fields.

Looking ahead to 1930, with the increased demand for power that can then be reasonably expected, the total coal saved annually under the unified system will be 50 million tons. Under motor operation the industries could save $150,000,000 annually in their power bill and could make a greater output of product. The ordinary citizen also ought to profit directly by the superpower system because it promises a reduction of one cent a kilowatt hour in the first cost of the current as put on the transmission lines. Cheaper electricity and more of it will bring comfort to the home as well as efficiency to the workshop, even though the reader may search this engineering report in vain for any basis whatever for the pleasant vision of electric-heated homes throughout our land. Superpower does not stand for the impossible but only for the wider application of practical engineering and sound economics.

The North Atlantic coast region to which it is proposed to supply more and cheaper electric current was selected for this study because its industries and railroads have the maximum requirements for power. Unfortunately, this region is not blessed with the abundance of water power that is possessed by the Pacific coast states, so that the plan of power production includes large steam plants at tidewater or on rivers large enough to furnish sufficient condensing water and hydro-electric power plants wherever they can be economically built on the rivers within the zone or within transmission distance. After 1930 cheap power from the proposed St. Lawrence improvement and from additional capacity at Niagara falls may be available for western New England and New York state, which will benefit greatly by the development of these new sources of energy.

ANOTHER NEW DISEASE

Man in District Court Was Suffering From "Food Smelling Sickness"

Sick of smelling food while working in a local restaurant, a man, yet young in years but apparently aged due to neglect and force of circumstances, faced the bench in district court this morning and told Judge Enright he had not eaten for four days. He had been picked up on Middlesex street early this morning and taken to the station as a suspicious person, the police alleged. He was a window cleaner by trade, he told the court, but had recently worked in a local restaurant where he contracted this supposed "food smelling sickness." And not only did he relate his sad hunger plight to the court but he also told of a man for whom he recently worked stealing $50 from him, all the money in the world he possessed. The judge was very much impressed with the man's story and called a lawyer to the bench asking him to look into the case. The attorney promised to aid him and told him to go to his office where he could tell him all the particulars regarding the alleged theft.

Then ways and means of giving the suspicious person something to eat were being devised when the same attorney withdrew a dollar bill from his pocket and handed it to a court officer instructing him to get the man something to eat and then accompany him to his office. The lawyer's kind act elicited much favorable comment.

STILL INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF DEATH

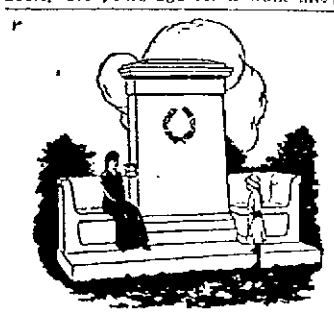

How Edward J. Dillon, machinist, and 50 years old, lately a resident at 41 Rock street, met injuries that caused his death at St. John's hospital Thursday night, has not yet been determined by the police. However, the inspectors investigating the case, called to the attention of the police by Medical Examiner Dr. Thomas E. Smith yesterday, have learned several facts that lead them to believe Dillon sustained his fatal injuries when he fell down a flight of stairs at the Rock street address last Sunday night.

He was unconscious when removed in the ambulance from the house to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness, hospital attaches state.
